6 Squadrons Of Jets Cut By Canada

Defence Spending Frozen

Times News Service

OTTAWA—Defence Minister Leo Cadieux revealed today Canada intends to withdraw its six nuclear-armed squadrons of Starfighter jets based in Europe for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He told the Commons NATO reductions would help Canada to slap a ceiling on defence spending for the next three years.

He said defence expenditures will be held at their current level: about $1,800,000,000 annually.

Mr. Cadieux also said some CF-104 Starfighter bombers will be retained in Europe as an air element for an air-transportable combat group which will replace the present infantry brigade group.

A combat group in Canada numbers about 4,000 men. The present brigade in Europe comprises some 5,000 men.

Mr. Cadieux said a new defence posture will be worked out in the next three years.

Reporting on last week's meeting of NATO defence ministers in Brussels, Mr. Cadieux said he cannot state what the final posture in Europe will be because consultation with NATO will take some time to complete.

Canada will maintain a "significant military presence" in Europe, he said.

He confirmed by implication that the six-squadron nuclear-armed CF-104 air division stationed in West Germany will be dismantled. However, a few of the planes—he did not say how many—will be retained as part of the combat group.

Mr. Cadieux said Canada will have a modern, mobile but smaller land force in Europe. Canada would continue to meet its obligations fully.

CHANGES ARE POSSIBLE

Every NATO member had a right to change its military commitments but also the duty to follow consultation procedures.

The government would not consider its policy of reducing the number of Canadian forces in Europe. But it would follow fully the consultation procedure in letter and spirit.

FIRST HOME IN SWIFTSURE

Revenge Is Sweet For Diamond Head

By JOHN SLINGER

Raced in fits and starts, the 1969 Swiftsure Classic ended with a thrilling twist that gave the Seattle yawl Diamond Head sweet revenge on her long-time rival, the Vancouver sloop Mary Bower.

Although John Long's Mary Bower collected first over-all, Diamond pulled a trick she learned the hard way from her rival three years earlier and scooted past the Ogden Point breakwater to take the first gun and the City of Victoria trophy at 10 p.m. Sunday.

With owner Henry Kotkins at the helm, the 73-foot Diamond Head was 45 minutes behind Mary Bower as she led the 103-yacht fleet through Race Passage, nine miles from the end of the 136-mile race.

The 49-foot sloop headed straight for the finish and sailed into one of the patches of light, fickle air that spotted the course.

Diamond Head followed the wind. She tacked all the way out to Clover Point before coming about on a broad reach, tucked around the breakwater and over the line three minutes ahead of the Vancouver boat.

REVERSE POSITION

In 1966 the situation was reversed and Mary Bower took the big yawl by a hair-raising one second.

The sloop, out of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, besides placing first over-all, was top in Division I. Other winners were: Division II, Moea, owned by W. C. Whipple, Corinthian (Seattle) Yacht Club; Division II, Hyak, owned by Bonar A. Davis, Royal Vancouver; Division IV, Swallow, owned by P.

Cong Resumes Saigon Attack

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong shelled Saigon early today for the first time in 2½ weeks, fought American paratroops and South Vietnamese militiamen just outside the city and killed a high-ranking American adviser in a rocket attack in the central highlands.

Four hours after two rockets fell inside the South Vietnamese capital, paratroops from the 82nd Airborne Division and militiamen on an offensive sweep ran into small groups of Viet Cong 11 miles northwest of Saigon.

The paratroops were sweeping through the same general area where a Viet Cong force took one of their ambush patrols by surprise last Friday, killing eight Americans.

Spokesmen said the fighting today was sporadic and lasted for about five hours, until the Viet Cong troops withdrew. At least six guerrillas were known dead and three were captured, U.S. headquarters said. One American was killed.

The U.S. command reported eight rocket and mortar attacks during the night that caused casualties but said over-all damage was light.

The American adviser was reported killed at the Dak To airfield, 200 miles northeast of Saigon. About 10 100-pound rockets hit the field at 5 p.m., and five South Vietnamese soldiers were reported wounded.

The two rockets crashed into Saigon before dawn. One landed in a densely populated section known as Rocket Alley because it has been shelled so many times. The rocket destroyed four houses and damaged seven. A child and a man were killed, U.S. headquarters said, and 15 children were among the wounded.

The second rocket fell harmlessly in rice paddies on the eastern fringe of the city.

New Budget Could Reflect Impending Major Reforms

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — If Finance Minister E. J. Benson pulls any surprises in his spring budget speech to Parliament Tuesday night, they'll be more significant than usual.

Mr. Benson set the tone of federal government fiscal affairs for the current fiscal year—which runs to March 31, 1970—as long ago as last Oct. 22 when he presented a major budget.

Since then he has said that government revenues and expenditures are running about as he expected. When he tabled his pre-budget white paper last week, in fact, he was able to report an unexpected improvement in the deficit position.

So confident was he of last October's budgeting that he spoke first of giving Parliament only an economic review this spring, not a full budget.

The national business organizations, such as the chambers of commerce, bankers, farmers, and labor associations, usually present briefs to the finance minister for him to consider while preparing his budget. This spring they were discouraged from doing so because this wasn't to be a full-blown budget.

SIX DAYS FOR DEBATE

But six days were set aside in the government's parliamentary timetable for a full-dress budget debate in case it was needed.

Then the word came that Mr. Benson planned a full budget. Whether there will be enough in it to require six full days of Commons debate remains to be seen.

But concurrently with preparing his budget, the finance minister has been preparing a white paper policy statement on wholesale tax reform, which he hopes to make public this summer. Parliament will have a chance to discuss it this fall, when formal legislation is introduced.

This is a general review of existing tax laws in their general application, not just concerned with the rates of specific taxes.

Likely to be included is a capital gains tax for the first time in Canada. Money a taxpayer obtains through the increased value of an asset, if he realizes it without making a business of buying and selling for capital gains, now is not counted as income for tax purposes.

MORE CHANGE POSSIBLE

Other features of new tax law recommended by the royal commission headed by the late Kenneth Carter, Toronto tax consultant and accountant, may find their way into the white paper and tax reform.

But the government has indicated it does not intend to go as far as Carter's sweeping plan for integration of personal income and corporation taxes.

Intrepid Voyagers Making Better Time

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Thor Heyerdahl's papyrus boat Ra was reported making good time through calmer waters south of the Canary Islands today after taking some damage Sunday from high seas and a strong north wind.

Navigator Norman Baker reported breaking seas again smashed the steering rudder and yardarm Sunday, knocking down the radio antenna, but the damage was repaired.

Pressure on the rudder came from hard steering to keep clear of the Moroccan coast. The Ra cleared Cape Juby at noon Saturday.

Baker, in a broadcast picked up by amateur radio operators here, called it an "extremely eventful weekend."

"The winds are still pretty high," he said, "but the seas are calmer and we are making better time. Thursday we made 48 miles, Friday 52, Saturday 62 and Sunday 65."

Oil Men Face Death Penalty

KWALE, Nigeria (AP) — The Biafrans sentenced 18 foreign oil workers to death as Nigerian forces recovered the bodies of 11 others Sunday.

The Biafran information services said the death penalty must be confirmed by Biafran leader Odumegwu Ojukwu, "but Gen. Ojukwu has not done so thus far." Biafran Information Minister Ifegwu Eke had told a news conference the foreigners had been fighting alongside the Nigerians.

A spokesman had said earlier that if the men were to be freed, their home governments must make "contact through the appropria[illegible] channel."

"It is a g[illegible]nment-to-government affair, not a humanitarian affair," he added.

The sentenced oilmen—14 Italians, three Germans and one Lebanese—were among 29 workers who disappeared when Biafran and Nigerian troops battled near Okpai, in midwestern Nigeria May 7-10. The bodies of the other 11 men—10 Italians and a Jordanian—were found by Nigerian forces.

The men were employed by AGIP, the Nigerian oil exploration company which is a joint enterprise of the Italian state petroleum corporation and the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Okla. AGIP denied that the men had been fighting for the Nigerians.

BODIES WERE BURNED

Nigerian army officers who recovered the bodies of the 11 dead workers said the Biafrans burned them when they overran their camp in midwestern Nigeria 12 miles from the Niger River.

"When we advanced on the camp we found the remains," said Maj. S. Abacha, 23, who led a unit that captured the campsite four days ago. "One was buried in a toilet drainage ditch, a quite shallow grave. The rains washed up a sort of a skull. Then we found the rest."

Seven air-conditioned trailers where the men lived were riddled with bullet holes.

While Italian colleagues removed the bodies, occasional shots from Biafrans in the bush kept the Nigerian guards on alert.

Although federal headquarters said they had driven the Biafrans across the Niger River, one Nigerian officer said the secessionists still occupied land on the river's west bank.

There were conflicting claims about results of fighting in Aboh, which is located on the river. The Biafrans said Sunday they had checked an advance on the town and killed seven officers including a battalion commander. Saturday the Nigerians said they had taken Aboh. There was no comment from federal authorities on the Biafran report.

RUSSIAN MOON SHOT ANTICIPATED IN DAYS

PARIS (UPI)—The United States has learned within the last 24 hours that the Soviet Union plans a major space shot in the next few days, a U.S. official said at the Paris air show today.

The official, who declined to be identified, said that a moonshot might be involved. He could not say whether it might be a manned shot.

TOKYO (Reuters)—A Soviet cosmonaut was quoted here today as saying Russia plans to land a man or men on the moon by the end of this year or early next year, if all goes well.

A group of Japanese science reporters now visiting Moscow reported the remark was made by cosmonaut Alexei Leonov, who in 1965 was the first man to walk in space, in an interview with them Sunday night.

Details of his news conference were published here today by the Kyodo news agency.

Leonov indicated that unlike the U.S. Apollo project which sends spaceships directly from the earth to the moon, the Soviet moon project would launch a lunar probe from a space station assembled while in orbit around the earth, the news agency said.

Reds Abstain; Pompidou Win Almost Certain

Times News Services

PARIS—The central committee of the powerful French Communist party today called on its followers to abstain in the June 15 run-off between Georges Pompidou and Alain Poher to succeed Charles de Gaulle as president of France.

The party's decision made the election of former premier Pompidou virtually certain.

Communist leader Jacques Duclos finished a strong third in the first round of the presidential race Sunday.

In the run-off between the two top-placed candidates, Poher would have needed a large share of the Communist vote to have a serious chance of victory.

In the first round Sunday, Pompidou showed formidable strength, missing the required 50 per cent of the vote needed for election by just a little more than six percentage points.

He got 43.95 per cent to Poher's 23.44 per cent and 21.53 per cent for the Communist leader Duclos.

The Communist decision was certain to increase the pressure on Poher to withdraw from the runoff.

This would leave Pompidou face to face with Duclos.

Pompidou would have no difficulty defeating the veteran Communist leader, while Poher's withdrawal would mark the first step toward a reconciliation between the Gaullists and the middle-of-the-road groups which engineered de Gaulle's downfall.

Some 6,000,000 registered voters or about 22 per cent of the electorate—didn't vote in the seven-man race.

Duclos and the other four first-round candidates were eliminated since only the two leading vote-getters go into the runoff.

Pompidou, 57-year-old former Rothschild banker and President Charles de Gaulle's premier for six years, received 43.95 per cent of the vote in continental France. Opinion polls published last week gave him about 41 per cent, but he even topped the 43.71 per cent de Gaulle collected in the first round of the 1965 election.

Poher, the 60-year-old Centrist who advanced from president of the Senate to provisional president of the country when de Gaulle resigned April 28, ran second with 23.44 per cent. Opinion polls early in May indicated he might get as much as 38 per cest of the vote and beat Pompidou June 15. But Poher's strength faded, and his showing Sunday disappointed his backers.

COLLECTED 21.53 PER CENT

Duclos, the 72-year-old Communist party wheelhorse, collected 21.53 per cent of the votes. The polls had given him only about 12 per cent early in the campaign, but he steadily picked up strength with an extensive speaking tour.

The other 11 per cent of the votes was divided among four also-rans: Gaston Defferre, Socialist mayor of Marseille, 5.07 per cent; Michel Rocard, secretary-general of the Unified Socialist party, 3.68 per cent; Louis Ducatel, millionaire industrialist, 1.27 per cent, and Alain Krivine, a 27-year-old student extremist, 1.06 per cent.

Official results lacking only about 500,000 votes from some overseas areas, gave these totals: Pompidou, 9,858,824; Poher, 5,221,022; Duclos, 4,787,665; Defferre, 1,130,050; Rocard, 815,512; Ducatel, 285,736; and Krivine, 237,758.

From his position of strength, Pompidou suggested that Poher withdraw from the race in the

Up-Island Fares Hiked As Bus Service Resumes

Virtually full service was established by Vancouver Island Coach Lines today — and up-Island passengers were greeted with a 10 per cent fare increase.

The 23-day strike of the company's 100 drivers ended Saturday when they voted to accept a three-year contract which will push their wages from the current $3.48 hourly to $4.31 by March of 1971.

The fare increases apply immediately to the company's Saanich Peninsula and up-Island runs. The fare for the Vancouver runs via ferry remains the same—$4.25 one-way except on B.C. Ferries' bargain days (Tuesday to Thursday), when it is $3.25.

The company had made fare increase application to the Public Utilities Commission last year and the new rates were actually approved from May 10, two days after the strike started.

FIRST SINCE 1958

VICL general manager Robert Horner said today the company has not had fare hikes since 1958.

"With increases in labor and fuel costs we've got to survive."

The drivers voted 75-10 in favor of accepting the contract offer after a 3½-hour meeting in Nanaimo Saturday. Much of the company's service was restored Sunday, including the ferry runs. But Pacific Stage Lines, which handles half the ferry runs did not resume these until today. Pickets had stopped the PSL ferry service 10 days ago.

The drivers, members of Local 234 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, had originally asked for 54 cents an hour more over each of the next two years. They had lowered this to 38 and 25-cent annual increases but negotiations broke down when the company offered 38 and 10-cent increases.

Czechs Opposing Moscow Invasion Debate at Meet

By DAN MORGAN
The Washington Post

PRAGUE — Czechoslovakia's Communist Party Central Committee has moved to exclude the question of the 1968 Soviet intervention here from this week's World Communist Conference in Moscow, it was announced Sunday night.

In a statement released on television and radio, the party body declared that "efforts to internationalize the Czechoslovak question can only be evaluated by the central committee as an effort which would not help our own interests or the interests of the international workers' movement."

The resolution said that "serious problems" which were created "between ourselves and our allies in 1968 cannot be solved by anyone else. They can only be discussed among ourselves in open, comradely talks."

The statement was the long-awaited formula by which the Prague leadership is to take the leading role in steering discussion away from the Czechoslovak question which split the world Communist movement last year.

While it spares the Czechoslovak leadership from admitting to a counter-revolution in 1968, or from actually condoning the intervention, it gives the Kremlin the next best thing—a declaration from the injured party that outside help is not wanted.

Soviet party internationalists fear that a floor discussion on Czechoslovakia in Moscow could erupt into debate on such subjects as the Kremlin doctrine of "limited sovereignty" and only serve to embarrass the Kremlin in its claim to be the centre of world Communism.

The handling of the Czechoslovak question has been the subject of an intensive round of contacts between the East European leaders. Party leader Gustav Husak himself has personally visited every country involved in the intervention except Bulgaria.

Communist Party Secretary Vasil Bilak visited Moscow last week, presumably to work out the formula. He reported to the central committee Thursday.

The party body's formulation declares that the "policy of our party should be part of internal negotiations of an international conference, considering our party has not had time to work out a complete analysis of the causes and results of the pre-January (1968) and post-January policy."

This means that Czechoslovakia presumably will try to prevent such parties as Austria's from carrying out their promose to bring up Czechoslovakia on the conference floor.

Moderates here had looked to the June 5 meeting as their last hope for bringing pressure to bear on the Kremlin to relax its grip here.

But with a thoroughly orthodox leadership now firmly installed here, observers note that it would now take more than Kremlin action to bring back any liberalization.

Some 70 parties are expected to come to Moscow for the June 5 meeting. Among the absent are expected to be North Vietnam and Korea, Yugoslavia, New Zealand, Japan and Cuba (which is sending only an observer).

. . . BUS SERVICE

gaining table Thursday. Ten hours of talks produced the contract offer the union's negotiating committee recommended to drivers Saturday.

The money terms: a 28-cent-an-hour increase retroactive to March 1, another 10 cents in September, 20 cents on March 1, 1970, and 25 cents on March 1, 1971. The contract expires March 1, 1972.

While the Victoria-based bus line, including the allied Grey Line Tours operation, has returned to normal, a labor dispute still threatens the transportation industry.

A mediation officer is still trying to guide Vancouver-based Pacific Stage Lines and its 160 drivers to a contract settlement.

The drivers are members of the Amalgamated Transit Union and are reported to be seeking 64 cents an hour more in a two-year contract. They now get $3.32 hourly.

STRIKE NOTICE

While they have served strike notice, the mandatory 72-hour waiting period before a strike could begin cannot start until the mediation officer has filed a report.

Should the PSL drivers strike, it appears likely their pickets would stop the VICL service from Victoria and Nanaimo to Vancouver, just as VICL pickets did to the PSL in the strike just concluded.

Union president John Harlow said from Vancouver today he will meet the PSL drivers Wednesday.

ON THE MAINLAND

Two labor disputes ended today but there was no sign of a breakthrough on at least a half dozen other strikes or lockouts.

Among major developments today was the setting up of pickets at six major super market chains—Safeway, Super-Valu, Lodom, High-Low, Shop-Easy and Food Fair.

All stores of these chains closed Saturday afternoon and did not re-open today despite the fact that striking workers did appear for work. Later they re-appeared to picket the stores.

A spokesman for the retail, food and drug clerks' union said all stores were being picketed. The spokesman said the six chains were completely shut down.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Parents vacationing at the seashore or on a lake most of the summer will let their kids run around bare-skinned most of the time, except for a pair of shorts. A mother might say: "They soak in the sun and it lasts them all winter. The children are a lot healthier in the winters ever since we spent the summers on the lake."

The kids may indeed be healthier as a result of a summer in the sun, but the winters are not all that unhealthful. Winter, as a matter off act, is just as healthful for you as summer, if you take care of yourself.

The reason you feel better in the summer weather is not because it's summer, but because you and the children exercise more, and more air and sun circulate over more of your body. The biometeorologists say it's what you do that counts for health, not the timeoftheyear. People keep healthy in the winter when they exercise a lot and get out in the weather as much as possible.

DELUGE DISRUPTS NEW YORK RUSH

NEW YORK (AP)—A fierce thunderstorm all but paralysed the city's subway system during this morning's rush hour and knocked out much of the rest of its transportation facilities.

The deluge, accompanied by loud thunderclaps and lightning, also overpowered the weather bureau's reporting equipment and some electrical facilities.

The remote measuring device in Central Park was out of commission, but the weather bureau said 2.35 inches of rain was reported in Brooklyn in two hours.

Subway stations and tunnels became flooded during the downfall, reducing service into Manhattan from the surrounding boroughs to a trickle of trains. In Brooklyn and Queens, subway service was almost non-existent.

. . . SWIFTSURE

G. Johnson Jr., Seattle Yacht Club.

The first Victoria boat home was the sleek, 51-foot Gabrielle II, owned and skippered by Ralph Higgins, Turkey Head Sailing Association commodore. She placed 22nd over-all.

Next for the home town was Don Lawson's Cubara. The Royal Victoria Yacht Club sloop finished 27th over-all.

Race organizers had not finished computations and nine boats were still unaccounted for at noon. Some 20 yachts withdrew without completing the race.

The organizers did not believe that this year's race saw any time records broken.

Runners up in the over-all finish were Swallow, second; Six Pack, owned by L. G. Hedrick, Rose City Yacht Club, third, and Hyak, fourth.

HMCS Oriole, the 91-foot naval training yawl was among the boats that had not finished at noon.

Much of the Swiftsure was decided at Race Rocks, off William Head, shortly after the droopy start at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

A light easterly, unusual for the Dallas Road shore at this time of year, carried the yachts that made good starts gently towards the distant Race Passage.

It left the rest of the fleet in dirty, broken wind drifting aimlessly behind the line.

Mary Bower caught Tricia, Pat Leslie's 36-foot Vancouver sloop which was first across the start, and had a handy 20 minute lead at the Race.

Along with the early boats, she beat a near-record flood tide that turned the narrow passage into a raging river and sent the later boats spinning backwards at speeds near 10 knots.

It split the fleet, forcing some in behind William Head and some into anchoring to wait some four hours for slack water.

Safely past the rocks, the leaders set to deciding the traditional United States side vs. Canadian side argument.

Diamond Head swung up the Island shore heading for the Shearingham light beyond Sooke, Mary Bower picked the middle of the channel choosing to dodge steamer traffic rather than be committed to the uncertain coast conditions.

SPOTTY WESTERLY

Spotty, but westerly, the breezes carried the fleet up Juan de Fuca Strait towards Cape Flattery and the Pacific where, out of sight of the cape, HMCS Miramachi stood on the Swiftsure Bank.

Mary Bower, with the 51-foot Vancouver sloop Crusader pushing all the way, worked gradually across the strait to Pillar Point, east of Clallam Bay.

There she met Diamond Head and the Seattle sloop Maelstrom, and charged into a tacking duel up the far shore that petered out as the boats moved out to mid-channel to catch the ebb tide.

They needed that ebb because the wind disappeared. Through the night and into Sunday morning, the fleet bobbed, with virtually no forward motion, under a brilliant full moon.

It was 9:30 a.m. Sunday when the first yacht rounded the Miramachi. She was Six Pack, a 50-foot Seattle sloop owned by L. C. Hedrick, and she was followed one minute later by Mary Bower.

WIND FRESHENS

Once around, the yachts hung up all the cloth they could find and whipped back for the Strait, a freshening westerly filling spinnakers.

The Pacific, according to Swiftsure veterans, was unusually kind to the sailors.

Turbulent tides met the leaders off Flattery, but the ocean swells were far from their magnificent worst.

The fleet leaders, after beating the tides early in the race, missed the thick, sopping fog that filled the Strait most of the night.

It was a hairy ride for the tail-enders, with a fair-wind under spinnakers, listening to invisible freighters churn past in the murk.

Fog still choked the Strait at noon, but back inside Race Passage the sky was clear and with dawn today, the winners safe in harbor, the last boats doddled across that last nine miles of sunshine and flat, flat calm.

name of national reconciliation. Poher refused heatedly: "No I am from Brittany. I won't give up."

Poher said his duties as interim president kept him from waging an active campaign. He depended mostly on radio and television appearances. He is planning a vigorous campaign tour for the next two weeks.

Pompidou waged a whirlwind campaign byplane, helicopter and car. Visiting all 21 regions of France, he met with local leaders, gave public speeches and appeared on television as well.

SWEPT METRO FRANCE

The result was that Pompidou led in all but one of the 95 departments of metropolitan France. Duclos beat him in the Seine-St. Denis department in the Red Belt of Paris. In 1965, de Gaulle came in second in 20 departments.

Poher supporters complained that his initial-round refusal to stump the country, as Pompidou did, cost many votes.

A mainstay of the Democratic Centre party, Poher sought to allay the gloom in his camp by pledging all-out efforts to win victory for a cause other than—in the words of one backer—"Muscovite totalitarianism or (Gaullist) personal power."

This is certain to involve the anti-Gaullist candidate in barnstorming use of oratorical ammunition he deliberately held back during the first-round campaign.

The Gaullists realize they now must go after the 22 per cent of the 29,000,000 registered voters who out of indecision or indifference did not vote Sunday.

Pompidou also will be concentrating on weaning middle-of-the-road supporters over from those who voted for Poher in the first round.

Family Helped By Brentwood Fund Raisers

The family of a Brentwood motorcyclist killed April 10, has received $1,857 through the fund-raising efforts of the Brentwood Community Club.

Alan Ghadwick, 35, Central Saanich water works superintendent suffered a fractured skull.

He left a wife and three school-age children.

The club sponsored a Benefit Bingo Night on May 12 with prizes donated by local merchants and raised $550.

A total of $1,664 was donated to the Brentwood Bay Credit Union Fund.

Follow the Birds Is Smelly Affair

Greater Victoria has "the second largest cesspool in British Columbia," provincial Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said Saturday.

He was speaking at a conference organized by the Southern Vancouver Island Liberal Association at the University of Victoria.

Dr. McGeer said Vancouver has the biggest cesspool in the province, but is "no more neglectful than Victoria."

"A government under my leadership would pay 50 per cent of the cost of primary sewage treatment, 75 per cent of secondary treatment and 90 per cent of tertiary treatment.

SMELLY WELCOME

"Follow the birds to Victoria should not be a slogan to attract tourists to Clover Point," he said. "Surely the smell of the sewage would put them off.

"It is a disgrace that the beaches of this beautiful city should be posted, year after year, because they are contaminated with human excrement."

Dr. McGeer said it was a tragedy that the best swimming pool in Victoria—the Gorge—should be unsafe.

As a boy, Dr. McGeer said, he used to swim in the Gorge.

"There is no choice but to clean up all septic tanks, beaches and sewage outfalls."

Dr. McGeer said he admired the courage of Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for Greater Victoria, in continuing to post warning signs about the contaminated beaches.

Dr. McGeer said the B.C. government has given only "token support" to sewage treatment.

"It does no good to order the municipalities to control pollution when they lack the finances to build proper treatment plants," he said.

Commander Demoted For One Little Miss

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — A sharp-eyed instructor detected something decidedly unmilitary about the cadet who marched a little too gracefully in The Citadel's graduation parade.

Upon closer inspection, he found Miss Janet Roggemann, the finance of one of the graduating cadets, inside the grey and white uniform. Miss Roggemann, decked out in a red sash and sword, was the first of her sex to march with the cadets in the 127-year history of the Military Academy.

She was slipped into the long, grey line Saturday by her fiance, cadet Peter A. Brause of Port Washington, N.Y. Brause and another cadet who provided the baggy uniform for Miss Roggemann were prohibited from participating in the commencement exercise and will receive their diplomas later.

The cadet commander of the company which the Hackensack, N.J., girl infiltrated was demoted to private for not checking the ranks more closely.

Mr. Cadieux said the government recognizes it has a commitment to the members of the armed forces. All decisions would take into consideration the effects on these people.

Conservative defence critic J. Angus MacLean immediately lashed the government policy as two-faced, hypocritical, hare-brained and ridiculous.

The more Mr. Cadieux and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp tried to explain it, the more hare-brained and irresponsible it looked, said Mr. MacLean.

The prime minister had said defence policy should flow from foreign policy. But defence changes were being made before the foreign policy review was completed.

Mr. MacLean said his party regards the NATO reduction as a return to isolationism and continentalism. The government apparently intended to withdraw from the European alliance to concentrate on an alliance with the United States—a "reactionary and ill-advised" move.

Jaycees Take Seven Awards At Convention

Victoria's Junior Chamber of Commerce wound up what outgoing president Lorne Whyte called "a fantastic year" by walking away with all the major awards at the 1969 B.C. and Yukon Jaycee convention.

The awards were announced at the convention in Kelowna, which ended Saturday.

Victoria Jaycees were named the outstanding unit and George Robbins was chosen the outstanding Jaycee of the year.

CRITICS SLAM ABM PROJECT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Safeguard anti-missile system has come under broad new criticism from members of both parties as its fateful date with the Senate draws nearer.

Senator Stuart Symington, a Democrat and long-time military supporter, accused the defence department Sunday of saying one thing in public and another in closed congressional committee sessions. One Pentagon chart, he indicated, would end once and for all the controversy over whether Safeguard should be deployed.

The Missouri senator gave no details about the chart, but implied it supports further research rather than deployment. "If that chart were made public," he said, "I believe this argument would be over." He said it had been shown to the Senate armed services committee.

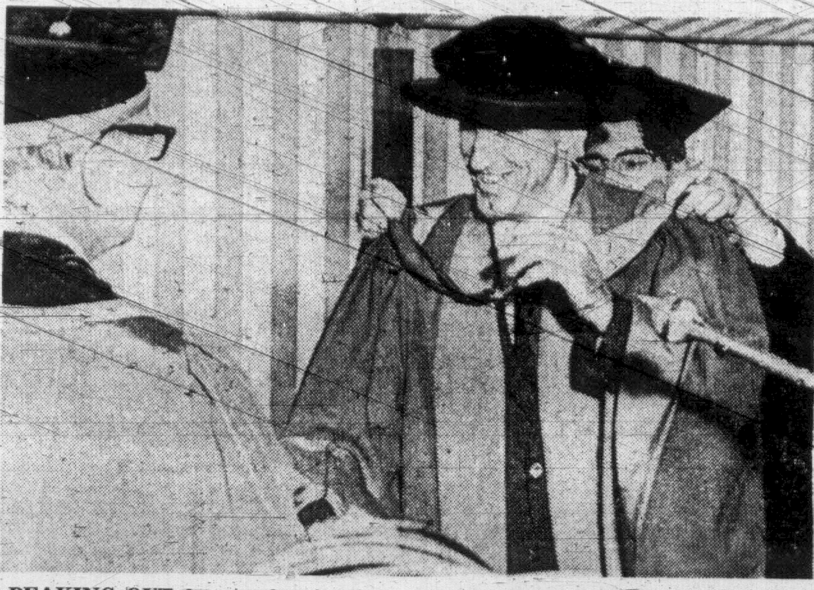
From the Republican side, Senator Charles H. Percy of Illinois said he hopes President Nixon will accept a compromise on its deployment plans. Two missile sites in North Dakota and Montana are scheduled to be the first protected by the Safeguard system.

"I think we're all gratified," he said, "that the administration had the courage to say that the thin anti-missile system, the Sentinel system, was really in effect a fraud and would not accomplish at all what it was intended to."

SEEKS MORATORIUM

He asked for a moratorium on deployment of Soviet and American offensive and defensive weapons in order that arms control talks can begin without either side fearing the other well try to gain an advantage.

Uvic Growth Demands Doubled Facilities



PEAKING OUT from under the rim of his bulky hat, Sir Edmund Hillary shakes hands with Uvic Chancellor Richard Wilson, while registrar Ronald Ferry hangs honorary Doctor of Laws degree about shoulders of the New Zealand mountaineer.

By BOB MITCHELL

During the next three years the University of Victoria will have to double its facilities in order to keep pace with the current rate of growth, acting president Dean R. T. Wallace said Saturday.

He was addressing graduates and guests at the sixth annual convocation ceremony held in a packed Centennial Stadium.

The event was attended by Lieutenant-Governor J. R. Nicholson and Minister of Education Donald Brothers.

"In the next three years alone, if our present rate of expansion continues, we will need to provide some 720,000 square feet of additional space," Dean Wallace said.

"This would mean, in effect, doubling the amount now available."

The acting president pointed out by fall enrolment at Uvic would surpass 5,000 students.

"Unfortunately, the campus has suitable accommodation for only 4,000."

HONORARY DEGREES

Chancellor R. B. Wilson conferred honorary degrees on two distinguished guests. Northrop Frye, Canadian literary critic and professor-at-large at the University of Toronto, and Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mount Everest, both received the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.

The chancellor noted Education Minister Brothers was visiting the Victoria campus for the first time.

"I presume, Mr. Minister, you will be checking up to see what kind of an institution your daughter is attending."

He also paid tribute to Dean Wallace, who will relinquish the presidency in July with the arrival in Victoria of president-elect Dr. Bruce Partridge.

542 DEGREES

Convocation saw the granting of a total of 542 degrees by Chancellor Wilson to graduate and undergraduate students.

Notable among diploma receivers was the name of Frank J. Spellancy of Seattle, a psychology student, and the first to receive a doctoral degree from the university.

Other degrees awarded for the first time included two bachelor of music, five bachelor of fine arts, and three bachelor of arts in art history.

Valedictorian Ian Halkett, a geography student, told the assembly students they have been "fortunate" at Uvic in that they have had an administration sympathetic toward the need for change.

He said student unrest, but not student violence, is a constructive means of making the education system adapt to new needs.

"Student unrest is not a problem—it is the beginning of a solution.

"It means education can no longer mean plugging of information into students."

Anti-War Body Advances Plan

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Forty-five anti-war legislators—all but one Democratic—Sunday proposed a program to halt what they said was the increasing militarization of American life.

The thrust of their 61-page report was this: an unchecked complex, led by militarized civilians in the executive branch and supported by an acquiescent and uninformed Congress, is dominating national priorities.

This process could be reversed, the legislators said, by the creation of new watchdog groups, both inside and outside Congress, to consider military programs from a fresh perspective.

The signers called themselves the "Congressional Conference on the Military Budget and National Priorities." Their report came out of a meeting held here last March.

Nine senators, including William B. Saxbe (R—Ohio), were listed as adherents of the report. The others, Democrats, were J. William Fulbright (Ark.), Harold E. Hughes (Iowa), George S. McGovern (S.D.), Walter F. Mondale (Minn.), Gaylord Nelson (Wis.), Joseph D. Tydings (Md.), Harrison A. Williams (N.J.) and Stephen M. Young (Ohio).

The 36 representatives who signed, all Democrats, came largely from New York and California.

Their degree of attachment to the document is unclear. It contains an insert saying: "Although the recommendations of the conference generally express our views, as sponsors we do not necessarily adopt as our own each and every statement and conclusion stated in this report."

MILITARIZATION PEAK

Despite the group's overwhelming Democratic makeup, it says bluntly that the military problem reached a new dimension after the John F. Kennedy administration came to power in 1961. "The harsh fact is that military considerations today play a greater role in determining American policy than at any time in our national history."

The report traces two features of recent Democratic regimes that have contributed to this end. One is the integration of the defence department under Secretary Robert S. McNamara which destroyed the countervailing power of past rivalries between services and provided much more effective support for every program the military wants. The other was the adoption of what is viewed as a mindless Keyesianism that regarded every public outlay as equally useful, whether it was spent on a bomb or a school.

"We should be clear on one point," the report says. "It is not the uniformed military which has created the present situation, but the civilian leadership and the institutions they have created to centralize and expand the performance of national security functions."

Church Meet Condemns ABM Sites

MOOSE JAW (CP) — A resolution condemming planned construction of two anti-ballistic missile sites by the United States near the Canadian border was passed Saturday by the Saskatchewan conference of the United Church of Canada.

The decision announced two months ago by the U.S. government was described as a "threat to world peace." The resolution said ABM sites add to the "mad momentum" of the arms race and the $400 million needed to build the sites "could be better used for aid to underdeveloped countries."

The conference, which ended Sunday, was attended by about 450 delegates from Saskatchewan presbyteries.

The provincial church group said it would ask the federal government not to take part in the ABM program and would inform the U.S. that "we deplore their decision . . ." The delegates also decided to make their stand known to the U.S. Council of Churches.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S Medal, awarded annually to the most outstanding arts and sciences students in the University of Victoria graduating class, was won this year by first-class honors mathematics student John Phillips, of Victoria. Uvic Chancellor Richard Wilson makes the presentation.

Don't Fire Activists Meet Warned

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Albert Trueman, chancellor of the University of Western Ontario, said Saturday universities should not dischage faculty and students who urge reform and engage in what may be called political activity.

"I have heard businessmen say 'why don't the universities simply fire some of these troublesome faculty members and expel troublesome students'," he told delegates at the university's annual business conference which ended Saturday.

But this "solution of the problem only creates a worse problem because it antagonizes the majority of faculty and students, the very people whom you don't want to antagonize."

Dr. Trueman suggested businessmen, university administrators and the public try to work effectively with the so-called moderate and rational group of students.

He described the New Left as loud, vociferous and often quite irrational.

Wild Street Rampage Ends Church Bazaar

NEW YORK (AP) — Groups of Negro and Puerto Rican youths smashed store windows, overturned garbage cans and telephone booths, and pelted police and firemen with bricks Sunday night after an incident at a church-sponsored street bazaar in the south Bronx.

Police Commissioner Howard Leary, who went to the scene with hundreds of police reinforcements, called it "a small neighborhood incident started by young teen-agers." About 700 youths were in the mob.

Four policemen were sent to hospital with injuries.

Five teen-agers were arrested, including a black youth whose fight with a patrolman touched off the violence.

There were no reports of looting.

Firemen said 13 false alarms were turned in and three fire department vehicles were damaged. A police radio car also was damaged.

Police said the violence began after a patrolman attempted to arrest an unruly youth at the street festival. The youth kicked him, and bystanders began to throw bricks and other objects when police subdued the youth.

Two in the Race

TWO French voters out of five want M. Georges Pompidou to succeed General de Gaulle as president of France. Only 23 per cent, according to yesterday's balloting, want the acting president, Mr. Alain Poher, to continue. Almost as many —21 per cent—are prepared to see Communist M. Jacques Duclos in the presidency. The remainder distributed their votes among the rest of the seven candidates, all of leftist persuasions.

The big question which hangs over France today, and will for the next two weeks, is how much of the leftist support will go to M. Poher to enable him to defeat Mr. Pompidou in the run-off balloting. M. Pompidou needs only another 6 per cent of yesterday's total to reach the necessary 50 per cent; M. Poher must make up nearly 30 per cent. An effective Communist boycott of the polls June 15 would very probably eliminate him.

Yesterday's results were largely as predicted by popular polls and expert forecasts, but France's friends in the West have silently hoped that M. Poher will succeed the retired leader who did so much to restore the post-war position of France but trod on so many international toes in doing so. M. Pompidou, once Premier of France and regarded as the man most likely to carry on the Gaullist policies even though with some more liberal tendencies, represents, for many French and non-French people, a continuation of some of the features of Gaullist leadership which were most criticized.

M. Poher appears at present to carry the greatest likelihood of co-operation with the West, with no personal attachments to the leftist elements which now are expected to give him their support. For 30 years he has held elective or appointed positions in French politics, and for 24 years has been mayor of Ablon-sur-Seine. As acting president, since General de Gaulle's departure a month ago, he has instituted minor reforms and promised major ones designed to negate some of the less desirable effects of Gaullist policy.

But M. Pompidou also has an impressive career in the service of France, and a record as a middle-ground man that appeals to many Frenchmen. And he, too, promises to ease some of the more extreme impacts of Gaullist policies as they affected France's allies.

The next two weeks will see some active campaigning for the sudden-death decision of the voters. But it seems clear that whichever one is elected will be guided by events much more than General de Gaulle ever was, for the General sought always to rise superior to events—to cause them rather than be caused.

For eleven years France has followed the leadership of a man who ruled autocratically even though with much public affection, and changed the laws or constitutional provisions where these restricted his freedom of political manoeuvreability. Now a lesser individualist will succeed him, and France may have to replace with self-discipline the strong guidelines formerly imposed by a strong man.

Foothills and Peaks

NO STUDENT OR GUEST WHO heard the Convocation Address delivered by Sir Edmund Hillary at the Centennial Stadium on Saturday could have failed to be moved by its simple eloquence, its honesty and its warm humanity. On receiving the degree of doctor of laws from the University of Victoria, Sir Edmund said that he would not attempt to deliver a learned discourse, but he then proceeded to give a talk which for sincerity and punch will rarely be matched on such occasions.

The assembled graduates could have learned much from the event, for they experienced not only good advice wittily and wisely presented, but they also saw before them a man of real calibre whose personal qualities of courage, compassion and rugged self-reliance came through in unmistakable measure.

The gist of the words of the man who first climbed the world's highest mountain was that many Everests still remain to be climbed, but that they do not necessarily lie in the earth's difficult terrain or in space—they lie in the field of human need. He sought to dispel the concept of the "masses of Asia" and replace it with a picture of villages, families, individual human beings, who equal or excel us in the basic human qualities even though their inescapable economic standards deprive them of formal education, medical aid and the many comforts of our technological civilization.

These people Sir Edmund sees as a challenge to our humanity, to our worth as human beings. He has answered that challenge himself with many contributions to the village people of the Himalaya region in the way of schools and medical care. He left the challenge with each graduate student with the exhortation to "give a thought" to our fellowman in less fortunate parts of the world — or perhaps something more than a thought.

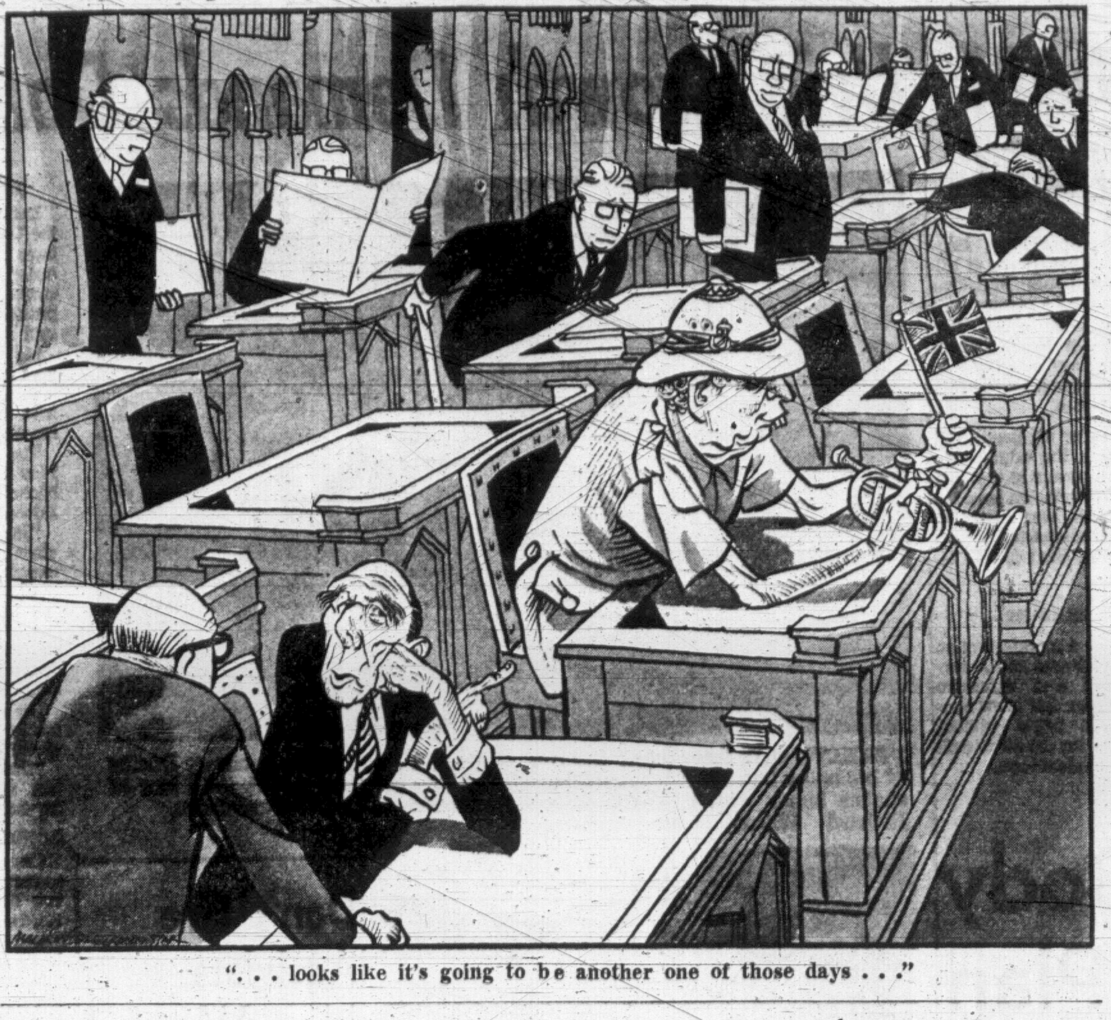
In conferring a degree on Sir Edmund Hillary, the University sought to do him honor, and it honored itself in the process. That wish could be given more tangible form if the graduating class, or the student body, or the Alumni Association were to found, perhaps, a Sir Edmund Hillary Fund for humanitarian assistance to some educational objective in Asia which he, from his personal experience, could readily designate. There are many unclimbed mountains, as the speaker said, but they need not be interposed between man and man.

Progress on Pollution

PREMIER BENNETT'S RECENT light-hearted assumption that he would not have to enforce his decision to close down British Columbia industrial concerns for failure to meet anti-pollution standards was thrown into question by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis' statement to a Victoria audience last week. The Premier, at the time he spoke, appeared to take it for granted that the firms would meet the standards. Mr. Davis named some whose effluent has been blamed for killing fish.

Certain mills, the fisheries minister indicated, have been, or are being, brought to higher efficiency in pollution control and may be expected to overcome past deficiencies. In some older mills, improvements would be highly expensive. He mentioned the sum of $10 million.

A difference of opinion may be expected between federal and provincial authorities on tolerable levels of pollution. But public sentiment can be anticipated in support of strict standards. The position of offending mills is made less tenable, moreover, by the example of Weyerhauser at Kamloops and MacMillan Bloedel at the head of the Alberni Canal. These companies have been praised by the fisheries minister for the steps they have taken to reduce pollutants discharged into the water. If they can do it, others can follow suit. On the basis of the Davis statement the issue now lies with the provincial government.



". . . looks like it's going to be another one of those days . . ."

Making a Bogeyman of an Ombudsman

Western

WHILE Robert Stanfield in Edmonton was pleading for moderation, John Diefenbaker in Parliament was subjecting the languages bill to an uncompromising and spectacular attack. This is virtually open revolt, damaging to the Conservatives becase it seems bound to destroy their credibility in much of the country. It puts in jeopardy not merely Mr. Stanfield's leadership but all the patient and constructive effort which has been directed in the past year towards the reunification of a long divided party.

Mr. Diefenbaker took particular exception to the powers accorded by the bill to the commissioner of official language for Canada. He talked about the star chamber.

"What dictator," he demanded, "could ask for more than these powers which are being sought from the Parliament of the people?" He spoke of "coercion and intimidation which can be practised by this man."

He warned of "witch hunts," of powers to investigate Parliament. "Let us get ready," he taunted, "to make a salaam to this almighty voice we are setting up in this legislaton."

Such an attack, although plainly extreme, may derive a certain plausibility from the disposition of the government to fortify itself with ever greater powers.

The latest of many instances which might be cited is the new regional development bill, published last week.

This will accord unprecedented discretion to Mr. Marchand and his officials in the dispersal of large sums for purposes of development. One might almost think that we are travelling to an earlier age of politics when it was customary to make whole blocks of constituencies safe for government by judicious investments.

There is a very strong case for close scrutiny of the powers accorded by any bill and one would expect such careful examination when the present measure is in committee. Very probably this bill can stand improvement; most legislation can. But Mr. Diefenbaker's obvious purpose was to arouse a general opposition; to persuade as many Conservatives as possible to ignore Mr. Stanfield by voting no to the principle of the bill.

The fallacy of the whole argument, as developed by the former prime minister, is that the powers accorded the commissioner are intended not to enlarge the latitude of government action but to check government. One may agree or disagree with the measure but it does not fit the pattern of much contemporary legislation. The commissioner's duty is to protect the language rights of citizens; he is to be an ombudsman restricted to a particular field.

Mr. Diefenbaker denies this, finding the powers unprecedented. But in fact they are already possessed by other officials. The director of investigation under the restrictive trade practices legislation and — despite Mr. Diefenbaker's assertions — the auditor-general.

For example, Mr. Diefenbaker fears that in the intervals between sessions of Parliament, the secretary of state (allegedly, the real power behind the commissioner) could remove him and appoint a substitute for a period of six months. Thus the commissioner would not be truly independent but might be used by government for its own dark purposes.

In fact, however, an acting auditor-general may be named in similar circumstances and no one in his right mind would accuse the auditor-general of subservience to government.

It seems true that the commissioner will have greater powers in the appointment of staff. But Mr. Diefenbaker should welcome this and demand similar treatment for the auditor-general who badly needs them and has repeatedly said so.

The commissioner may launch into "the widest of investigations" involving any government department or agency. How about the auditor-general? He has "free access at all convenient times to all files, documents and other records relative to the accounts of every department" and "he is also entitled to require and receive from members of the public service such information, reports and explanations as he may deem necessary for the proper performance of his duties." He also scrutinizes the agencies. Most taxpayers will doubtless agree that this is a very good thing.

Much the same may be said about the combines director. In fact, afflicted combines used to howl about it at the top of their lungs.

Power to summon witnesses and to compel evidence on oath. Yes indeed. The auditor-general also, having the powers of a commissioner under the Inquiries Act, "may examine any person on oath on any matter pertaining to any account subject to audit by him". This covers a great deal of territory.

Mr. Diefenbaker is evidently persuaded that the new commissioner, on the instigation of government, will engage in systematic harrying of citizens. Any such would be in government departments or agencies. Ministers very much dislike having trouble in their departments and would have no conceivable interest in prodding the commissioner to cause them additional embarrassment.

What will the commissioner do as the result of his investigations? He will not, like the combines director, prepare a case for prosecution. What he will do is to make a report to the government, and also to Parliament, so that the matter complained of may be corrected. This is roughly what an ombudsman does in Scandinavia, although he may in fact petition Parliament. But there is nothing in the bill which would accord him any independent power to punish or mete out justice.

To sum up, the evident purpose of Mr. Diefenbaker's attack was to frighten Parliament by placing extreme interpretations on the various clauses of the bill affecting the language commissioner. Evidently he did arouse the apprehensions of some Conservatives. In the process he made things very much more difficult for his leader who at Edmonton warned of dangers to the country and expressed regret "that some westerners seem to be getting angry for the wrong reasons."

Resentful High Risers

Many of us who live in high-rise apartment blocks are thoroughly disgusted at Mr. McCrossan's remarks reported in your issue of May 28.

According to your article Mr. McCrossan is reported to have said that Victoria "is crucifying" its young people, and that "Victoria pays for the privilege of bringing more and more non-working retired folk to face boredom and premature senility in those great grey coffins we call high-rises."

Many of us who live in high-rise apartments put in a life of very hard work before retiring. We are not bored — far from it — and we have the temerity to believe that we are not suffering from premature senility.

We earnestly hope that Mr. McCrossan and his wife will each live to a ripe old age, and that they will find it more beneficial and desirable to live in a high-rise apartment, rather than have the work and worry of keeping a house and garden in order. — Mayne Reid, QC, Rudyard Kipling Apt.

Bible and Morals

Being a mother, and grandmother of 80 years and having spent over 50 in the city of Victoria, I am voicing despair and utter dismay on learning that its ages-old and its outdated Bible reading and its what is called — "Reciting the Lord's Prayer"—are to be continued in our present-day public schools.

Our teachers have now more subjects to study and to teach than ever before, and now one that belongs to the 19th century is being continued. If Bible reading made bad children good, our students should be models of virtue and perfection by now. The aged notion that religion (of any brand) improved a person's morals disappeared on its own a long time ago. History's verdict on all religions is proof enough for any modern thinkers to be convinced that a person's morals are not affected by his religion.—(Mrs.) Vera Pepper, Apt. 5, 900 Park Boulevard, Victoria.

Deaf Games

May I draw the attention of your subscribers to the fund drive to send a Canadian team to the World Games for the Deaf to be held at Belgrade, Yugoslavia in August.

Let me say that four years ago 32 Canadian athletes travelled to Washington, D.C., to take part in their first "Deaf Olympics" and won four gold and four bronze medals.

I trust a good number of your subscribers can help by making personal donations towards the fund to assist these athletes from Vancouver, Edmonton and Winnipeg. They may send cheques payable to the Federation of the Silent Sports of Canada and send them to 215 East 18th Ave., Vancouver 10, B.C. Donations will be tax deductible. — Western Canada Assoc. of the Deaf, L. E. Grant, president.

CONTAMINATED

The grievances are on the side of the universities and colleges — work disrupted, property defaced, libraries damaged, scholars manhandled, their research papers burned, the thought and speech of everyone contaminated and debased. These are offences that cannot be condoned as a lark or accepted as a legal form of free expression.

Hamburger Hill—'Great' Pointless Victory

By Frank Mankiewicz and Tom Braden
From Washington

SPEAKING on the radio during the campaign of 1968, candidate Richard Nixon said he was against escalating the war in Vietnam. "Rather than military escalation," he said, what is now required "is a dramatic escalation of our efforts on the economic, political, diplomatic and psychological fronts." That was before anybody ever heard of Hamburger Hill.

The hill was called Ap Via in the A Shau Valley of Vietnam. It was the soldiers who renamed it Hamburger Hill. It was a "meat grinder," they said. Ten times, Lt.-Col. Weldon Honeycutt, the battalion commander who bore the code name Black Jack, sent his men up the hill. "That Black Jack won't stop until he kills every damned one of us!" said one of the troopers.

But on the eleventh try, the hill was secured. It was then that political warfare began.

May 20—"A great victory by a gutty bunch of guys," said Maj.-Gen. Melvin Zais, the division commander. Casualties on the hill are listed at 43 dead and 290 wounded.

'Senseless, Irresponsible'

May 20—The attack on Hamburger Hill was described by Sen. Edward Kennedy (D—Mass.) as both "senseless and irresponsible." "American boys are too valuable to be sacrificed for a false sense of military pride," he said. He referred to the capture "of hills and positions that have no relation to the end of the conflict."

May 20—Sen. Hugh Scott (R—Pa.), answering Kennedy, referred to Little Round Top and Cemetery Ridge in the Civil War. "If these hills had not been fought for with the blood of American soldiers, the entire outcome of that war might have been different." Sen. Kennedy said he didn't think Ap Via was in any way like Little Round Top or Cemetery Ridge.

May 21—Gen. Zais defended the action. "That's where the enemy was," he said, "and that's where I attacked him. If I find him on any other hill in the A Shau, I assure you I'll attack him. You can't go into the A Shau and leave the hills alone because then you're on the bottom of the floor of the valley and the enemy is on the hill and he won't leave you alone." Casualties on Hamburger Hill are now listed at 46 dead, 308 wounded.

May 23—Presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler held a White House briefing to say that increased enemy activity was the cause of higher U.S. casualty rates. "There has been no increase on our part in terms of military action in Vietnam," he said. Hamburger Hill casualties are now listed at 50 dead, 410 wounded.

May 25—As Sens. Mike Mansfield (D—Mont.) and George McGovern (D—S.D.) agreed with Kennedy, Secretary of Defence Melvin Laird said that our policy was "maximum pressure on the enemy consistent with the lowest possible casualties." The Hamburger Hill dead are now listed as "at least 50."

May 26—"A White House spokesman" (later identified as Henry Kissinger) produced charts and graphs at an extraordinary briefing to show that U.S. restraint would not reduce casualties. The charts, unused at least in public since the days of Walt Rostow and Robert Komer, purported to show that while the enemy's offensives tend to increase our casualties, our offensives do not. By now, Hamburger Hill casualties are listed at 84 dead, 480 wounded.

'Bring War Closer to End'

May 26—Sen. John Tower (R—Tex.) rebuked Sen. Kennedy: "By any objective military standard, the battle for Hamburger Hill was a success for our side. Winning a battle in the strategic A Shau Valley will bring the war closer to an end."

May 27—Hubert Humphrey said he thought Kennedy's criticism was "picking gnats off of nits."

May 28—U.S. troops began the evacuation of Hamburger Hill and moved their "reconnaissance-in-force" mission along the floor of the valley. With their departure went the only rationale for taking the hill in the first place. Said a spokesman for the U.S. command, "There's no tactical reason to stay there."

The administration had left the high ground, in the A Shau—and in Washington.

IN LATIN AMERICA

Military Pooh Bahs Gain U.S. Favor

By DOM BONAFEDE
The Nation

(Mr. Bonafede, former chief Latin American correspondent for Newsweek magazine in Rio de Janeiro, is a member of the Washington Post editorial staff).

Quietly, almost without notice, the United States has once again become entangled in a Latin American dilemma resulting from its own meandering policies in inter-American affairs.

In this instance, the diplomatic blunder concerns Brazil, the largest, richest and most potent of the Latin American countries, where the government of President Artur da Costa e Silva last December 13 made official the nation's military dictatorship.

Costa e Silva signed the Fifth Institutional Act, a decree without judicial appeal, which declared a state of siege, closed Congress and imposed press censorship.

This was accompanied by a police roundup which resulted in the imprisonment of some 200 oppositionists.

In supplementary action, the President deprived the Brazilians of their last vestige of political and individual rights by purging the Supreme Court, recessing several state legislatures and suspending the political privileges of more than two score members of Congress, adding them to the estimated 600 political figures who earlier had been suspended.

The 66-year-old president had clearly been driven to invoking these repressive measures by a military clique that was enraged by a year-long series of anti-government demonstrations led by students, artists, priests and intellectuals.

Thus, within five years after the generals and colonels had usurped the government, the tight military state envisioned by the hard liners became a fact.

No one at the State Department is likely to issue a note of reminder on the subject, but the sad truth is that in 1964 the United States acted as counsel and banker to the armed forces when they deposed Joao Goulart, a constitutional President but an ineffectual administrator who, in the view of the duennas in uniform, was flirting dangerously with the international Left.

Normal political institutions were scrapped and upon the wreckage was built a militaristic government headed by Gen. Humberto Castelo Branco, a dour, primly proper career officer who looked on the military as the rightful repository of the country's welfare.

Inevitably, the "reign of the generals" was established in the name of anti-communism, a hackneyed ploy of Latin American military czars.

The demise of the last semblance of democracy in Brazil was a matter of disappointment, dismay and embarrassment to Washington, as in a large measure it was attributable to a major U.S. policy blunder which might well have as great an impact on inter-American affairs as the emergence of Castroism did at the opposite end of the ideological scale.

Because of its geographic proximity, Marxist principles and theatrical conception, Castro's Cuba evokes an emotional response in Americans. But in discussing Brazil one should keep in mind that it is larger than the continental United States, has a population of almost 90 million (compared to 8 million in Cuba), is the fifth biggest country in the world and possesses untapped natural resources beyond estimation.

Brazil Is Political Axis

Politically, it is the axis on which all of Latin America pivots. It is hardly coincidence that once the military became solidly ensconced in Brazil their inspired counterparts in Argentina, Peru and Panama took control in those countries.

At present, about three-fourths of Latin America's population is ruled by military pooh bahs, which is certainly no testament to the effectiveness of the Alliance for Progress, whose original goal under President Kennedy was increased social and political liberalism.

U.S. good offices in Brazil in 1964 were justified on the ground that firm measures were needed to rescue the country from a drifting malaise, which it was contended could lead to a Communist take-over. (It is doubtful, however, that there were then 25,000 hard-core Communists in Brazil.)

Furthermore, the military interdiction was billed as a brief unpleasantness before returning the nation to an undefined form of representative government.

(It should be recalled that this occurred only a few months after Lyndon Johnson became President. The Panama flag riots had already created a trying Latin American crisis and the State Department's Office of Inter-American Affairs was uncertain as to its direction under the new President.)

Once committed, the United States was compelled to continue its role as underwriter of the Brazilian military. Consequently, Washington poured aid into Brazil amounting to a quarter billion dollars annually, greater than any other nonwar recipient except India.

Cops Teach Techniques

The U.S. mission in Brazil bloomed into one of the biggest overseas complexes in the world, encompassing two embassies (one in Rio de Janeiro and the other in Brasilia), and more than 900 American personnel, including 415 AID employees and 200 members of the military mission, 26 of whom were listed as "defence attaches." In addition, there were 635 Peace Corpsmen and 1,005 Brazilians on the U.S. payroll at nearly $12 million a year.

Included under AID is a $750,000 public safety program in which sixteen former U.S. police officers teach Brazilian cops modern police techniques.

It is a question just how this fits in with U.S. aims to promote social-economic-political development.

Former U.S. Ambassador John W. Tuthill asked in a moment of exasperation, "What has police training to do with national development?"

At the height of the student protests in the spring of 1968, Guanabara state police displayed an indiscriminate use of force against demonstrators and innocent bystanders that reflected little credit on the U.S. public safety program.

In one disgraceful incident, mounted troops with flaying swords clamored up the steps of Candelaria Church in downtown Rio de Janeiro to disperse a peaceful throng of mourners honoring a student martyr.

The answer to Tuthill's question is that police training has precious little to do with national development, but is of considerable help to a regime which relies on force and fear to perpetuate itself.

Washington's motives these days are distrusted even when they are most selfless as, for example, the multi-million-dollar U.S. project to improve higher education in Brazil. Perhaps no other area in Brazilian society is in more need of reform.

As characterized by Jornal do Brasil, the education system is "worm-eaten, obsolete and inept." (Yet efforts by the United States to help correct the system have been rebuffed by students, professors and government officials with charges that the United States is seeking to "implant American thought on the minds of Brazilian youths."

In an apparent effort to mitigate its former dalliance with the Brazilian military, the State Department through its spokesmen in Washington and Rio de Janeiro insists on referring to the government as "military dominated" or "military oriented".

This bit of semantic fakery is then repeated by U.S. correspondents. In a singular affectation of understatement, The New York Times in its January 20 economic survey of the Americas referred to the broad-based, anti-government clamor against the Costa e Silva regime as "sniping."

Other observers find it comforting to say the military government is "a dictatorship but not a tyranny," as though it were really possible to have one without the other.

U.S. in Advisory Role

No matter how one categorizes the Costa e Silva government, the fact remains that the United States has played too much of an operational and advisory role over too wide a sector of Brazilian affairs.

This has produced an anti-American backlash even among the military which Washington propped up and helped put in office.

Also the U.S. identification with the ruling military clique and the American penchant for material exhibitionism alienated the mass of Brazilians, the very people we are hoping to win over.

The problem facing the United States is how to divorce itself gracefully from continued identification with the Brazilian military government.

The Nixon administration can, of course, drastically slash the U.S. aid program, and suspend it altogether should the Costa e Silva regime go ahead with a proposal by the hard liners to purchase French Mirage jet fighters.

As a palliative this has proved ineffective in the past and is unlikely to be more useful in the future, yet it serves the vital function of announcing to the world our disaffection with repressive military dictatorships.

COSTA e SILVA

GOULART

The point could further be emphasized by making good announced plans to diminish the U.S. mission and by recalling the outsized U.S. military contingent.

The latter action would undoubtedly be opposed by the Pentagon which, as Arthur Schlesinger Jr. once said, seems to have an "incestuous" relationship with Latin American military establishments.

'Necessary to Security'

The Pentagon assuredly would base its opposition on the ground that Latin American military resources are necessary to the security of the South Atlantic, a highly dubious contention considering the size, training and obsolescence of those resources.

Above all, if it wants to give encouragement to the muffled voices of democracy in Latin America, the United States must make known its disenchantment with Brazil's dictatorial military regime.

For Washington to wring its hands and express the wan hope that Brazil's military cabal will relax its repression—as the state department did at the time of the December crackdown—is the height of folly. It merely compounds the original mistake of 1964.

Trudeau Cabinet: An Appraisal

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

Fisher

Crowe

No cabinet can be a glittering constellation when it is in orbit with a bright sun like Pierre Trudeau. But an appraisal of it can be fairly made after 13 months, given the continuity this one has had.

The sketches which follow are one pair's opinion. Of course, our knowledge of roles within the privacy of the Cabinet is weak.

The first estimate we should get out of the way is the one based on the question: "Has the man's reputation gone up or down since the PM formed this Cabinet?" Here are our groupings: Up: Basford, Mackasey, Munro, Pepin, Jamieson, and Turner. Steady: Cadieux, Macdonald, Davis, Pelletier, Lang, Andras. Down: Kierans, MacEachen, Sharp, Richardson, Martin, Marchand, Olson, Chretien, and Benson. No Visibility: Dube, Cote, Drury, Greene, Laing, McIlraith.

Here are the capsule summaries, in order of protocol.

Paul Martin, Senate leader: Still a force with older party regulars; is not doing well with the Senators themselves.

Mitchell Sharp, External Affairs: over-shadowed by PM; stature with MPs of all parties much diminished by reputation for trimming and equivocation; this opinion firmed up over his withdrawal from leadership; Toronto Liberal MPs never refer to him in any positive way—an excellent gauge of weakness.

George McIlraith, Solicitor General: Much disappointed at losing Public Works, put off balance by PM's wry humor in referring to him last fall; still has grip on Ottawa patronage and recognized with the party as shrewd, old-fashioned and very dependable.

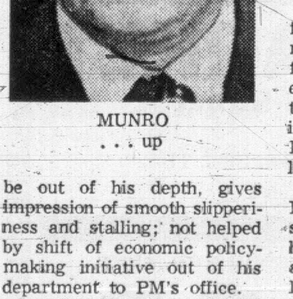
Arthur Laing, Public Works: Minds his store and says his piece; still No. 1 minister in B.C. over Basford and Davis; has better relationship with MPs and senior officials than most ministers.

Allan MacEachen, Manpower and Immigration: Most puzzling of all ministers; seems to be brooding, more cautious than ever: Made a hash out of issue of draft dodgers and deserters; the Manpower side of department doesn't seem to be going anywhere, especially in dealing with emerging issue of jobs for the well-educated youth.

Ponderous Thinker

C. M. Drury, president of Treasury Board: Ponderous in mind and inarticulate in public; hard worker and experienced administrator; represents even more than Sharp a continuity with the Liberal golden age.

Edgar Benson, Finance: A growing apprehension, in and out of the party, that he may be out of his depth, gives impression of smooth slipperiness and stalling; not helped by shift of economic policy-making initiative out of his department to PM's office.



MUNRO
. . . up

Leo Cadieux, Defence: Quiet, courteous, fair-minded man who knows his department very well; hasn't the force of personality to influence either public opinion or the Commons but has much more character and understanding than he has been usually granted.

Jean-Luc Pepin, Industry, Trade and Commerce: Terribly industrious and department-centred, popular, charming, and fair; probably the best unexploited talent [illegible] Cabinet as a major figure capable of impressing people generally or the major economic interest groups which swing around his area of responsibility.

Jean Marchand, Regional Economic Expansion: An odd case of a man who is progressively appreciated as a likeable, decent person but taken less and less seriously as an important minister.

Joe Greene, Energy, Mines and Resources: Immensely likeable but seems spent after illness; most of future policy development in department (oil, power, water) have gone to Otto Lang.

Jean-Pierre Cote, National Revenue: Another illness victim; quiet, personable, non-controversial and almost out of sight.

Busy and Happy

John Turner, Justice: Busy and happy he's in field now which doesn't test his social and economic conscience; has and will keep initiatives started by PM in department going and should become most respected by legal community.

Jean Chretien: Indian Affairs and Northern Development; inherited two subject fields which have ruined equanimity and esteem of better men; too much under the influence of officials who have long records of adjusting too late to the problems.

Bryce Mackasey, Labor: Flash success with labor and strike problems have made him most colorful minster, after PM; so far the most liked and respected minister of labor since Mackenzie King — among trade unionists; real challenge to come in '70 with substantial legislative program.

Donald Macdonald, President Privy Council: Doing well as House leader, mastering all aspects of job and keeping himself down below ready guns of opposition; increasing respect for him apparent among Liberal MPs.

John Munro, National Health and Welfare: Busiest of busy ministers; driving, stubborn, determined, and disorganized; makes the most public speeches and has new policy lines out in a dozen directions.

Gerard Pelletier, Secretary of State: Hasn't caught on with English-speaking politicians; doing a careful, thorough job with definite objectives in mind; has more weight, even than Marchand, because of his long association with PM.

Jack Davis, Fisheries and Forestry: Cool, intelligent, rather lonely man doing excellent job in areas long without leadership.

Bud Olson, Agriculture: Hasn't really jelled in the west, perhaps because he's a turncoat, perhaps because government hasn't the money to give him policy initiatives.

Jean-Eudes Dube, Veterans Affairs: Almost invisible but held in no disrespect.

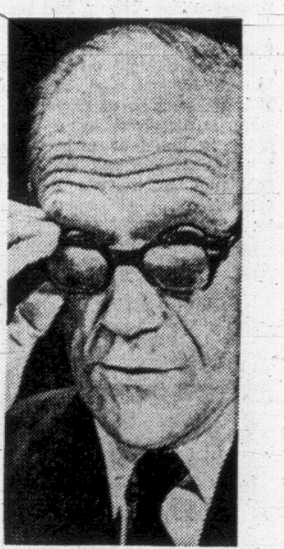
Ron Basford, Consumer and Corporate Affairs: Tough, dedetermined, and, saving a touch of impetuousness, shrewd; rates with Macdonald as minister from English Canada most likely to come on and on.

Folksy and Gabby

Don Jamieson, Transport; A counterpart to Pepin as potentially a very popular minister becuse of adroitness, folksiness, and gift of gab.

Eric Kierans, Communications: Has had a dreadful initiation; only insouciant cheerfulness to buoy him up after boobs and extravagances all around.

Bob Andras, Housing: The heir to Paul Hellyer's frustrations is likely to do as well or better if he gets the time and some money.



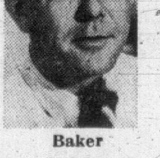
SHARP
. . . down

James Richardson, Supply and Serices: A decent sprig of wealth; clearly without potential as major politician.

Otto Lang, Energy: Rather distant and cool academic, with good brain and lots of energy, not a good, but a better bet, than Olson and Richardson to be the big man for the party on the prairies.

You Can't Be Rich Without a Lawyer

By RUSSELL BAKER
New York Times



Baker

The rich are different from you and me, F. Scott Fitzgerald said. They have more money, Ernest Hemingway replied, and there the conversation stopped. As someone might have pointed out, there is another important distinction. They also have lawyers.

There are plenty of rich men who have no yachts and others who have no Picassos. Many of the rich have no winter homes in the South and there are many with no summer homes in the North. Many more have no private jets of their own, and a surprising number do not even have a chalet in the Alps. Every last one of them, however, has a lawyer.

Now, someone worth several million dollars will stand and say, "You are wrong, for I have no lawyer." He will be exposing his ignorance. He may be worth several millions, but he is not rich.

It is impossible to be rich without having a lawyer, no matter how much money you have. Having a lawyer is the very essence of richness.

●

Access to the law is, in fact, one of the measures by which the present class structure of the United States may be defined.

The man who has a lawyer working for him full time, year in and year out, is rich and, almost certainly, bound to get richer.

The man who can retain a lawyer to look after his quarrel with a neighbor qualifies as upper middle class. If he concludes that it is cheaper to let the neighbor have his way, he is middle-middle-class.

If he thinks he can represent himself better than any lawyer can, he is lower-middle-class and likely to become, in financial terms at least, lower-lower-middle-class before he leaves court. If he automatically assumes that he has no right to a lawyer, he is lower class.

What we have here is a class structure defined by degree of access to the law. The controversy about the Warren Court comes into better historical perspective once we understand that it is a controversy about who shall enjoy access to the law.

In this sense, the Warren Court was an agent for changing a class structure we had come to take for granted as the natural order of things.

●

In its concern for defendants' rights in criminal cases, it asserted that the lower class was entitled to just as much finicky attention to legal nicety as the biggest corporation in antitrust proceedings.

It had been recognized for generations that American law was such that it was rarer to see a rich man hanged than to see one pass through the eye of a needle.

Americans assumed without much cavil that those entitled to full access to the law would naturally get off more lightly than those with no access at all.

When the Warren Court asserted the right of full access for all, however, there was a cry to dismantle it. This, President Nixon has apparently begun to do, for better or for worse.

●

What he is responding to is a public demand for preservation of the old class system. The disenfranchised, who found a voice in the Warren Court, will apparently have to look elsewhere for a lawyer.

"This," politicians are fond of saying "is a government of laws, not of men." The trick about living under a government of laws is that you had better have a lawyer if you do not want to be left out.

The rich have lawyers, which explains not only why they are rarely ever left out but also why they usually get richer.

That is fair enough, if we assume that everyone is entitled to full benefit of the law. Oddly, however, this assumption is not generally made.

We pay lip service at least to the idea that everyone, regardless of means, is entitled to some measure of medical care.

The proposition that everyone is also entitled to a measure of legal care, does not go down quite so easily.

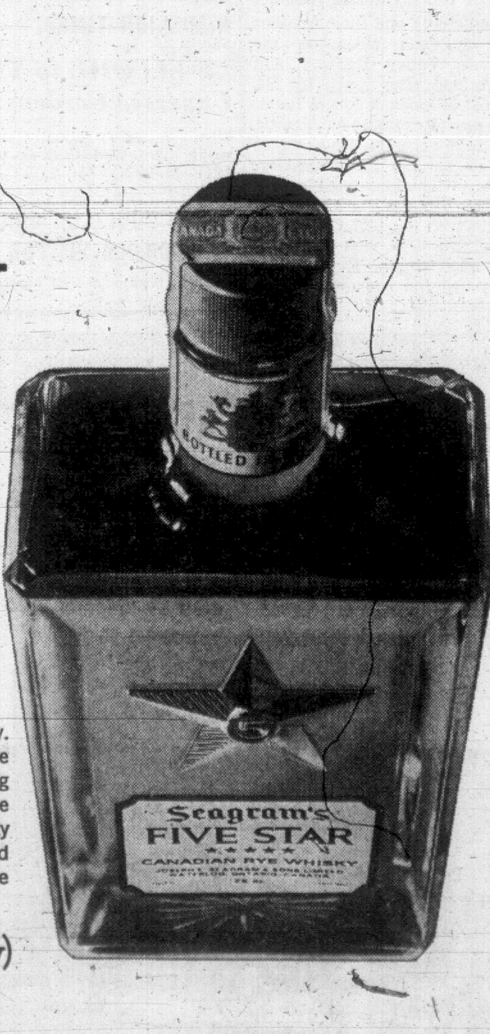
There is widespread suspicion that excessive delicacy about according to the lower classes the full benefit of law has caused a breakdown in "law and order."

People who think this way are arguing, in effect, that those without access to the law deserve to be short-changed for the general welfare, that too much law can be a bad thing if it goes beyond the better class of people.

●

And so, they yearn for the restoration of the old legal class structure.

It is a structure that gives the lawyer a split personality. In one group he is a prosecutor crying for your head; in another, a guardian leading you gently by the hand to the splendor of a new tax shelter.



No other Canadian Whisky has become a best-seller as quickly as Seagram's 5 Star.

And it's easy to taste why.

Easy taste and Seagram quality. That's what made 5 Star the fastest rising new star among Canadian whiskies. In fact, the story of 5 Star's sudden popularity is quite fantastic. But you'll find it easy to believe once you've tasted the whisky.

Unsold Bonds Total $80M

TRAIL (CP) — Mayor Don Morton of North Cowichan, president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, said here Saturday the financial position of municipalities is "not good".

MAYOR MORTON . . . worried

Speaking to the semi-annual meeting of the Association of Kootenay-Boundary Municipalities, Mayor Morton said municipal bond issues in B.C. are not selling even at yields of 8.75 or nine per cent.

He said there are $80,000,000 in unsold bond issues in B.C.

Delegates approved a resolution, to be advanced at the UBCM's September convention, asking that some of the Canada pension funds be put to municipalities instead of only schools, hospitals and provincial projects.

In another resolution, delegates agreed to seek UBCM backing in a request to have the pollution control board placed under the provincial health department.

The resolution followed reports of "red tape" in obtaining action from the board.

Ald. Ugo DeBiasio of Trail was elected president of the Kootenay-Boundary Association.

120 Wheezers Wheel Into Forest Museum

NORTH COWICHAN — About 120 cars from vintage automobile clubs from across British Columbia and Washington wheeled and wheezed into Cowichan Valley Forest Museum Saturday.

At one point there were more old cars on the museum lawn than visitors' cars in the parking lot outside. While the locals gawked at the beautifully-maintained and painstaking-restored oldtimers, the visitors viewed the fine collection of museum logging equipment and ancient railway rolling stock.

The drivers and their families were given rides on the Somenos Valley Railway and entertained after lunch by Mt. Prevost Secondary School Band.

George Brietung of Seattle took first prize in the antiques division for his 1910 Rambler. William Cantelon, president of Victoria Vintage Car Club, was second with his 1907 Cadillac.

Cantelon also won the Lord Montague Trophy for the best newly-restored car owned by a Canadian.

Alex McGladry of Nanaimo was first-place winner in the vintage class with his 1926 Whippet. Norman Hansen of Victoria was second in a 1927 Hupmobile.

Don Richardson of Victoria won a first prize for his 1930 Chevrolet and Pete Seward, also of Victoria, won a special interest prize for his 1936 Cadillac.

Gil Duffy from Seattle took the classics award driving a 1933 Duesenberg.

A Studebaker-Packard trophy for the best newly-restored Packard went to Ken Showers of Victoria for his 1934 convertible coupe.

Band Helps Painters Swing Into Clean-Up

CHEMAINUS — A highly-organized two-week blitz to clean up, paint up and beautify the town has started.

Highlight so far was the painting and repair work done by about 20 members and friends of Chemainus Chamber of Commerce at the home of widow Mrs. Francis C. Pattison of 9848 Willow Street.

A rock band of swinging teenagers entertained while the volunteers swung their scrapers and brushes. Other amusements included singing and dancing by local talent on the makeshift stage of a flatdeck truck.

Colorful litter barrels have been placed at strategic spots downtown. A contingent of students repainted all the park benches and tables at Kin Park.

MacMillan Bloedel, the district's biggest payroll, cleared and levelled an unsightly triangle beside its logging truck road and Chemainus highway. The company also has called for tenders to repaint the planer mill building.

SCOUTS READY

The cleanup idea originated with Mrs. Violet Liptack and Mrs. G. K. Heydon and was heartily approved by chamber president Frank Thomas.

Luckiest poker-playing pilots turned out to be women on the weekend.

The occasion was the first annual Poker Rally and Treasure Hunt Saturday and Sunday, organized by the Canadian Owners and Pilots Association.

One hundred and twenty-five planes from clubs on the Island, the mainland and Washington took part. Planes left Victoria International Airport at 1 p.m. Saturday and visited up to 15 airports on the Lower Mainland and Island, returning to Victoria Sunday afternoon.

The best poker hand—made up of cards picked up at five different airports—won a prize of $50.

Winner was Mrs. Ruth Lamming of 5009 Old West Road; second prize went to Marianne Achurch of Duncan; and third prize to Charmane Dias, also of Duncan.

An open house sponsored at the airport by Victoria Flying Club attracted 1,500 visitors.

Man Drowns After Fall From Boat

ALERT BAY — The body of Clarence Andrew McNeil, 39, of Alert Bay, who drowned early Sunday when he fell off a salvage boat, has been recovered.

The body was recovered about 10 miles east of here.

Police said the dead man, who had been working for the Creelman Piledriving Company, fell off a boat at Bold Point near the mouth of Knight's Inlet.

ALERT BAY — Two Vancouver men escaped injury Sunday in an explosion and fire on a 32-foot boat near Wells Passage, off the northeastern coast of Vancouver Island.

Peter Jacobson and Joseph Flach escaped in a dinghy.

NANAIMO — The parks and recreation commission here recently mailed in $1 to B.C. Hydro and Power Authority—and got a railway in return.

Commission chairman Bill MacGregor said he heard from a friend the line was for sale and sent a bid to Hydro. Two weeks later it was accepted as the full sale price.

Nanaimo will get the 5½ miles of rail, two locomotives, four flat cars, a snowplow and three other pieces from Hydro's Jordan River power dam project.

The city takes possession of its railway after 1971 and is now looking for a park to put it in.

"Whether you're in your twenties or late fifties, you can step into your choice of many different, important and well-paying positions in the ever-growing hospitality field," says Mary Bourke, president of the world-famed Lewis Hotel-Motel Schools. Exciting facts about these opportunities are presented in a new 48 page brochure, now available FREE to those seriously interested in bettering themselves and earning more money.

"We published this interesting book," explains Miss Bourke, "to show how easily and quickly an ambitious man or woman can prepare at home in leisure time or in resident classes for executive positions as Manager, Assistant Manager, Hostess, Housekeeper or 55 other salaried positions (often with apartment, meals and other expenses included.) "The book also tells how—with the help of nationwide placement assistance from Lewis — people of all ages can find the openings in luxurious hotels, beautiful motels, fashionable resorts and country clubs that can lead to fascinating careers. It spells out the opportunities for retired men and women, and shows how they can prepare for happy, exciting 'second careers' or seasonal employment for extra income."

MUTUAL FUNDS

Gas Association

Premier Harry Strom has congratulated the gas industry for being a model of efficiency in Alberta.

Speaking to the Canadian Natural Gas Processing Association he said: "The role of the industry in the continued development of the province cannot be underestimated."

Foreign Ownership Defended by Pepin

TORONTO (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin says Canadians may be too sensitive about foreign ownership of their industry, overlooking the benefits.

Speaking to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association today, he said the international company spreads technical and management skills around the world and serves to shift industry-building resources to capital-deficient regions, improving the material well-being of all nations.

Observing that Canada receives heavy foreign investment, Mr. Pepin said that "psychologically, Canadians may have become too defensive on this subject."

INTERDEPENDENCE

"We must remember that foreign direct investment involves interdependence more than dependence. While foreign participation in Canadian industry exposes us to external decision-making, we should remember that such exposure does not apply in one direction only.

"The country and company investing in a foreign land also expose themselves to the possibility of unfavorable foreign actions."

Mr. Pepin said international investment often results in companies and nations working at cross purposes.

He urged establishment of international "norms of conduct" to guide both parent and subsidiary companies and investing and receiving countries. The subject is being discussed by the International Chamber of Commerce and in the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, he said.

Fisheries Board

Eric S. Turnhill, general sales manager, British Columbia Packers Limited, has been appointed a member of the Fisheries Prices Support Board.

Turnhill was born in Vancouver, B.C., a University of B.C. graduate and former member of the Royal Canadian Navy.

With B.C. Packers Limited he has held appointments in accounting, personnel, plant management and sales, becoming a director in 1966.

MARKET SUMMARIES

N.Y. Decline Continues

The New York stock market decline entered its third straight week today in trading which was delayed 45 minutes because many exchange workers were late getting to work due to rain-flooded subways.

Western oils touched a record high but came back slightly as the Toronto market declined fractionally.

Industrials nearly touched an all-time record as Montreal generally firmed during early afternoon trading.

Mine and oil issues were up and industrials down in pre-noon trading at Vancouver.

AT NEW YORK the prolonged decline has been attributed by analysts to worry about the money situation getting even tighter and disenchantment with progress of the Vietnam peace talks.

The averages were near their lowest level at the final bell but price changes were mainly minor.

AT TORONTO final volume was 6,781,000 shares compared with 6,070,000 Friday.

In industrials, Ford Canada dropped 3 to 382, Bow Valley 2 to 35, Investors Overseas 1⅞ to 62, Cominco 1¾ to 37 and Rothmans 1¾ to 25¼.

Falconbridge was up 2½ to 139½, Royal Oak A 2½ to 13 and Pembina 1⅞ to 26⅛.

Sherritt lost 1½ to 13½ and Teck 50 cents to $9.75.

Franc Given Slight Boost

PARIS (Reuters) — The French fran improved slightly today as the unofficial exchange market between banks reacted to the strengthened electoral position of Gaullist candidate Georges Pompidou.

The franc moved off its dollar floor of 4.972000-97350 from 4.97375-974000 at Friday's official close.

Dealers said the changed presidential election situation was welcomed in financial circles.

The Bank of France, which was defending the franc most of last week, this morning was reported to have remained outside the market.

U.K. Banks Pressured To Cut Loans

LONDON (Reuters) — The government Saturday put further pressure on banks to reduce personal loans by halving the interest paid on money banks deposit with the state-controlled Bank of England.

The move, to take effect today, is expected to reduce by £700,000 (about $1,820,000) a month the interest the banks receive from the Bank of England deposits.

In this way the government hopes to reduce the amount of money private banks can make available for loans to customers.

Santa Barbara Oil Production Favored

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special body appointed by President Nixon recommended today that Union Oil Co. be authorized to drill up to 50 wells and complete oil production from the platform of Santa Barbara, Calif.

A runaway well caused massive pollution of the channel there four months ago, and brought a halt to drilling operations for a time.

Although the main leak was stopped after 11 days, oil has continued to seep from fissures around the well.

Withdrawing the oil from structures under the platform "is a necessary part of any plan to stop the oil seep," said the group headed by Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, the president's science adviser.

Under the proposed plan, it will take 10 to 20 years of drilling and pumping to remove the oil, Dr. Hamilton M. Johnson, panel member and chairman of the Tualen University geology department, told a news conference.

The final decision on the recommendations is up to Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel.

American Urges Better Use for Canadian Funds

By KEN SMITH

Canadian Press Business Editor

ISTANBUL (CP) — Canada should have better uses for its capital resources than to spend it buying back a share of the foreign investment in the country, a United States economist suggests.

Sidney Rolfe, in a study of the international corporation carried out for the International Chamber of Commerce, says that such a buy-back policy would give part of Canada's capital resources to the foreign corporations "which scarcely need capital."

The 250-page study is to be used as a basis of discussion of the role and responsibilities of the international corporation by the delegates from 60 countries attending the 22nd congress of the ICC.

Canada's 37-man delegation is led by Leonard Hynes of Montreal, president of Canadian Industries Ltd.

The Rolfe study uses Canada is one example of the influence of the international corporation and notes it has caused great concern in recent years.

HOW DO YOU MEASURE?

The author says Canada has had to try to decide, as some other countries will have to, how you can measure objectively the benefits of increased investment against the real or imagined risks of economic domination.

The answer, he says, is that you can't.

The Rolph study says it is difficult to get an accurate assessment of the total amount of foreign investment in the world. But in 1966 it was estimated at $90,000,000,000—two-thirds of it in developed countries and the rest in emerging nations.

About $55,000,000,000 of this was owned by the United States, with Britain owning a predominant share of the remainder.

Mr. Rolfe says the international corporation inevitably comes into potential conflict with the nation state as it tries to expand its spheres of operations.

"The international corporation is part of the international system.

"In seeking funds abroad, for example, it may cause tremors in the nation's desire to control its monetary system.

"Similarly in shipping capital from its home base it may work hardship, real or imagined, on the nation's balance of payments position."

More important, however, than economic considerations were psychological fears.

"Somehow the international corporation and the nation state must learn to accommodate each other. For both are strong and neither is apt to wither away in the foreseeable future.

"The economic growth which the international corporation has brought is in fact in the best interests of the nation, which must look to the preservation of economic growth and rising standards of living as one of its most important functions."

French Canadians Taken for Granted

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A French-Canadian businessman chided English-speaking Canadians Friday night for taking French Canadians for granted.

"I suggest you do not know the French Canadians among you," Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien, former director of operations for Expo 67, said in a banquet speech at the annual businessmen conference at the University of Western Ontario.

"You take them for granted as other 'yous,' but they are totally different."

Beaubien, president of Quebec Telemedia Inc., said the French Canadian "doesn't think of business in the same way you do. He hasn't been brought up in the same frame of mind. He is more inclined at 45 to sell the business and enjoy life."

But the English Canadian at 45 is just entering his prime and looking for new worlds to conquer, he said.

ISSUES A WARNING

He warned his audience that if the two races do not make the effort to understand each they "may as well pack it up" and join the U.S.

C. B. Neapole, president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, said earlier Canada will need increasing amounts of investment capital to finace an expected increase in employment during the next 15 years.

Some of this capital could be provided if the government would refrain from overtaxing successful growth by Canadian companies.

He predicted that employment in the next 15 years will increase to about 13 million from the present 7.7 million and the annual increase in new jobs could reach 500,000 a year by 1984.

Neapole said about $13 billion a year is needed to support the present work force, which means at least $24 billion would be needed yearly in 1984.

WARNS OF LEGISLATION

C. Norman Simpson, a Toronto engineering and planning consultant, said Canadians must guard against legislation that would inhibit private development of Canada's north.

He said invention and innovation in the north must be recognized and stimulated.

David Kuechle of the University of Western Ontario's school of business told delegates they can influence new labor legislation and even write it.

He said responsible managers must act now to form groups to define labor relations objectives, "then convert those objectives, into acceptable legislative language."

Union leaders should be encouraged to do the same with the result that designated representatives of managements and unions can meet to formulate mutually-agreeable legislation.

Automatic Transmission Agreement

TOKYO (Reuters) — A final agreement was signed today by the American Borg Warner Co. and a Japanese auto firm for creation of a joint venture company to manufacture automatic transmissions in Japan.

The new firm, 50 per cent owned by Borg Warner and 50 per cent by a subsidiary of the Toyota Auto Co., will construct a plant near Nagoya, central Japan, which is expected to begin producing 10,000 automatic transmissions a month early in 1970, it was announced.

Shinpachi Watanaba, president of the Toyota subsidiary Aisin Seiki K.K., said production would be boosted to 20,000 units by the end of 1970.

Inland Gas

Inland Natural Gas expects a lower net profit in the year ending June 30 than in the previous years because the company will become liable for income tax payments on its utility operations for the first time, president John A. McMahon said.

McMahon said higher pretax earnings would result from an increase in operating revenues from $1.8 million to about $51.7 million and would reflect higher gas sales during the past winter.

In the nine months ended March 31, the company has a net profit of $2 million or .71 cents a share after taxes, down from 25 cents.

New Imperial

New Imperial Mines Ltd. completed its first full year of operations Dec. 31, 1968, with operating income of $2.38 million and net earnings of $1.25 million, equal to 19.8 cents per share, the annual report shows.

The company is in a three-year tax-free production period set by the federal government with a starting date of Aug. 1, 1967.

Revenue from concentrates produced during 1968 was $6.97 million compared with the revenue for the six months of operation in 1967 of $3.9 million which resulted in net earnings of $1.16 million.

Chargex

Four Canadian banks said today their Chargex credit card plan is to be extended to Vancouver and Victoria in October.

The plan went into operation in Toronto and Montreal last August. It was later extended to a number of other Ontario and Quebec centres and now has about 1.25 million members.

The banks — Banque Canadienne Nationale, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Royal and Toronto-Dominion—said enrolment of west coast merchants will start in mid-June. Their target is about 3,700 merchants and 364,000 card-holding customers.

Gunnar Mining

Gunnar Mining Ltd. had net income of $255,000 in 1968 compared with $144,000 the previous year, the company said today.

In the annual report, directors said the 1968 accounting includes a charge of $262,000 for back income taxes. The company reduced its bank debt by $3 million to $24.69 million.

Accumulated deficit at Dec. 31 was $2 million.

Volume of business in the company's supply and engineering division declined during the year, mainly due to general business conditions in Quebec, the report said.

Giant Mascot

Giant Mascot's first-half net dropped to $81,800 from $412,800 in the same period last year due to a subsidence plug cave-in, the company said.

Operations were curtailed last November by the blockage..

Working capital at March 31, the end of the six-month period, stood at $1.13 million, up from $1 million at March 31, 1968.

President Jack Austin said earnings were $107,802 for March which was the first month of full production following the curtailment.

Big Pay Hike Taken

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Plumbers and Pipefitters Union, local 254, has accepted a wage agreement which will boost a journeyman's hourly rate to $5.25 by the end of the two-year contract.

The agreement reached Saturday provides an increase of $1.39 an hour in four steps over the contract period.

The hourly rate before the ney contract was signed was $3.86.

Whacha Mean, Out?

Dust was still settling around home plate at Anaheim, Calif., Sunday, as Baltimore pinch-hitter Chico Salmon appealed to umpire Bob Stewart that he was safe on slide while trying to score from second base on single in fifth inning. As usual, umpire had last word and Stewart ruled Salmon had been tagged by catch Tom Egan, of California Angels. However, it ended up as happy day for Orioles, who clipped Angels 4-3 in 11 innings.

Grand Canadian Caper Stirs Mauch Memories

By The Associated Press

Baseball's grand Canadian caper is in danger of deteriorating into a frantic foot race between Gene Mauch and his dark past.

Mauch's Montreal Expos of the National League lost to San Diego Padres 5-2 Sunday, extending their losing streak to 16 games, one short of the record for major league expansion teams.

New York Mets lost 17 in a row in 1962, their first National League season. The longest downhill slide in the modern era, however, was the Philadelphia Phillies' 23-game streak in 1961.

Philadelphia's manager was Gene Mauch.

Mauch also suffered through a 10-game September tailspin that cost his 1964 Phillies a pennant. In 1944, the year Mauch was a major league rookie as a shortstop with Brooklyn, the Dodgers reeled through a 16-game losing streak.

Elsewhere Sunday, St. Louis Cardinals snapped Cincinnati Reds' winning string at nine games by drubbing the Reds 11-3, Chicago Cubs flattened Atlanta Braves 13-4 despite a milestone homer by Hank Aaron, New York Mets nipped San Francisco Giants 5-4, Pittsburgh Pirates pounded Houston Astros 14-7 and Los Angeles Dodgers crushed the Phillies 12-4.

Saturday, New York downed San Francisco 4-2, Pittsburgh edged Houston 3-1, Chicago nipped Atlanta 3-2, Los Angeles outscored Philadelphia 7-6, Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 3-1 and San Diego beat Montreal 6-2.

Rookie Nate Colbert hit his ninth and 10th homers and veteran Johnny Podres picked up his fifth pitching victory as San Diego's expansionists completed a three-game sweep over the sinking Expos.

TENTH HOME LOSS

It was the 10th loss at home for the Expos during their spin, which began May 13 with a 10-3 collapse against Houston at Montreal. They won their season opener against the Mets, were encouraged by Bill Stoneman's April 17 no-hitter against Philadelphia and were seven games behind Chicago's East Division leaders at 11-7 when the bottom fell out.

The Padres dropped seven in a row last month and Kansas City and Seattle, the American League newcomers, have had losing strings of five and four games, respectively.

But the Expos' streak couples them with such legendary NL losers as the 1944 Dodgers, the Boston Braves of 1907 and 1911 and three pre-1900 clubs, Cleveland, Detroit, and Troy, N.Y., all which lost 16 games in succession.

TONY RESPONDS

Outfielder Tony Conigliaro of Boston Red Sox was given a clean bill of health by his doctors Friday and he responded to the good news by clouting four hits off Minnesota pitching Sunday.

Conigliaro's big day at the plate led the Red Sox to a 5-2 American League win over the Twins.

Nearly blinded in 1967 when struck over the eye by a pitched ball, Conigliaro collected his 10th home run of the season, two doubles and a single.

In other American League games, Seattle Pilots outscored Detroit Tigers, the defending world champions, 8-7, Washington Senators trimmed Chicago White Sox 9-2, New York Yankees downed Kansas City Royals 8-5, Baltimore Orioles edged California Angels 4-3 in 11 innings, and Oakland Athletics crushed Cleveland Indians 11-1.

Investors Plan Domed Stadium For Montreal

TORONTO (CP) — A group of U.S. investors is discussing plans for a domed stadium in Montreal to house the Expos of the National League.

Bob Stewart, former U.S. presidential advisor on physical fitness, says his group of private investors would raise between $60,000,000 to $90,000,000 to build a self-contained sports city with convention hotel, offices and shopping centre.

Stewart said the only cost to the city of Montreal would be the contribution of the necessary land.

Laurie's Hoping Seven Will Weave Golf Magic

String of Pars Gives Kerr Lead in Amateur Tourney

By DOUG PEDEN

Laurie Kerr couldn't conjure up the magic potion last June, but the sweet swinger from Royal Colwood is hoping that this is the year when "lucky seven" weaves its spell over the fairways.

Six times winner of the City Amateur gold crown, likeable Laurie escaped the disaster that wrecked his chances a year ago, when the roll for seven suddenly came up snake-eyes on opening day, and jumped out in front in the scramble for the 1969 crown on Sunday.

Kerr was swinging in old-time style at Victoria Golf Club in the first 36 holes of the 54-hole tourney, clicking like a methodical machine for 30 pars and a two-stroke lead over Carl Schwantje, the long-hitting Oak Bay junior.

More noted for consistency and accuracy over the years than for power-swatting, Laurie hit the cups for 14 pars, two bogies and two birdies for a par-matching 70 on his morning trip over the 5,948-yard seaside layout.

In his afternoon journey, the Colwood veteran made the count 16 pars, one bogie and one double-bogie for a 73 and a 36-hole total of 143.

Schwantje stroked three birdie putts, but six one-over-par holes sent him three above regulation figures on his first tour of his home course. Carl improved by one stroke to 72 in the afternoon as he rattled off 15 pars and a bird while losing three strokes to par on two other holes.

Three challengers are four strokes off the pace, at 147, heading towards next Sunday's final 18 holes at the Oak Bay links.

Allen Top Man in Handicap Section

Among them is Al MacLeod, the defending champion from Gorge Vale who ran into putting trouble on the tricky greens and put together nines of 73 and 74. Deadlocked with the Duncan schoolteacher are Bob Hunt, the lean plus-one handicapper from Uplands and Cedar Hill redhead Greg Candlish who notched a one-over 34 on each trip over the front nine but skidded to 41 and 38 on the back side.

Thus, the top five spots are divided between the city's five courses.

Urban Allen, hitting them big off the tees but faltering on the greens, is all alone at 148, a single stroke ahead of Doug Munro, Al Brown and Dave Mick.

Allen, working with a handicap of five, is the leader in the handicap chase for the Matson Trophy with a net 38, one stroke ahead of Kerr and Candlish, two in front of Gene Williams.

Following the first 36 holes, the top 24 players and ties continue in the championship chase. They are also eligible for the Matson Trophy section of the tourney along with the next 24 swingers with the lowest net (handicap) scores.

Although margins of two and four strokes often vanish with amazing rapidity in tee tourneys, next Sunday's closing round is shaping up as a duel between Kerr and Schwantje.

Consistency is Kerr's forte, Schantje seldom strays far from par on his home course and it is doubtful that both will have big trouble on the same day. This suggests if could require sub-par shooting to enable their pursuers to muscle in on the title fight.

Kerr, however, won't be forgetting a year ago, when he was very much in contention starting the 35th hole of the tourney. On that one, Laurie pounded two tee shots out of bounds and wound up with a four-over-par eight. He bogeyed the next hole and never threatened Macleod the rest of the way.

"I was quite pleased with the way I was hitting the ball," Kerr commented. "I actually played better golf in the afternoon but I scored better in the morning because I was a bit unconscious on a few putts.

"I'm hoping that this time it will be the lucky seventh."

He can't feel safe because he remembers what happened in the same tourney on the same Oak Bay links back in 1949. In that once, Vic Painter started the final round seven strokes behind leading George Bigelow, fired a course-record 64 and won the title by two strokes.

After 20 years, lightning could strike twice in the same place.

LARRY HAD GREAT DAY DESPITE MISSING SPOT

Larry O'Malley missed the spot he wanted for the final 18 holes, but he was still one of the happiest contestants in amateur golf tournament at the Victoria Golf Club.

The Cedar Hill junior cracked the most electrifying shot of the day Sunday when the first 36 holes of the 54-hole event were played at the Oak Bay links.

Larry achieved perfection on his first round when he dropped his tee shot into the cup for a hole-in-one on the 215-yard seventh hole. That helped him to a 75, but he slipped to 83 in the second round and failed to qualify for the championship, but made it in the handicap section.

Princeton Wins Senior Eights

NEW YORK (AP) — Princeton University oarsmen finished first and second in the senior eight event Saturday and defeated the New York Athletic Club in the 103rd annual Memorial Day regatta. Princeton collected 123 points in the 28-race program to 115 for the NYAC.

All races were over the 2,000-metre Orchard Beach course.

Rutgers University was third with 85 points and the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia fourth with 73.

Smoking Report May End Ski Sponsorship

WINNIPEG (CP) — The sponsorship of Canada's most prestigious international ski event—the duMaurier International—may hang in the balance of an impending government report on the effects of smoking.

A resolution presented to the annual general meeting of the Canadian Ski Association which concluded Saturday asked that the association discontinue allowing cigarette sponsors for its programs.

The resolution, presented by the Ontario division, asked: "That the CASA recognize that it is undesirable to accept support for its programs from the advertising of cigarettes because they are injurious to health and physical fitness."

ACTION DELAYED

However, it was decided to delay action on the matter until the government report is issued. One association member said the report is expected June 3.

Pierre Alain of Waterloo, Que., said "even if the government recommended we disassociate ourselves from cigarette advertisers it would be up to the executive committee to make a final decision."

In another area of business, the association adopted a report outlining a more clearly defined set of objectives and a change in administration at the top.

The administrative change involves combining the board of trustees and executive committee.

Another change was made to the association's name, deleting the amateur designation. It was felt that with the scope of the group the word "amateur" had little to do with the over-all operation.

WINNER of Canadian Tenpin Association's provincial women's rolloffs Sunday was Victoria's Lorna Pollock. She rolled impressive 1,917 total for 10 games, including 236 single at Coral Lanes in Vancouver. Mrs. Pollock now will represent B.C. in Canadian rolloffs in Winnipeg for chance to advance to world finals in Puerto Rico.

Earl Victorious In Battle Royal

Earl Maynard downed all opponents during a battle royal which headlined a professional wrestling card Saturday night at Memorial Arena.

In preliminary bouts, John Tolos downed Bad Boy Shields, Steve Bolus grappled Brown to a draw, Dutch Savage downed Jerry London and John Kostas won by disqualification over Angelo Mosca.

MYSTIFYING RULINGS AS SPURS NIP RANGERS

Referee Steals Show

TORONTO (CP) — Tottenham Hotspur of England Sunday blew a 2-0 half-time lead, but recovered to beat Glasgow Rangers 4-3 in an exhibition soccer match punctuated with thrills and controversy.

Jimmy Greaves scored three goals for Spurs who went ahead from a Roger Morgan goal in the 12th minute.

Rangers' $280,000 star, Colin Stein, scored two goals for the losers with the third coming from Swedish left winger Orjan Persson.

But the man of the match was Peruvian-born referee Arturo Yamaski of Mexico whose rulings mystified the managers of both teams.

Yamasaki awarded two penalties, penalized Spurs goalkeeper for wasting time, prevented an injured player being treated on the field in the first half, but allowed it in the second—and had a ball thrown at him by Spurs fullback Tony Want.

"It's the first time I've seen these rules," said losing manager David White.

"It's all very strange to me," said winning manager Bill Nicholson.

Yamasaki made no comment. He does not speak English.

Rangers meet Italian champions Fiorentina in the final game of the three-team tournament for the Toronto Cup and $3,000 prize money next Saturday. Fiorentina beat Spurs 3-0 Wednesday.

Shawnigan's Long Hop Vetoed by Ridley Crew

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. — It's about 8,000 miles from Shawnigan Lake to Czechoslovakia—give or take a few hundred—and a slick-stroking crew from the Vancouver Island centre missed the hop by a margin of six feet Sunday.

That was the important margin for Ridley College of St. Catharines in the 24th Canadian schoolboys' rowing championships.

Washington-Lee of Arlington, Va., won the featured, one-mile eights race but the Canadian interest centered on the Ridley-Shawnigan battle.

Ridley's edge over Shawnigan gives the Ontario crew the inside track on an invitation to compete in the world schoolboy championships in Czechoslovakia.

While Washington-Lee won the glamor event of the two-day championships here, St. Catharines Collegiate race away with the overall points title. Collegiate oarsmen finished 19 points ahead of Ridley.

Competing under favorable conditions at the international Henley course, Washington-Lee captured the big eight-oar event in a time of 5:02.9, only a length ahead of Ridley.

Ridley won the same event over Washington-Lee in last week's United States schoolboy regatta championships held at Washington.

Ridley held a short lead over Shawnigan Lake after the first 20 strokes. Washington-Lee, in third and rowing a solid 36 strokes a minute, took over from Ridley as the race swung into the final stages. Shawnigan was third by about six feet. St. Catharines was fourth and Hamilton fifth.

OTHER WINNERS

Third-place Brockville Collegiate captured the 135-pound eights event in a time of 5:01.3, while Cardinal O'Hara High of Springfield, Pa., won the 145-pound eights event in 5:14 flat.

Michael Helgeson, 17, and Richard Carneiro, 16, continued the domination of sculling events enjoyed by Blessed Sacrament high school of New Rochelle, N.Y.

The young oarsmen posted a time of 5:42 to win the one-mile open double by a two-length-margin over Bob Toth and Dennis Stitek of Wyandotte, Mich. Ron Burgon and his brother, Darcy, were third for Parkdale College, Toronto.

Sir Winston Churchill of St. Catharines won the 145-pound fours for the third year in succession, while Lorne Park secondary school of Port Credit, Ont., repeated in the 135-pound fours.

More than 700 oarsmen from 31 high schools in 21 Canadian and American cities competed in the two-day regatta.

Minor Soccer Creates National Organization

TORONTO (CP) — Soccer officials from seven provinces Sunday formed the Canadian Minor Soccer Association, which will direct the activities of about 70,000 young players.

The new association was formed with the sanction of the Canadian Soccer Football Association and will be an affiliate of that group.

Provinces represented in the new association are Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Quebec and Saskatchewan.

Allan Southard of Toronto was elected chairman and Alex Kempt of Burnaby, B.C., was elected general secretary.

A spokesman for the association said it is hoped the three remaining provinces will soon join the new group.

The association will direct the activities of minor players, ranging in age from eight to 21.

Hurlers Also Hit In McGinnis Play

Lake Cowichan and Denford Electric shared some of Sunday's Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League spoils because pitchers decided to branch out as hitters.

Brian McKinley performed double-duty chores for the Lakers in tripping Denfords 11-7 in their first meeting at Cowichan.

McKinley went the route to gain credit for the victory, also enjoyed a perfect day at the plate by hitting three-for three. He scored two runs, drove in two more.

It was Eric Peterson's turn in the nightcap. The Denford hurler collected only one hit, but it was enough to score Paul Isaacson with the winning run in a 3-2 victory.

Pentathlon Mark Topped

HEIDELBERG (AP) — Heide Rosendahl of West Germany Sunday bettered her own three-week-old women's pentathlon world record, getting 5,023 points in a track meet with the Soviet Union.

Miss Rosendahl, 22, broke her 4,995-point record for the five events set May 11 in her hometown of Leverkusen.

Her efforts included: 100-metre hurdles, 13.6 seconds; shot put, 43 feet, 10 inches; high jump, five-foot-four; long jump, 20 feet, 4½ inches, and 200-metre race, 24.8 seconds.

He will be racing his unlimited Group Seven car for a $12,000 gold brick and a share of the $45,000 in prize money.

The Edmonton Can-Am is one of two Canadian legs in the 11 race series that offers drivers a chance at $740,000 in prize money.

Last year's series winner, Dennis Hulme, earned $93,060 and a new car.

BELGIAN RIDER . . . . . . WAS LEADING RACE

Drug Test Ousts Cyclist

SAVONA, Italy (AP) — Belgian cyclist Eddy Merckx was disqualified today from the Tour of Italy race on charge of doping. Merckx had been leading the over-all standings.

The announcement from organizers said Merckx was excluded because anti-doping tests he underwent after Sunday's leg of the 24-day race proved positive.

Cyclists give urine samples, which are then examined for traces of drugs that would give a cyclist an extra stimulus while he pedalled.

Merckx finished in the first 15 in the leg Sunday, a 228-kilometre run over flat country from Parma to Savona.

The Belgian held the lead in the over-all standings with a total time of 71 hours 37.32 minutes. Felice Gimondi of Italy was second, 1.41 minutes behind. He now becomes the leader.

Former world champion Merckx, recent winner of the Paris-Nice race, was rated the favorite to win the Tour of Italy.

Urban Defeated

ST. ANNES, England (Reuters) — Robin Lloyd of England scored a 6-4, 7-5 victory Saturday over defending champion Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., to win the women's singles in the St. Annes lawn tennis tournament.

Arson Suspected In Stable Blaze

RIVER VALE, N.J. (AP) — About 71 horses, some of them of the shows variety, died in a fire early Sunday that destroyed the stable-arena building at the Haylan Farms here.

A fireman and policeman were burned trying to free the animals and fight the blaze.

Police said arson is suspected.

A spokesman for the farm, owned by Joseph Minetto of River Vale, said the loss is expected to reach $550,000.

The spokesman said there were about 73 horses in the stable and that three were freed. However, one of the three died later.

Independents On Hot Streak

Independents rolled their unbeaten string to 18 games in the Senior Amateur Baseball League when they swept a Sunday doubleheader from Lake Cowichan at Royal Athletic Park.

Independents have not lost a game since beginning a clean sweep of the league's championship series last season.

Sunday they squeaked by Lake Cowichan 1-0 in a day game, then caught fire in the evening to whop the opposition 9-2.

Control problems hurt Cowichan pitcher Jim Jubenville in the first game. He walked three consecutive batters in the first inning. That allowed Ken Hawkins to score the winning run on a sacrifice fly by George Brice.

Jubenville settle down to pitch a one-hitter that held Independents scoreless over the next six innings.

Tom Sallaway yielded five hits to Cowichan as Independents played errorless ball.

In the evening game Independents tagged Cowichan pitcher Rocky Wise for four runs in the first inning and exploded for five more in the fourth.

Big Bats Unable to Stop Mainland Cricket Team

Dick Joyce and Chris Rowe combined batting talents for a total of 97 runs Sunday at Beacon Hill Park—but it wasn't enough for Victoria's representative cricket side.

A Vancouver side captured the B.C. Cricket Association zone match by a four-wicket margin.

Joyce cracked out an impressive 61 runs while Rowe contributed 36. Victoria batted first and declared at 144 runs for eight wickets.

Vancouver batsmen earned the victory mainly on the strength of 34 runs by Tris Cheevers, 43 by Singh and 33 from Jorsson as the visitors passed the Victoria total with six wickets down.

During regular Victoria and District Cricket Association play at University School, Incogs edged Castaways by three runs to take over first place from Albions.

Batting first, Incogs ran up 92 all out as they were sparked by a 36-run performance from Pat Ely.

Castaways managed only 89 runs as they faltered on the spin-bowling of Richard Oakley, who took seven wickets for 30 runs and retired the last three batsmen on a hat-trick.

In Saturday play at Beacon Hill Park, Albions stopped Oak Bay by scoring 99 runs all out while yielding only 55.

At Windsor Park, Cowichan thumped Alcos 78-41.

Porsches Rule Race

ADENAU, Germany (AP) — Porsches swept to an all conquering 1-2-3-4-5 victory in Germany's international 1,000-kilometre race Sunday, clinching the manufacturer's world championship for the West German car makers for the first time.

The winning three-litre prototype Porsche 908 was co-piloted by Switzerland's Jo Siffert and Britain's Brian Redman, who sped 44 times around the slightly more than 14 miles Eifel Mountain circuit in a record six hours, 11 minutes, 2.3 seconds, an average speed of 101 miles an hour for the 624-mile course.

Sad Spartan Series

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a bad weekend in the Western Canada Soccer League for Vancouver Spartans. Previously unbeaten, they lost two games and dropped to third place in league standings.

The string was broken Saturday in Edmonton when the Spartans were beaten 1-0 by Edmonton Canadians. Calgary Kickers added to the humiliation Sunday when they edged the visiting Spartans 2-1.

In the only other game played during the weekend, Winnipeg Blues shut out Saskatoon City 2-0 at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg took over first place in the league with two wins and no losses for four points. Calgary is now second.

Prince Passes Big Test; Shuvee Nabs Goose

Times news Services

Talk about triple crown chances will be bussing around horse-racing stables this week as Majestic Prince takes aim at next Saturday's Belmont Stakes and Shuvee heads for the American Oaks at the same Belmont Park track on June 21.

Unbeaten Majestic Prince displayed the form he showed in winning the Kentucky Derby and Preakness as he passed his last major test with ease Sunday in preparation for his triple-crown bid.

The Canadian-owned colt went a mile and one-eighth in one minute, 51 4-5 seconds in an early-morning gallop, his last tough workout before the mile and one-half Belmont.

"He came back real fine," trainer Johnny Longden, who was in the saddle when the Prince did the half-mile in :49, three-quarters in 1:13, the mile in 1:39 2-5 and 1¼ in 2:05.

LOST 100 POUNDS

There had been some doubt after the Prince won the Derby and the Preakness in May whether he would try for the third jewel in the triple crown.

The colt, owned by Frank McMahon of Vancouver, lost 100 pounds in those first two races, but he has shown no ill effects from the gruelling pace in workouts at Belmont, N.Y.

Longden said the Prince's schedule for the rest of the week will include a walk on Monday, gallop Tuesday and Wednesday, blow on Thursday, walk Friday and gallop Saturday morning.

NEVER COMPLAINS

Although the Prince looked and acted tired after the exercise, Longden said he needed that workout.

"He never complains. He likes to eat, sleep and run. And I want to say something. All those fractions today were his own. I never asked him for anything and I never pressed him. I was pleased with those late fractions of the workout."

WINS MOTHER GOOSE

Shuvee glided down the stretch with ease Saturday at Aqueduct and won the $87,075 Mother Goose Stakes to move a big step closer to capturing the New York Racing Association's triple crown for fillies.

Jockey Jesse Davidson sent the classy Shuvee down the milddle of the stretch as she overtook Restless Tornado and moved to a two-length victory over Hail to Patsy with Restless Tornado finishing third as Shuvee, a 9-5 favorite, ran the mile and one-eighth in 1:50 1-5.

With her victories in the one-mile Acron and the Mother Goose, Shuvee needs only a triumph in the mile and one-quarter American Oaks to claim the triple crown for fillies.

TELL TAKES ARGONAUT

At other tracks Saturday:

Packing top weight of 126 pounds and odds-on favorite of a crowd of 45,177 at Hollywood Park, Tell got to the wire first in a scramble of three-year-olds in the $33,450 Argonaut Stakes.

Tell covered the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:42 1-5 and was followed, in order, by Eagle Fly, Lonny's Secret and Makor.

STATE'S FIRST MEET

At Philadelphia, a Crowd of 15,396 bet $1,160,154 as Continental Racing Association opened the first thoroughbred pari-mutuel meeting in Pennsylvania's history.

Social Song won the $29,225 Keystone Handicap feature of the first session of the inaugural 34-day meet at Liberty Bell Park.

At Oceanport, N.J. Ta Wee coasted home a seven-length winner to take the $29,200 Miss Woodford Stakes, opening day feature for fillies at Monmouth Park.

FASTEST MARATHON BY AUSTRALIAN RUNNER

ANTWERP (Reuters)—Derek Clayton of Australia ran the fastest marathon ever for a victory here, covering the course of 26 miles, 385 yards through the streets of Antwerp in two hours, eight minutes and [illegible] seconds.

The Australian led the 80-stro[illegible] international field from the ninth mile onward, finishing [illegible] minutes, 34.4 seconds ahead of Japan's Ako Usami.

Wayne Yetman of Toronto's E[illegible]bicoke Track Club was 10th and Bob Moore of the Toronto Olympic Club, who finished fifth in the Boston Marathon, was 11th.

Marshall Edges Price In Stock-Car Feature

Mel Marshall continued to build up his lead in stock-car competition driver standings Saturday when he captured the 50-lap Roy White Memorial before 2,356 fans at Western Speedway.

Finishing fourth in the trophy dash behind Harvey St. Hillaire and dead-heat winners Bill Price and Mike Armstrong, Marshall also placed third in the fast heat behind John Currier and Earl Pollard.

But he stormed back in the feature to take the lead after 23 laps, and although pushed hard by Price until the 40-lap mark, Marshall stayed in front to win by two lengths as St. Hillaire and Bob Collins finished third and fourth.

Only 16 of 24 starters finished the gruelling race, which had to be restarted after crashes in the fourth and ninth laps.

Other crashes occured in the first heat and B class main event, with Dale Carnagie and Sam Alexander flipping, and Victor Scott careening into the bush.

Wally Allison was a double winner, earning firsts in the second heat and the B main event.

Local modifieds and stocks return to Western next Saturday.

Adanacs Extend Streak By Routing Shamrocks

COQUITLAM—Victoria Shamrocks are still looking for their first victory of the season and Coquitlam Adanacs are threatening to make a shambles of the Western Lacrosse Association race.

Adanacs charged to their fourth straight victory of the young campaign here Saturday night as they subdued Victoria 14-6 to leave the Shamrocks without a win in three starts.

Scheduled to meet third-place Carlings at Vancouver Tuesday, Adanacs spotted the Rocks the first goal of Saturday's tussle and then ran away to a comfortable triumph before 1,225 spectators.

Mike Gates and John Allen each scored four goals to pace the victory march. Gates added four assists and Allen collected a pair.

Kerry Gallagher picked up two goals and three assists for the winners.

Ken Alexander and Nirmal Dillon each notched two tallies for the Rocks, who also got a goal and an assist from Ranjit Dillon and Al McLean.

Adanacs fired 58 shots at Victoria goalie Doug Thompson while the Shamrocks managed 41 drives at the Coquitlam nets.

In action at Nanaimo, the home team clipped Victoria's Kings Hotel 17-8 behind the scoring heroics of a one-time Victoria player. Dave Collett, former junior Shamrock, scored four goals and one assist for Nanaimo.

John Scott counted four goals and a pair of assists for Nanaimo while Brian Spaven was Victoria's best with four goals and two assists.

Nanaimo faces Victoria in Memorial Arena on Thursday, starting at 8:30 p.m.

Brentwood Boats Take Five of Six

VANCOUVER — Brentwood College finished on top in the third annual Vancouver schoolboy regatta Saturday by winning five of six events at Coal Harbor.

Oarsmen from the Vancouver Island school won the lightweight and heavy fours events over 1,500 metres, the 1,200-metre novice eights race and the 1,000-metre lightweight eights contest.

Joel Cotter stroked to victory in the singles race with his Brentwood schoolmate, Pat Bourlay, finishing second.

Lord Byng, Sentinel and St. Georges of the Vancouver area and Green Lake of Seattle were also entered in the meet, won last year by Shawnigan Lake, which did not enter this year because of participation in the Canadian championships at St. Catharines, Ont., over the weekend.

STAMPS SIGN IMPORTS

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference have announced that imports Billy Bell and Randy Collins have signed contracts for the 1969 season.

QUALIFIER for Canadian Open golf tournament at Montreal, July 24-27, is Victoria professional Vaughan Trapp. Two berths available to B.C. players were captured by Trapp and Bob Cox of Richmond, who each fired two-under-par 70 in special 18-hole qualifying test at Vancouver's Quilchena course. Bill Wakeham of Victoria was third in field of 12 with 71, one stroke ahead of Vancouver's Doug Reid.

Chargers Cruise To Grid Triumph

Gordon Head Chargers and Esquimalt rolled to impressive victories Sunday in Norm Fieldgate Bantam Football League battles at Braefoot Park.

Chargers overpowered Knights of Columbus 41-19 and Esquimalt earned a 21-13 decision over Victoria Boys' Club.

The best thing we could say about our car has been said for us.

Road Test Magazine:

"Toyota Corona selected imported car of the year".

ROAD TEST MAGAZINE 1969 TOYOTA CORONA IMPORTED CAR OF THE YEAR AWARD

The impact of the imported car on the automobile market in 1[illegible], emphasizes the North American motorist's need for a small economy car that packs the performance and creature comforts of the larger Detroit models, yet still retains the basic economy of purchase and operation as well as the ease of handling that have become the hallmarks of the imported car.

Over a 15 month period, ROAD TEST's editorial and technical staffs have tested virtually every import model currently on the market in this country and have conducted comprehensive owner surveys, constantly on the alert to determine which imported model comes the closest to being the ideal imported car.

The goal of our staff was to determine which imported model on the market today is the best compromise—giving North Americans the power and performance they need on today's super highways, coupled with economy of purchase and economy of operation.

This expertise was then checked against the most deciding authority of all—the imported car buyer.

Over this 15 month period of road testing and conducting our owner's survey, more than 30,000 imported car buyers responded to a detailed questionnaire designed to bring out the key points our staff needed in order to single out one model as the IMPORTED CAR OF THE YEAR.

The import model which best exemplifies the stringent criteria established by ROAD TEST editors and consultants is the Toyota Corona from Japan's Toyota Motor Company.

The Corona features one of the most potent power plants in the small economy car field, yet is eye pleasing enough to be a product of the Detroit styling salons.

However, this is where the similarity ends.

Detroit's huge assembly lines cannot give each individual car the attention to detail that the Toyota assembly and inspection teams have been able to do. The pride of workmanship is as evident in the detail and finish of every Toyota Corona as its performance is impressive on the streets and highways of North America.

If there is one single factor that makes the Toyota Corona stand out in a field of remarkably well engineered imported cars, it is its superior performance.

Toyota engineers have designed a 4-cylinder power plant that develops 90 horsepower at 4600 rpm that delivers 85-plus mph performance at 30 mpg economy.

Although the Toyota Corona has received almost unanimous 'rave' reviews by every leading automotive publication since its introduction to the North American market in mid-1965, it is the car buyer who is the final authority.

Among Toyota Corona owners responding to our survey, were people from every walk of life, economic strata and nearly every driving age bracket.

As close as our editors can determine, there is no 'average' Toyota buyer unless you can call the full spectrum of North American motorists an 'average' group.

Although performance was a key factor in a large percentage of the survey answers submitted by Corona owners, other features of this remarkable car were accented.

From a full cross-section of Toyota owners came an accolade to Toyota's design engineers. With few exceptions, owners praised the Corona's distinctive styling and 'familarity.'

It is this latter point that weighed heavily in the final judging by ROAD TEST editors—familiarity.

In our editorial opinion, the Toyota Corona is the most 'familiar' imported car on the North American market today.

The Corona's controls and instrumentation are thoroughly familiar to a North American driver from the first moment he slips behind the wheel of this, the #2 seller among imports in the U.S. and Canadian market. There are no special controls to learn, no instruments that will confuse the first time driver of an import car.

The only minor area of confusion to the first time driver of a Toyota is the reverse knobs on the factory installed radio. The on-off and volume control knob is located to the right while the station selector knob is located to the left—the opposite of American car radios.

One of the strongest sales points behind the Toyota Corona's remarkable acceptance by the North American driving public is its optional automatic transmission, the first fully automatic to be offered in an imported car in this price bracket.

And, even this special feature is completely 'Americanized.'

Our editors, as well as the thousands of Toyota owners from coast-to-coast, have found the Toyota Corona to be the most complete imported car in the $2,500 economy car market today.

In the area of 'creature comforts' that North Americans have come to accept as a motoring way of life, Toyota has paid careful attention to the comfort and luxury of its products, especially in the case of the Corona model line.

It is in this not often publicized area that it is subtly apparent that the Toyota design engineers have done their homework well, for the Toyota Corona boasts 47 luxury features as standard equipment that would normally be considered 'extras' by Detroit standards.

So, by any yardstick—performance, styling, economy, comfort, ease of handling, etc.—the Toyota Corona best measures up to the criteria established by our editorial staff and attested to by the most complete owner's survey in the history of the automotive industry.

If any imported car in North America today deserves tribute as the "Imported Car of the Year," that car is the Toyota Corona.

Toyota Corona. $2395.*

New Band Music Concept Given by Saanich Group

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Every season, the concept of "band music" is broadened so that it embraces more varities of music and makes use of all available student talent.

The North Saanich Junior Secondary School Concert Band, under the direction of Austin A. Scott, presented a soup-to-nuts program in the McPherson Playhouse on Sunday afternoon which featured George Foley in a euphonium solo and Greg Russell as guest trumpeter.

The Saanich Schools Wind Ensemble, a group of 10 talented players, tackled Mozart's challenging Divertimento in B K186 with suitable elegance and precision, and an organ was imported so that David Alger might play the organ solo in a Galliard and Courante by Frescobaldi.

BRASS IS GOOD

The brass section measured up remarkably well to the demands made on them by Frescobaldi who was renowned for the stirring brass parts in his compositions.

A medley of melodies from "The Magic Flute" was played with considerable success and Mozartian flourish, and featured sections came through particularly well in the second medley.

A tambourine added Eastern flavor to the Israeli song "Havah Nagilah" in which changes in pace and rhythm were easily accomplished by the well-disciplined band.

Similar ability to match the music's changing mood was shown in "Kije's Wedding," which featured a smooth brass solo.

Instruments were dropped to free hands for clapping in a swinging, spicy version of Shortnin' Bread; a Scherzo by Moussorgsky was too fiercely Russian to be truly playful anywhere but in Russia, while "Don't Sleep on the Subway" really swung into action.

SOUND OF MUSIC

A complicated arrangement of songs from "The Sound of Music" which produced some problems of intonation and balance was less successful than Lara's theme from "Dr. Zhivago."

Despite the enormous variety of music played, "Tijuana Taxi" still communicated the students' enjoyment of music better than any other piece, for what they like most they play best.

This band also had the distinction of being introduced by Grade 9 student David Lawrence, the most dramatic, clear-voiced announcer heard this season.

MARRIED Sunday for the first time was singer-dancer Juliet Prowse, 32, and choreographer Eddie James, 26. They met when he was her dancing partner on a Bob Hope television special.

50,000 Acclaim New Arts Centre

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

OTTAWA (CP) — It was not the usual sort of opening for a multi-million-dollar theatre.

Everybody and his brothers and sisters were there.

His sisters wore miniskirts or slacks. Many of them brought their kids.

Balloons seemed to be floating everywhere.

The new $46,000,000 National Arts Centre was thrown open for six hours of public inspection and admiration Saturday. It was estimated that more than 50,000 people responded to the invitation.

They seemed to like it. It is just as well. They and their fellow Canadian taxpayers paid for the centre and will help to keep it going with an annual operating subsidy.

Prime Minister Trudeau articulated the popular mood in a speech at the brief opening ceremony, during which he presented the deed to the centre to Ottawa merchant Lawrence Freiman, chairman of the centre's board of trustees.

"In a country often accused of a complex of inferiority, there is nothing inferior about this complex," he said.

The curtain goes up for the first time tonight when the world premiere of the ballet Kraanerg will be performed by the National Ballet of Canada, to launch a two-week opening festival of music and theatre.

Montreal's celebrated Theatre du Nouveau Monde will open the theatre Tuesday night with the classical Greek comedy Lysistrata, while the National Ballet presents Prokofiev's Romeo and Juliet in the concert hall.

McLaren Takes Opener In Can-Am Race Series

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP)—Bruce McLaren, a young New Zealander who builds and races his own cars, Sunday won the 200-mile opener of the rich Canadian-American Challenge Cup series for big-bore sports cars.

His team-mate and fellow countryman Denis Hulme finished nine-tenths of a second behind him to make it one-two for the orange cars of Team McLaren.

The 32-year-old McLaren picked up more than $10,000 of the $60,000 prize and accessory money as well as the Labatt's Blue Trophy. He also picked up 20 points in the 11-race Can-Am series, where $1,000,000 is at stake.

The New Zealanders' showing indicates they will again dominate the Can-Am as they have for the last two years. Hulme won the series last year when it was a six-race affair; McLaren won it in 1967.

SURTEES THIRD

John Surtees of England, winner of the first Can-Am series in 1966 and the only driver to hold world championships in both motorcycles and Formula I cars in Grand Prix racing, was third in a McLaren.

John Cordts of Port Credit, Ont., driving a McLaren far outdated by the new machines the New Zealanders were driving, placed fourth and was top Canadian finisher.

McLaren completed the 80 laps in one hour, 51 minutes, 27.3 seconds with an average speed of 105.901 miles an hour.

He also was clocked at one minute, 19.5 seconds during his 44th lap of the 2.5-mile track, shaving 1.2 seconds off the lap record Hulme set here in 1967.

At times Hulme was clocked through the speed trap on the back straight at 180 miles an hour, but his team boss was faster going through the 14 corners of Mosport's twisting, dipping road track.

The first half of the race, watched by an announced 44,200 fans, was a thrilling affair with Surtees and Californians Lother Motschenbacher and Dan Gurney in McLarens pressing the New Zealanders. McLaren and Surtees swapped the lead several times until Gurney moved up, leaving Surtees to hold off Hulme and Motschenbacher.

By the halfway mark Motschenbacher had retired with clutch trouble. Gurney went into the pits on the 49th lap with a broken suspension and Surtees began to fall back.

Michell Tops In Endurance Roller Skating

Who said that women are the weaker sex?

Michell Fleming outperformed the men Sunday while setting what Esquimalt Sports Centre officials claim is a Canadian record for endurance roller skating.

Michell circled the rink for 28 straight hours to top the previous record of 26½ hours set last year by Esquimalt's Eli Tryrte.

Clinton Shaw and Bill Warring circled the course for 26 hours and 27 minutes to top the men.

A total of 74 entries started the gruelling test Saturday night.

Polo Club Wins Mainland Match

Victoria Polo Club defeated host Southlands of Vancouver 6-5 Sunday despite entering the fray one pony short.

Blue Angels are slated to take on Red Devils at 2:30 p.m. next Sunday in an intra-club match on home grounds at the corner of Veyaness and East Saanich Road.

Junior Rocks Slick Passers

BURNABY—Teamwork was the key here Sunday as Victoria Junior Shamrocks chalked up their first victory of the Inter-City Junior Lacrosse League season.

Edged in their first two starts of the campaign, the Rocks turned in a slick passing display to earn a total of 19 assists as they tripped Burnaby Norburns 15-11.

It took more than sharp passing and shooting to get the Irish home in front. They also needed standout goaltending from Dave Wirtanen, who blocked 50 of 61 shots directed his way while the Rocks were collecting their 15 tallies from 48 shots on the Norburn nets.

The Somner brothers, Tom, with five goals and four assists, and Dennis, with three goals and five helpers, paced the Victorians on attack. Murray Murreault (two goals, four assists) and Muzz Bryant (four goals, one assist) were also big gunners for the Irish.

Point leader for Norburns was Brian Davidson, with three goals and two assists.

Shamrocks play at home next Sunday, meeting Coquitlam.

Dickie's Trio Wins Malkin Cup

Andy Dickie's trio from Burnside Lawn Bowling Club captured the Malkin Cup for men's triples competition on home greens Sunday with a 21-17 final victory over clubmate Alex Donald.

John McMillan was lead and Bill Cruikshank second for the winning threesome, while Sid Smethurst and Jim Pollock rounded out the losing team.

MEXICAN SIDE TIES ENGLAND

MEXICO CITY (AP)—England and Mexico played to a scoreless tie Sunday in a brilliant defensive soccer game before a capacity crowd of 110,000 in Aztec Stadium.

It was the first of two games that England will play in Mexico.

The English controlled the ball but their attacks collapsed in front of a strong Mexican defence led by Mario "Pichojos" Perez.

Who doesn't know you can buy the Ronson Varaflame Comet SL lighter at $7.95

Is it a Ronson Butane or isn't it? Sure it is. But, we don't blame anyone for taking a closer look at the new Ronson Varaflame Comet SL lighter. After all, everybody knows you just don't buy a Butane lighter for $7.95; that's lightweight, has an automatic trigger action, adjustable flame and is unique in design with a swivel top for flint storage. Especially a Ronson lighter.

But it's all true. The Ronson Varaflame Comet SL lighter is here. Perfect for ladies too. In red, black and white. And the Ronson Comet. Windproof. Perfect for pipes. In grey, black and white. So don't let the low price fool you. Even at $7.95 the Ronson Varaflame Comet is still a Ronson.

Fills in seconds, lights for months.

Of course, there are other cars touting fancy-named ventilation systems as real air conditioning. But we think they're blowing more hot air than anything else.

Because only Ambassador offers you real, refrigerated air conditioning as standard equipment. And doesn't cost you any more than a standard priced car.

See your American Motors dealer about an Ambassador.

Canadian Tanker Fleet Urged for Super Port

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A new Canadian super-tanker fleet would meet Canada's needs and assure her shipyard workers of an opportunity to continue their skills "at home," Victoria lawyer Louis Lindholm said Saturday.

He said Canada should re-establish its merchant fleet as soon as possible.

"What could be more complementary and logical development to accompany the creation of the superport at Roberts Bank?"

"I believe that a new Canadian merchant marine could be established, with ships built in Canada on the sea coasts of this nation, without the necessity of subsidies to support them."

Lindholm was speaking at a "policy thinkers' conference," organized by Southern Vancouver Island Liberal Association, at the University of Victoria.

"We have fundamental reasons for wanting to revive the shipbuilding industry," he said. "Our greatest wealth lies, not in the richness of our natural resources, abundant though they may be, but in the people who make up our nation."

BIG INVESTMENT

"The most valuable of these are those who have developed professional or technical skills to a high degree, and we have a gigantic investment in their education and training.

"I don't think, therefore, that we should regard with complacence the mass exodus of our skilled workers to the United States, and elsewhere, as a result of the closure of VMD shipyards and the sickness prevailing today in the shipbuilding industry on this coast and, indeed, on the east coast.

"Just this week it was announced that Canadian Vickers in east Montreal was closing after 58 years in business."

TRADING NATION

In what was hailed as a statesmanlike speech by 100 Liberals attending the conference, Lindholm said Canada is now the fourth trading nation of the world.

British Columbia exports tremendous quantities of wheat, iron ore, copper ore, timber, pulp and other commodities in the new super-cargo carriers recently brought into use.

The port of Vancouver, two years ago, became the busiest port in terms of tonnage handled in Canada, topping Montreal for the first time.

FREIGHT VOLUME

In 1967 Vancouver handled 23.1 million tons of freight in deepsea and coastal trade.

"This happens to be 10 times the amount of tonnage that is handled by the port of Seattle," Lindholm said.

Shortly after Confederation, Canada was the third largest shipbuilding and the fourth largest ship-owning nation in the world.

"We contributed significantly to the allied victories in two world wars by building and manning an incredible number of merchant and fighting ships in proportion to our manpower."

Lindholm said Roberts Bank will be the largest supertanker and super cargo carrier port in the world.

WHISTLE STOP

"According to the engineers who are developing Roberts Bank, the present port facilities at Vancouver will appear in comparison as a whistle stop to Grand Central Station.

"We have in this development the opportunity to give the shipping industry and, thereby, all industry a significant shot in the arm.

"And, as one of the world's leading trading nations, I suggest it is imperative that we have available, for all the nations of the world, sufficient super-cargo carrier bottoms to deliver our products wherever they may be required."

LABOR COSTS

"And in this era of the supercargo carrier, let it no longer be argued that labor costs would render Canadian bottoms operationally non-competitive with the ships of Liberia, Greece or other nations."

Lindholm said it is projected that the coal which is delivered from Fernie to Japan through Roberts Bank will initially be carried to Japan by 100,000-ton cargo carriers.

"These ships will be able to berth, load and sail again for Japan within 24 hours, thanks to the ultra-modern loading equipment that is to be installed there.

STARTING DATE

"It is expected that the first shipments to Japan starting at 3,000,000 tons per annum and rising to 5,000,000 tons of coal per year, will be trans-shipped through Roberts Bank about the end of this year.

"Canadians, I say, should be building and manning the ships that carry our products. But, at the present time, not even Canadian firms support this policy for reasons of economy.

"At the present time, while our shipyards are failing, Canadian Pacific is having six container ships built in the United Kingdom, and MacMillan Bloedel has recently had lumber carriers built in Japan.

CHANGE CLIMATE 4

"We cannot blame industry for attempting to have its ships built at the cheapest prices, but we must do something to change the economic climate so that this is not so—and I believe there are steps we can take to reverse the trend."

Lindholm said, if Canada restored its merchant marine and its shipbuilding:

"Our trained technicians could return from Seattle or Virginia, or wherever they are now, and those that are here would have a reasonable assurance of permanency in the shipbuilding industry."

Lindholm said the Roberts Bank superport could be the greatest marine freeway in the world—the Rotterdam of the Pacific.

"It is obvious that extensive facilities for ship repair will be required, not only for our ships, but for the ships of the other nations which will be carrying away cargoes from our country.

"There is a broad base for the re-establishment of the shipbuilding industry in British Columbia."

Gaglardi Nominated In Kamloops

KAMLOOPS (CP) — With a banner reading "we want our Phil of the good life," Social Credit party members here Saturday night nominated Phil Gaglardi to run in the next provincial election.

Gaglardi, a minister without portfolio in the provincial Social Credit government, said "I thought it over very carefully and after the urging of the party members in Kamloops along with a vote of confidence from the premier I decided to cast my hat in the ring."

One reason for running is to do everything he can to prevent the New Democratic Party from getting into power, he said.

He said election of the NDP in B.C. would "shake all of Canada."

Gaglardi, who resigned as highways minister last year following heavy Opposition criticism, said Premier W. A. C. Bennett told him that Gaglardi's success in the cabinet in the future would depend on Social Credit's margin of victory in the next election.

FORGET PAST QUEBEC TOLD

MANIWAKI, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told a predominantly French crowd here Sunday to avoid obsessions with past injustice and look to the future.

"The future will belong to those who build the future," the Liberal leader told 500 people in the local ballpark where he opened the local baseball season.

In all countries, there are injustices in the past. If one spends all the time looking back at them, obsessions result.

He said the future of the region he was visiting depends much more on the people in it than on the government. The country needs people with hope who believe in the future.

"Come to us with the problems of the future," he told the people of this wood products manufacturing community of 8,000 some 90 miles north of Ottawa in Quebec bush country.

Although he spoke mostly in French, some of Mr. Trudeau's punchiest lines were said in the brief English portion.

In French, he said Canada has its problems, as other countries do. The question of regional disparities and the co-existence of the English and French cultures are two. But they can be resolved.

A few hundred townspeople joined him on a pied-piper street walk from the town hall, where he signed the guest book, to the ballpark.

Bertrand Promises Votes On Constitutional Issues

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jaques Bertrand announced Sunday that the Union Nationale government will introduce legislation this fall to enable Quebec province to hold referendums on "all political and constitutional questions."

Mr. Bertrand made the announcement at the end of a three-day trek across Northeastern Quebec, including the Gaspe Peninsula, in his campaign for the party's permanent leadership.

The interim leader made no effort to conceal that his announcement was designed to knock down Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal's leadership bid.

"I had to hit, and I hit hard," the confident premier told a reporter. "It's a technical knockout."

Informants say Mr. Bertrand thinks his referendum strategy will contain politically the separatist threat of Rene Levesque's ambitious new Parti Quebecois.

The Bertrand strategists also say that the referendum registration will be used as a negotiating weapon to club constitutional concessions out of the stand-firm federal government of Prime Minister Trudeau.

Mr. Bertrand feels he has scored a TKO against the Cardinal campaign because Mr. Cardinal's leadership bid has been identified with slowness of the current constitutional negotiations.

The 44-year-old education minister has said federal-provincial negotiations are stalemated.

But Bertrand backers say that by promising referendum legislation they are eliminating the need for a Cardinal candidacy on the constitutional front.

The Bertrand view is that referendum legislation would buy the government much-needed time to accomplish the complicated task of negotiating a new constitution.

B.C. TEL FACES STRIKE VOTE

All three employee divisions of B.C. Telephone Co. today rejected the contract recommendations of a federal conciliation board.

The union representing the more than 6,000 telephone workers told the Times from Vancouver that a strike vote will now be conducted as soon as possible.

Bert Johns, general secretary of the plant division, Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C., said the 2,760 plant employees rejected the conciliation recommendations by a majority of 87 per cent.

Clerical workers voted 84 per cent no and the traffic division 81 per cent. Johns added that a majority of those eligible voted.

B.C. Telephone Co., which is controlled by the New York-based General Telephone & Electronics of America, had early said it would accept the conciliation board recommendations after first expressing "deep concern" over the $15 million the increases would add to the payroll over the next two years.

Captain to Pay Fine of $3,500

LAKE AREA SITE ASKED FOR SCHOOL

St. Margaret's School for Girls has applied to Saanich for rezoning of 10 acres near Blenkinsop Lake for a new school.

The site is on Lucas Avenue at the northerly end of Borden Avenue west of the lake.

The school, which has sold its present site on Fort Street, has been looking for a new place for nearly two years.

A month ago, a school official indicated a new location had been found near Blenkinsop Lake, but no site was given and no rezoning application had been submitted.

The school plans to spend $250,000 to build new premises and another $250,000 for a residence for boarders.

Fishing Infraction Called Inadvertent

The master of a Japanese fishing vessel who violated Canada's 12-mile fishing limit was fined $3,500 in central court today.

Capt. Yurio Minenaga pleaded guilty.

"Invasion of fishing rights in Canada is a serious business," said Magistrate William Ostler.

He referred to a similar case in Prince Rupert where a captain was fined $2,500.

"It certainly can't be said the Prince Rupert case is not generally known. It hasn't provided a deterrent."

"It's only because of the diligence of the patrol vessel so little fish was taken," he said.

Maximum fine for the offence is $5,000.

Capt. Walter Furlong of the fisheries vessel Laurier said he observed the Japanese boat Koyo Maru inside the 12-mile limit while he was on patrol Thursday off the northern end of Vancouver Island.

10 MILES OUT

He took radar bearings and raised the international code signal "you are under arrest" as he closed in on her. Radar bearings taken again when he was 200 yards away showed the Koyo Maru to be 10.1 miles from the coast.

A boarding party from the Laurier returned with the master and three officers from the Japanese vessel and were able to talk with the assistance of an interpreter from Port Hardy.

As the Laurier came alongside the Koyo Maru, Capt. Furlong said he could see fishing nets coming aboard over the stern. He said the tide was flooding causing the fish vessel to drift inshore.

The Koyo Maru, a 180-foot vessel weighing 2,500 tons, carried 39 tons of ocean perch and one ton of black cod. She also carried two radar sets, a depth sounder and navigation gear he said, although while under his observation the radar was not in operation.

RED LINE

He said Capt. Minenaga's charts indicated he knew of the 12-mile limit as they had a red line drawn along the coast.

He said Capt. Minenaga gave all assistance possible.

Three fisheries officers were in court, as were three of the 42-man crew of the Koyo Maru.

The proceedings were translated to the Japanese skipper by Victoria housewife Michiko Warkentyne. He was represented by Alan Patterson. Robert Hutchison acted for the Crown.

Capt. Minenaga, testifying in his own behalf, said when he first observed the fisheries vessel he believed he was beyond the 12-mile limit. He said a map was used and radar bearings taken which could have been inaccurate.

He suggested the sensitivity of the equipment may have been dulled and also the vessel was under pressure from wind and tide.

He said the boat left Japan March 22.

Another officer from the Japanese vessel, who took radar positions before and after the nets were put out, said both were outside the 12-mile limit.

NO FLIGHT

Patterson said there was no evidence of flight from the fisheries vessel and it was obvious they were aware of the limit but came through by inadvertence.

Hutchison said he was not asking for forfeiture of the ship, its equipment or catch, and the magistrate directed they be released after the fine was paid.

Hutchieson said although it was a first offence for this captain, the Department of Fisheries looked at it as a second offence for Japan.

"We want to make it clear we strongly enforce the 12-mile limit," he said.

"Japan is not on trial," the magistrate replied.

HIGH-RISE

Bed Fire Victim 'Poor'

An 80-year-old retired teacher is fighting for his life today after suffering extensive burns in an early-morning bed fire caused by a defective heating pad.

Henry P. Pearson, 240 Douglas, an invalid, was reported in "poor" condition at noon by St. Joseph's Hospital officials.

He suffered burns to his arms, face and chest after a heating pad on his chest shorted and burned between 5 and 6 a.m.

His wife Margaret, 79, was not burned but was treated for shock at hospital and released.

Deputy fire chief Carl Coates said Pearson was in bed in the couple's sixth-floor apartment in the Beacon Towers when the fire broke out.

HEARD FALL

His wife was in the next room and heard him fall from bed. The fire scorched the bed and the floor where he fell.

Mrs. Pearson dragged her husband to the bathroom and poured water over him to extinguish the flames.

A neighbor taking the morning air on the balcony above the Pearson apartment spotted smoke and called the apartment manager and the fire department.

Manager Lloyd Kearns found the Pearsons had chain-locked their apartment door so they entered from an adjoining balcony. He and a neighbor put out the blaze with fire extinguishers.

Firemen arrived moments later.

HAPPENED BEFORE

The chief said he is attempting to determine why a fuse had not been blown when the blanket shorted.

"We have had this type of fire before," he said.

"The insulation around the wiring within the electric blanket or pad wears away and these things become hazards."

Coates said people with electric blankets should watch for deterioration and replace them when they show signs of wear.

Mr. Pearson was to have entered hospital today for an operation.

Gun Ended Agony Of Picnic Pace Race

By PAT DUFOUR

Sometimes it doesn't pay to move when you're racing.

One of the wisest things we did Saturday when we were making our fifth bid at the Juan de Fuca classic in the family Cal 20, Galenaia, was to decide to take time out and have a picnic.

We were off William Head when the easterly died and we knew there was no way to push through the six-knot tide barrier at Race Rocks.

Other Juan de Fuca racers ahead of us and several Swiftsure entries, including Frank Bush's Concubine, had already dropped the hook in the bay this side of the Race.

We had to settle for a picnic area offshore and 60 fathoms deep.

We felt pretty smug as we sat there sipping long cool drinks and munching sandwiches as yachts slithered past us, fighting with spinnakers in a vain attempt to beat the strong flood tide.

This was to be the calmest and most frustrating Juan de Fuca Galenaia had finished . . . and the most challenging.

THEY FOLLOWED

Taking a flyer when the wind began to freshen at about 4 p.m. we decided to up anchor and try to make our way through the Race. It worked, and it wasn't long before the flotilla along the coastline followed suit.

Soon the Race was filled with yachts beating across the tide.

Being the smallest boat in the race, we knew it wouldn't be long before the longer hulls and larger sails of our competitors would carry them into the lead.

We made our way slowly over the tide to the American shore and all day Saturday tacked our way up along the coastline.

On both shores could be seen strings of boats trying to play the favorable back eddies, waiting for the tide change.

MADDENING

Had we not been racing, Saturday night would have been like something out of a South Seas movie. A full golden moon and a far too calm sea proved beautiful . . . but maddening.

We played what little wind shifts there were and had that familiar feeling of apprehension. Would the yachts on the Canadian side find offshore breezes that we kept losing?

Sunrise in the Strait is the best sight for any sailor. Our spirits rose as the sky lightened and we could see that our competition on the Canadian side was still held back from crossing by the strong ebb tide.

A local wind pattern gave us enough speed to make the Clallam Bay mark in time to round with about 10 of our competitors.

You still had the impression you were on a picnic as the small armada of boats slowly inched around the RCMP's Victoria which was our turning mark.

THE FISHERMAN

As we jostled for position one of the Victoria's crew nonchalantly sat in the stern playing his fishing line.

Safely around, we all set our spinnakers and made for Race. The sail down the Strait was uneventful. The westerly was mild, pushing us along in restrained strength.

Race Rocks was kind, the tide was with us at 4:30 p.m. as we worked our way through.

By 5 p.m. we were between Albert Head and Victoria with about 15 minutes sailing time to the finish line if the wind held. There our luck ran out.

For 5½ hours we sat in sight of Victoria, spinnaker sagging and the tide pushing us back to Albert Head.

Finally the wind pattern that brought the first of the Swiftsure yachts home began to creep in, rippling the oily-smooth surface of the water.

We finally began to move.

You feel pretty small when you're sailing in company with yachting giants like Diamond Head and Mary Bower.

You feel even smaller when you waddle over a finish line with only the tide carrying you in . . . packed like the filling in a sandwich, with a Swiftsure yacht nuzzling your port and starboard sides.

GREAT SOUND

But any one out there will tell you that that finish gun sounds pretty good . . . no matter how you finally made it.

Gordie Hill of the West Vancouver Yacht Club must have felt like Hercules himself when he crossed the line.

His Ariki IV was the big winner. She sailed the 76-mile course to come in first over the line, winning the San Juan Trophy for the first boat home and the Royal Victoria Yacht Club Trophy for division one winner.

R. S. Marshall of the Corinthian Yacht Club in Seattle won the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association Trophy for division two, sailing his Seaquin to the winning spot.

In the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet race which sailed the same course the Anacortes Yacht Club Trophy for first place went to William Gardner's Lucy Alice of the Corinthian Yacht Club.

Co-skippered by D. F. Barr and J. Ford of the Corinthian Yacht Club, Holiday came second in division 1. Others placing were R. G. Foxall's Foxee, John Brandlmayr's Coho, R. C. McColl's Aphrodite 111, Peter White's Upepo, R. K. Baker and F. J. Pine's Barca de Vela, Denny Coverdale's Melee, R. W. Hume's Khu, Dr. Roger Oldham's Te-Pah, Rick Todd's Kiwi, Jack Pinch's Le Cordon Bleu. A. Jurisson's Mutineer 11 failed to finish.

JUST RETRIBUTION was had by the Navy ketch HMCS Oriole when she piled on miles between Port San Juan and Neah Bay, clocking nine knots, the fastest time of any yacht. At the start, the big Navy yacht was the last to get away, being carried by the tide almost to Trial Island before picking up enough wind to move forward.

TAKE A SUNDAY, ADD SUN AND SAND and presto, any beach is overrun with girl watchers. That's what happened at Thetis Lake Park, shown here, but it was a scene repeated around Greater Victoria. The Swiftsure Classic drew crowds of spectators to Beacon Hill Park too but the beach scenes proved an old truth once again—a blonde in a bikini beats a billowing spinnaker for drawing a crowd this or any other weekend. The sun appeared only off and on over the weekend but still produced a 70 Saturday, 7 degrees above the annual average. The weatherman predicts at least three more days of the same. Look closely and you'll see the only problem at Thetis Saturday—there were more watchers than girls. (William John photo.)

Gladys Diversifies Into Ice Lollies

By PENNY SAVER

After the deluge of Thursday came the sunshine of Friday, and it began to look again as though a long hot summer to balance the nasty cold winter might be more than a dream. "This time," declared Gladys, "I am going to be prepared. Penny, you would not have believed it. During those hot days my children were permanently attached to anything frozen—milkshakes, ice cream cones, ice lollies of every shape and name. They spent their own allwoances then began to demand more. I tried making ice cold drinks, but it seems those few degrees between liquid and solid made all the difference. My efforts were politely but firmly rejected. This time I am going to save money by making ice lollies of my own and I'm going to start practising now!"

Gladys' ice lollie kit consists of one freezer, great quantities of juices of various flavors and three sets of moulds with sticks. These moulds are 79 cents each. Each mould consists of a tray with space for eight conical lollies. The tray is made of a flexible whitish plastic so the lollies can be loosened and pulled out once they are firmly frozen. The sticks come in the set and are also made of plastic. They include a round lip to keep the drips from getting on hands and clothing. Extras are provided since the plastic is soft, and a child could mangle it. When even the extras have been rendered un-reusable more can be bought at eight for 39 cents. The sticks come in pink, orange and yellow. The collar that keeps back the drips also acts to stabilize the stick in the lollie mould.

Mathilda Versus Weeds

When Mathilda saw Christopher Paul's prophecy for a good growing year in last Thursday's paper she began to gird herself for a full scale battle against weeds. "Since they win out in bad growing years it stands to reason they'll do even better this year." Part of her equipment is a tote box full of the basic gardening tools—trowel, gardening gloves, claws and so forth. The tote box itself cost her $1.39 and for convenience alone may be the wisest purchase she ever made. It is made of heavy plastic and is divided into three sections. There is a carrying handle on the top and the box is 14 inches by 10 inches in size. There are many colors available. These boxes would be just the thing for the housewife who wants her cleaning potions handy as she moves from room to room or for the home handiman when he has to move his tools to the source of trouble.

The problem of slippery bathtubs is one that has received quite a bit of attention and the solutions get better all the time. The latest is self-adhesive daisy-shaped flowers made from a pebbled rubber substance. A kit containing seven large daisies and six small ones is $3.69. The two sizes of daisies are different shades, and the colors available are yellow, blue, green, white and rose. The package shows several patterns in which the flowers can be arranged to give a maximum of safety and yet be attractive to look at. These colorful flowers are a beautiful and practical way to replace a soggy rubber safety mat.

SEW SIMPLE

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Mrs. Farmer,

The other day I made a terrible mistake and put my buttonholes on the wrong side of my dress. I haven't enough material left to recut the front and wonder if you have any idea how I may cover up my mistake.—Mrs. M. A. W.

Dear Mrs. M. A. W.:

First, I suggest you measure the fronts and see if you can't just whip the completed buttonholes together, sew the button over this and remake them on the correct side. The success of this would depend on whether the lap at the centre front would cover the old buttonhole.

If this doesn't work, you may be able to add a decorative strip of contrasting grosgrain ribbon, embroidered banding, heavy lace or whatever letting it extend past the front edge of the garment. This could actually make the dress more original and interesting than it would have been without the contrasting trim. You could also add decorative frogs which would cover the buttonholes entirely. Since you didn't mention your fabric, I will have to generalize and suggest you work out something original with one of the above ideas.

Budget Recipes Help Keep Cook Sane As Food Prices Reach for the Top

Grocery shopping these days is not for the faint-hearted.

The shock of more price increases every day can lead to severe depression, not to mention dizziness in the head and weakness in the knees whenever the cashier totals the bill.

In an attempt to help keep the grocery bill within reasonable limits, the Times Women's Department has collected economical recipes for main dishes, including meatless meals, which vary the monotonous meat-loaf-or-hamburger menus of the cook on a budget.

The first in a series, Beef Biscuit Casserole, uses two cups of shredded wheat to stretch one pound of ground beef to serve six to eight people.

BEEF BISCUIT CASSEROLE

Two tbsp. vegetable oil, 1 clove garlic, crushed, OR ¼ tsp. garlic powder, 1 cup diced onion, 1 pound ground beef, ½ green pepper, diced (optional), 1½ tsp. salt, ¼ cup ketchup, 1 28-ounce can tomatoes, 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce, 2 cups crushed shredded wheat, 2 tbsp. melted butter, ½ tsp. seasoned salt.

Add garlic or garlic powder to oil, then chip in onion and cook until onion is limp and lightly colored. Add beef and brown; break-up meat as you stir. Add next five ingredients plus 1½ cups of the crushed wheat.

Turn mixture into 1½-quart casserole dish. Mix the remaining wheat with butter and seasoned salt and sprinkle over top. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes.

The following recipe gives the family all the essential nutrients in one dish.

SIGH-HIGH PIE

Two cups diced cooked ham, 2 tbsp. chopped onion, ¼ cup chopped celery, tbsp. butter or margarine, 6 tbsp. flour, 2 cups milk, 1¼ tsp salt, 2 hard-cooked eggs, 2 tbsp. chopped green pepper (optional).

Topping

One and one-half cups flour, 2½ tsp. baking powder, tsp. salt, 3 tbsp. shortening, ⅓ cup grated cheddar cheese, ⅔ cup milk.

For filling, brown onion and celery in hot butter; blend in flour, then add milk gradually and cook, stirring until thickened. Season to taste. Add quartered eggs, green pepper and ham. Scrape into greased casserole.

Mix topping ingredients in order given; spread the soft dough over the ham mixture and bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes. (Serves 4 to 6).

FISH SOUFFLE
(Serves 6)

Two cups cooked or canned salmon, tuna, or any other fish; ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon Paprika, 2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice, ½ cup dry bread crumbs, ½ cup milk, 3 egg yolks, beaten until thick; 3 egg whites, beaten stiff.

Remove bits of bone and skin from fish, and separate into flakes. Add the seasonings and lemon juice. Cook crumbs and milk together over low heat 5 minutes. Add fish and beaten egg yolks. Fold in beaten egg whites.

Spoon into a greased baking dish. Set in a pan of hot water and bake at 350 deg. until firm, about 30 minutes. Serve with a well-seasoned tomato sauce.

VEGETABLE SOUFFLE
(Serves 6)

Three tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon chopped onion, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 cup thin cream (cereal or coffee dream), 1 cup cooked vegetable, mashed or chopped fine; 3 egg yolks, well beaten; 3 egg whites, beaten until stiff.

Cook the shortening and chopped onion over low heat until yellow. Add the flour and blend well. Add the cream and cook and stir until thick. Add the vegetable and stir in the beaten egg yolks. Cook over low heat 1 minute. Season to taste, adding more onion if needed. Cool at least 10 minutes.

Add the stiffly beaten egg whites, folding gently into the vegetable mixture. Spoon into an ungreased baking dish (if the souffle is to be turned out on the serving dish as from a ring mold, then do grease). Bake at 350 deg. until firm, about 30 minutes.

TIPS: In place of all cream, use part stock in which the vegetable was cooked. Mix leftover vegetables if you like, such as peas and carrots, celery and carrots, or mushrooms and cauliflower. Mashed turnip makes a wonderful vegetable souffle.

Second Member

ZOMBIA, Malawi (AP) — Miss Janet Longwe, elected unopposed, has been sworn in as the second woman member of the Malawi parliament. The first is Mrs. Margaret Mlanga, 39, a mother of nine.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Hubby Has Lover? Wife Has One, Too!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am sure that my husband is running around with another woman. Is there any way I can find out who she is? I can't afford to hire a private detective right now, but as soon as my boy friend comes back from Vietnam I will be in better finacial shape, as he says in his letters he is doing very well over there.

So please let me know if there is some kind of detective outfit that will let me pay for their services on time with a small down payment. Thank you. — Suspicious in San Diego

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: I know of no detective agency that "looks now and collects later." Wouldn't it be a whole lot neater if you just told your husband about your boyfriend and asked him about his girl friend?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily married for over a dozen years and have four fine children. Out of the blue, he told me that he had a 16-year-old son! The girl got pregnant while they were both in college. She left school, making no effort to contact him and he never even thought of her again. Then they accidentally met three weeks ago at an airport terminal.

She told him about their "son" (I'll call him "Buddy"), and that she was married. Buddy has been legally adopted by her husband. She said she was glad she ran into him as she had been having her problems with Buddy and maybe he could help.

Buddy wrote my husband a letter telling him all about himself and he ends up with, "I would like to come and visit you." My husband says he has no feelings about the boy one way or the other, but he'd have no objections to having him visit us, and he hopes I wouldn't have.

No one in our community knows about this, and I prefer to keep it that way. I certainly don't want our children to find out. I can't have Buddy visiting us without answering a lot of questions.

Abby, this woman and her son went about their own business for 16 years. My husband had forgotten her, and now she reappears to upset everything. Thank God we live 1,000 miles apart. What is the right thing to do in this matter? Your advice is badly needed. — Please, No Name

DEAR NO NAME: Urge your husband to realize that his first consideration should be you and your children. If he really wants to see Buddy, he should meet him somewhere, but for the boy to visit your home would be unfair and unwise.

DEAR ABBY: After my umpteenth argument with my mother, I flounced out of the house and headed for the back porch, where I sat brooding. A newspaper lying nearby caught my eye. Picking it up, I began idly looking through it until I came to Dear Abby's column of advice. "Maybe other people's problems will make mine seem less bad," I thought, starting to read. Suddenly I was stopped by your answer to one problem, which seemed to have been especially written for me. It said: "It's the same old story; you can abuse a mother, neglect her, but you can win her back with only four words, 'Mom, I love you.' "

I hurried back into the house. My mother was seated at the kitchen table, looking so tired and dejected, it cut me up. I went over to her, put my arms around her and said, "Mom, I love you."

Without a word she hugged me tight, then burst into tears. And before I knew it, I was crying, too, and we both had a good cry together.

Since then we get along much better — perhaps because I always find a way to say, "Mom, I love you."

Thank you, Abby. — Alabama Teen-Ager

CAUSEWAY COMES ALIVE WITH THE SOUND OF MUSIC

"Who are Eaton's?" asked one confused tourist while Eaton's employees danced on the lawn of the Empress Hotel Saturday night to the Dixieland music of the Ambassadors. The Centennial ball was only one of the events marking the hundredth birthday of the department store. Earlier in the evening fireworks had been let off from the Causeway. Just before supper was served sparklers were lit on a giant birthday cake. On Saturday afternoon retired Eatonians had a chance to renew old acquaintances at a tea held in their honor at the Empress. Next big event for the staff members will be a family picnic June 25. (Photo by William E. John.)

Woman Drafts Maritime Statute

By MARYLIN BENDER

NEW YORK — Elisabeth Mann Borgese is a pianist, science fiction writer, self-taught multilinguist, stenographer and internal law drafter, as well as the only woman fellow at the Centre for the Study of Democratic Institutions in California. She also is the daughter of the late Thomas Mann as well as the mother of two scientists.

But Mrs. Borgese will have nothing to do with recently revived theories of intelligence being hereditary.

"It is theoretically not impossible that heredity might have something to do with intelligence, but it is a useless, vicious thing to research. We've gone through all that in Nazi German," she said recently, her soft voice rising to a polite pitch of vehemence.

Her father, enemy of totalitarianism as well as a giant of 20th century German literature, came to the United States with his wife and six children in 1938. He died in Zurich in 1955.

What she does care about, most passionately and most particularly these days, is the peaceful use, exploration and exploitation of the ocean, man's last frontier, under the international rule of law. She has drafted a model statute for a maritime assembly along the lines of the United Nations. The proposed statute, published by the centre, will figure in a conference to be held in Malta in June, 1970.

Mrs. Borgese holds no degree in law, a lack that inhibits her more when in the company of her super-intellectual colleagues than the fact of being the only woman in their midst.

"I don't find it a handicap at all to be the only woman but I sometimes feel a sort of disadvantage because I don't have a strictly scholarly background. I must take that into account and not stick my neck out too far," the 51-year-old grandmother said with a laugh.

STUDIED PIANO

Mrs. Borgese's only diploma is from a Zurich conservatory where she studied to be a pianist. She married G. A. Borgese, an Italian literary and political critic, in 1938 soon after meeting him at her father's house in Princeton, N.J. Dr. Borgese died in 1952.

After their marriage, she let the piano take a back seat. To be a more efficient secretary to her husband, she taught herself English shorthand when she was in the hospital having her first daughter, Angelica (now 28 and a theoretical physicist married to a theoretical physicist). Italian shorthand was mastered along with the delivery of Dominica, now 25 and a biochemist at Rockefeller University here.

DOG CAN TYPE

Mrs. Borgese has also taught herself Serbo-Croatian (the better to study Yugoslav constitutional law, which bears on her maritime statute). She once trained her English setter to type with his nose. "There's no question that teaching certain animals to use instruments for communication will be done within a few years just like going to the moon and that it will alter our concept of nature and man's position in it," she said.

As she related in her book, "The Language Barrier: Beasts and Men," published last year, the dog responded to her command to get a bone by tapping out on a specially constructed typewriter, "a bad a bad dog."

The setter managed to compose 60 words on the oversize machine, but Mrs. Borgese concedes that he isn't a particularly bright dog and that dogs aren't as intelligent as chimpanzees, elephants and dolphins.

Mrs. Borgese divides her year between Santa Barbara and Florence. In both communities, she is a hostess and cook of renown. Her specialties range from various pastas to an oxtail stew ("with a lot of wine; I like to have everything going up in flames") to zabagliones, crepes and mousses.

New York Times News Service

Sinus Could Be Tension

CHICAGO (WMNS) — It may look like sinus trouble, it may hurt like sinus trouble, it may drip like sinus trouble. But, says a medical authority, 90 per cent of "sinus trouble" is something else.

Usually, says Dr. Brian F. McCabe of the University of Iowa, it's a combination of a stuffed nose and a tension headache.

How to tell the difference? A sinus headache gets worse when you lie down because drainage is impaired, whereas a tension headache is relieved by relaxation.

And infected sinuses produce green or yellow mucus rather than the clear white mucus of an ordinary cold.

Centenarians Thrive

SOFIA (AP)—Bulgaria has 259 women older than 100, the news agency BTA reported. It said case histories show most come from big families, married early and thrived on 70 to 90 years of housework.

Walk Softly

VANCOUVER (CP) — Becky Victorino is teaching children of deaf parents how to be quiet.

And once that's accomplished she hopes to teach them how to speak up in their most effective manner.

Some of the children are deaf themselves. Others aren't. But they all come from homes where noise has never been regarded as a problem.

Miss Victorino is heading a new pre-school course which is attempting to introduce these children to useful speech at an early age.

Raising her voice above the din of hammers, music boxes, clacking toy guns and stomping children, she told an interviewer:

"All this noise really doesn't bother me because I'm used to working with children. But deaf children especially are careless about some things, like knocking things over and letting them roll noisily.

"We would like to teach them to be more careful and make better use of their eyes."

Walking softly and handling objects with a minimum of noise is only the first step. The most important work is making a start on the slow and often fruitless job of teaching them to speak.

Fifty Years Work Appreciated

At 91 years old Mrs. Catherine Telfer is still keen and interested in Salvation Army work, particularly the program for visiting shut-ins. She was one of a group of five women who in 1913 began visiting shut-ins in Victoria's hospitals and homes. She continued these weekly visits for 50 years. In appreciation, the Salvation Army recently presented Mrs. Telfer with a certificate thanking her for her years of service.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Jim: "Who is this Mike Stevens who writes you letters on bridge probabilities? Does he play bridge?"

Oswald: "He played some bridge when we were in the navy. Today, Dr. Mike's work with computers leaves no time for bridge but he follows our column religiously and writes whenever we fail to go deeply enough into the matematics of a hand."

Opening lead—♣Q

Jim: "His comments on our hand of Feb. 19 seem to warrant showing it again. What about his theory of the play?"

Oswald: "When you saw this hand played declarer ruffed the second club, cashed one high trump, entered dummy with the jack of diamonds, finessed against the queen of spades, claimed his contract and asked you what you thought of his play."

Jim: "Naturally I told him that angels could do no more but he really had taken the worst of it when he played the trump finesse instead of trying to drop the queen."

Oswald: Dr. Mike brings up the question of the significance of the 10 of diamonds dropping from East on the first diamond lead. He points out that if East would automatically play his lowest diamond then the 10 would be a singleton and the finesse indicated because West was marked long in diamonds. He also discusses the situation where East would falsecard to give a wrong count but it is actually academic because the correct play is to lead the second high spade immediately just in case diamonds divide 5-0 and the first diamond gets ruffed.

"The correct play doesn't work but whenever you hold this same hand you will have a better chance to make your contract if you just try to drop that queen of trumps."

SOUTH OAK BAY!
SECLUSION DE LUXE

I am sincerely glad to have the exclusive listing of this truly unique property, now offered for the first time since its creation in 1958. The floor plan is one of the best I've seen. From the entrance hall the living room with F.P. stretches to right, while the large separate dining room is to the left, with a beautiful sunny kitchen with loads of cupboards and large breakfast nook, off. The thru hall runs behind these three rooms and gives access to three generous sized bedrooms. As a delightful surprise there is a lovely 3 room in-law suite consisting of bed-sitting room, kitchen (equipped) and full bathroom. The whole property is carefully landscaped in mature shrubs and plants, walks, patio and shady dells — truly a sylvan paradise!
Could not be duplicated at $35,900.

BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES
School District No. 66 (Lake Cowichan)

In the matter of the strike involving the custodial, maintenance and transportation employees the Board submits the following contract modifications to which the Board acquiesced:

1. Saturday work at rate and one-half.
2. Annual Holidays—2 weeks or 4 percent after one year, 3 weeks or 6½ percent after four years, 4 weeks or 8½ percent after 15 years, and 5 weeks or 10½ percent after 20 years
3. Compassionate Leave—Extended to 5 days and first 3 days no longer deducted from accrued sick leave
4. Graveyard Differential—Established as 12 cents per hour differential
5. Pay Days—Effective 1 January, 1970 would be on a bi-weekly pay day system
6. Probationary Period—Reduced to 30 days for seniority recognition
7. Revision of Pay Scale—20 cents across the board effective 1 January, 1969 and a further 20 cents across the board effective 1 January, 1970. In addition the driver mechanic and maintenance journeyman received an additional 5 cents effective 1 January, 1969 and the driver utility rate would be raised 3 cents to establish a common category for all bus drivers.

The main point of contention centres around severance pay in the form proposed by the Union and the fact that it is part of a package demand. The Board felt that since it assumed the liability by the incorporation of the Municipal Superannuation Plan in recognizing all back service (less one year) no further benefits would be justified.

The contract provides that all full time employees are ensured 52 weeks (40 hours per week) of work each year except for epidemic, fire, or other disaster or necessitated by Legislatvie action.

The Board contributes 50 percent of the premiums for group life insurance and medical insurance.

The only contract modifications which improved the Board's position are:

1. Statutory holiday payments qualified to required employees to work the shift before and the shift after the holiday or be on leave with pay
2. Seniority — The accumulation of 30 days employment must be accumulated within 90 calendar days.

We request the parents of school children to please bear with us during this temporary period of difficulty and thank you for the cooperation you have extended thus far.

The board is prepared to resume negotiations in order that an early settlement may be reached.

Many Uvic Students Worried Over Lack of Summer Work

By SUSAN MAYSE

The University of Victoria's nearly 5,000 students have been out of classes for the past month, but many of them still haven't found jobs.

This is not unusual. University and high school students have always had difficulty finding summer work, let alone summer work that will allow them to pay for next year's tuition.

And statistics show the situation isn't really too severe in Victoria and British Columbia compared to Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, says Canada Manpower.

Nevertheless, the local situation is worrying students, employed and unemployed.

Half the problem, according to Uvic Alma Mater society president Norm Wright, is not knowing exactly how many people have jobs and how many need them.

"I know people who are out of work—but they could be the only half-dozen who are. It's impossible to know," he said.

"We hear 50 per cent of university students are without jobs this summer. It seems like 50 per cent to me, but this is probably an inaccurate figure."

No accurate figures will be available from the Uvic branch of Canada Manpower until fall when they are toted up and released in a report to the university's president, a spokesman for the branch said.

He admitted Manpower figures can only include students who have applied to Manpower for placement. There are many more who try to find work on their own, or through friends and relatives, and there are others who fail to find any satisfactory work at all.

Tentative current student employment figures from Manpower show that 1,625 students had registered there by the end of classes, 650 women and 975 men.

Of these, 250 are still looking for work, said John Atcheson of Canada Manpower.

"Our bureau of two university students, Paula Allen and Charles Hughes, contacts local businesses and people in the tourist trade to let them know the situation, and to encourage them to hire students.

"Most of the openings don't come up until June, however, when the tourists start to arrive," he said.

The response from employers to the bureau's approach apparently will be similar this summer to the response last year, Atcheson said.

"I feared the job situation would be worse this year, but it looks like it's going to be just about the same," he said.

"Employers have become aware of students' needs, from the bureau and from the federal Hire-a-Student campaign. They're quite willing to help out."

The pressure will be most severe on high school students, he said, since they have less time to find a job, and generally have less experience.

JOB CAMPAIGN

"Employers take university students first and grade 12 students second. Younger high school students may not get a job," he said.

This creates problems, especially for grade 12 students who may have to produce about $550 by September just for tuition and text books at university.

Meanwhile, federal Manpower and Immigration Minister Allan MacEachen announced last month the government had introduced a stepped-up program to provide summer jobs for students. About 10 per cent more summer jobs would be open to students than last year, he said.

But Wright said students came to him every day at the Student Union Building asking help in getting jobs, some of them in desperate need, with families depending on them.

"All I've got is questions and no bloody answers," he said.

Girl Guide Walkathon Receipts Top $3,000

A 20-mile walkathon Saturday completed by nearly 400 Victoria Girl Guides, Brownies and Rangers netted an estimated $3,000 to $4,000.

The walk was run on a sponsorship basis, and two of the girls were so heavily supported that when they finished the walk they brought in over $200, said Mrs. H. P. McKeever of the Girl Guides.

About 370 of the girls, the youngest only six years old, walked the full distance through the streets of Victoria, Oak Bay, and Saanich.

The money raised is earmarked for improvements of two Girl Guide camps in the Sooke area. One, at Milnes Landing, is used mostly by Brownies, but the other is the main camp of 160 acres at Shirley.

At the larger camp, according to Mrs. S. E. Clark, shelters will be built, and platforms where the girls can pitch tents.

In time a swimming pool will also be installed, since there is no swimming at the camp in the summer.

Also with the money raised by the walkathon, guide officials hope to make it possible for Girl Guides from outlying areas to attend the camp as well as Victoria girls.

Since the tally sheets are not yet collected, no accurate figure can be given for the funds raised, said Mrs. Clark, and $3,000 to $4,000 is only a rough estimate.

Mayor Hugh Stephen addressed the girls before they set out, and offered $50 to the first girl to come in.

Flea Market Tryout Gets Second Chance

By SUSAN MAYSE

Seven groups of people turned out Saturday afternoon for Victoria's first try at a flea market.

Looking rather forlorn in one corner of the vast Memorial Arena parking lot, seven stalls of goods for sale were established as part of Victoria's first swap-meet.

Described by the Vancouver firm that generated the idea as the place "where people peek, poke, pick, and pay" the swap-meet obviously wasn't a crashing success as far as numbers went.

GOOD RESULTS

However, one of the "merchants", Mrs. J. R. Wannamaker, was satisfied with the results of the swapping.

Arriving with her husband, daughter and daughter's friend, in the family station wagon, she set up a stall offering toys Cathy, 12, had outgrown.

The feature items for sale at their stand were trikes and kiddicars rehabilitated by John Wannamaker, and painted by his wife. Books and records were also offered, at about a third to half their normal price, said Mrs. Wannamaker.

"We had so much junk hanging around we wanted to get rid of, and we thought this would be a good idea," she said.

She estimated she made about $15 to $20 on the sale of various items.

SECOND TRY

"I believe they're holding another one next week—I think it will draw many more people. Everybody was watching the Swiftsure when this one was on," she said.

Another stall was set up by women from Centennial United Church, offering clothes, records, and household gadgets donated by churchgoers.

"We think it was worth our while to come here, but we wouldn't do it more than about once a year," said a spokesman for the group.

HELP CHARITIES

Proceeds from the church's stall will go to charities in Canada and around the world, she said.

"The useful things sold the best—a hotplate, electric iron, a clock, things like that."

Another stall sold home baking and fancy cakes.

Price of admission to the swap-meets is 25 cents, and there is a charge of three dollars to set up a stall.

Details of future meets can be obtained by phoning the arena office at 384-1522.

New Zealand Rotary Group Here On Tour

Seventeen New Zealand Rotarians and their wives were scheduled to visit Butchart's Gardens today before leaving for Vancouver on the next leg of a west coast tour.

The Rotarians, who arrived in Victoria Sunday from Seattle, are returning to New Zealand from the annual world conference of Rotary Clubs which drew 17,000 delegates to Honolulu, Hawaii last week.

They will pass through Vancouver, San Francisco, Los Angeles and the Fiji Islands on their journey home.

Guests of various city Rotarians, the New Zealanders toured Victoria Sunday, and were on their own this morning before the afternoon trip to Butchart's Gardens.

They are scheduled to leave for Vancouver by ferry at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

The New Zealanders were the second large group of Rotarians to visit Vancouver Island. Last week a body of 19 from Toda, Japan visited Duncan and Nanaimo en route to the Honolulu conference.

At the Movies

THE SERGEANT
Rod Steiger
Haida Theatre

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Rod Steiger is an actor in the Shakespearean mould.

He attracts and repels in the manner of Shylock in The Merchant of Venice and Lady Macbeth in the play of that name.

As The Sergeant he is a psychotic homosexual who hides his true desires beneath a barrage of bluster and strident bullying.

When he bellows an order, even the officers jump.

No one would cast any doubt on his masculinity except himself. His broad shoulders square his Eisenhower jacket, yet he is irresistibly attracted to a young private soldier named Swanson (John Philip Law).

The sergeant follows the private around a little French town in 1952. He is jealous of Swanson's lovely girl friend (Ludmila Mikael) and eventually reveals himself by seizing the private in a passionate embrace.

It's revolting to any normal person, but sympathetic to a type who cannot be anything but what he is—a miscarriage of nature.

Twitching his mouth into a tortured smile, soaring with a rage and fondness he cannot understand, Steiger makes the sergeant's internal struggle so fascinating that, much as you feel like leaving the theatre, you are compelled to see it through.

The Sergeant is a totally unlovable person—a petty tyrant, a petty blackmailer, seemingly without compassion or any other likeable human quality.

It is hard to understand the fascination he has for a young soldier who gives up his girl to drink with the sergeant, and who insists to the grumbling GIs that he is "tough but fair."

Rod Steiger does his usual capable job as the hard-tried sergeant, crying out for human contact in his desperate loneliness.

John Philip Law plays Swanson as if he were a fugitive deer, and director John Flynn fleshes out the script with nuances and psychedelic effects.

Before the Magistrate

An 18-year-old girl who admitted in central court Saturday to stealing a man's sweater and a vest from a Victoria department store, said the clothes were presents for her father.

"That's not much of a compliment to him," Magistrate William Ostler told Dianne May, of 574 Culduthel.

Miss May was arrested Friday in a downtown store and charged with theft from two other stores. She was remanded until June 9 for a pre-sentence report.

Stanley MacMillan, 945 Esquimalt, was fined $300 after pleading guilty to impaired driving Saturday.

MacMillan was found by police slumped over the steering wheel of his car which was parked on Esquimalt with the motor running.

Fourth Charge Brings Term Of Four Months

Larry Leno, charged four times in the past year and a half with driving while suspended, was sentenced to four months in jail on Saturday.

"I have surely learned my lesson," Leno, 21, of 687 Hoy Lake, told Magistrate William Ostler in central court.

"I'm going to get rid of my car and use my feet from now on," he said. "It's just no good to start life out this way."

"It's taken you a very long time to learn your lesson," replied Ostler.

"You have shown wilful disobedience and defiance of this court."

Leno was stopped May 23 on the Trans-Canada Highway during a routine police check and admitted his licence had been suspended.

Dress Up Stanfield Tory Meeting Urges

LONDON, Ont. (CP) —The national and Ontario presidents of the Progressive Conservative party agreed Saturday that their leader, Robert Stanfield, needs to be dressed up into a more "marketable commodity."

But Stanfield told a news conference: "You are what you are, I am what I am. I can't change except to a limited degree without becoming a phoney."

Earlier, Frank Moores, national president of the party, and Ontario president Alan Eagleson, told a question-and-answer session of the Western District Progressive Conservative Association that the growing influence of the media means that political leaders must be good media salesmen.

"If your leaders have colorful personalities, you get coverage," Moores said to about 125 party supporters, who told him the Progressive Conservatives now look like "the party of yesterday" and pressed him for an explanation.

Moores, MP for Bonavista-Trinity-Conception, said that a good deal of the problem was that Stanfield and the party "didn't project as well as the Liberals in the last election" and still weren't projecting.

"If we had an election now, I don't think we'd be in very good shape," he said. "Today we do not project a good national image but I hope that will change. Fortunately we have three years until another election to build the party."

But he wasn't sure that an attempt to be more swinging or to manipulate the media was the answer.

"We're not selling soap and if we are, we want it to be good soap," he said. Besides, "you can't change yourself except within certain narrow limits."

Stanfield said the answer to Progressive Conservative party problems was to convince the electorate that the party has policies for handling urgent Canadian problems.

"We're at the stage now where its necessary to come forward in a more positive way," he said, promising that the party would do so at its policy convention slated for this fall.

PROBLEM IS IMAGE

Eagleson agreed the problem was image and Prime Minister Trudeau's ability to put over a sense of vibrancy and excitement.

"Because of the media influence, it's a prerequisite to have a marketable property," he said. "We've got to dress up the party image and the leader to the point where we can catch the voters."

Stanfield was asked at his news conference about a recent newspaper poll that indicated his party's popularity has dropped since the last election.

"If the poll is valid, then we have not succeeded in channelling our way the discontent that is arising with the prime minister's performance," the Opposition Leader said.

Government Blamed For Lack of Support

Government policy towards handicapped children was criticized by the outgoing president of the Cerebral Palsy Association of British Columbia in his annual report Saturday.

The provincial government "doesn't give two figs for handicapped children," said B. W. F. McLoughlin of Vancouver at the annual meeting at the G. R. Pearkes Clinic.

"In the last three years the population of this province has grown substantially, the provincial revenue has grown substantially, the case load of our treatment centres continues to grow substantially, but our government grant remains the same," he said.

Fifty per cent of the association's operating funds should come from government coffers, McLoughlin suggested.

"The cold philosophy of our government ignores the desperate human need observed every day in our treatment centres?" he said. "The government has totally failed in its responsibility."

Three years ago government money paid 23 per cent of the costs of the association, last year 31.9 per cent, and this year 18.5 per cent.

"Our feeling is, it's all very well to build the buildings, without government money, but once they're finished, they also need support from the government," said Fred Tanner, president of the Victoria branch of the association.

"It's important we get the extra support, as our costs are going up."

Tanner said he agreed in principal with the feelings expressed by the outgoing provincial president, but he would not have criticized the government so severely.

"This is the general feeling of the association, and the provincial association has always been very emphatic about it," he said.

Peopleism New Role For Grits

Premier Bennett is "a father figure" who allows people to complain but penalizes them for doing so," ex-alderman Michael Griffin said Saturday.

"The communications between his government and the people are very poor," Griffin told a Liberal party conference at the University of Victoria Saturday.

"And the Liberal Party has been out of office so long it has forgotten how to communicate with the people. "We have never had a greater opportunity."

Griffin said a Liberal, middle-of-the-road government, without fear of capital or labor, is British Columbia's greatest need today.

BLATANT TOKENISM

Voctoria lawyer Brian Wallace said the human rights introduced at the last session of the Legislature was "blatant tokenism."

"It is rather sinister," he said, "that in order to take legal action against the B.C. government you first have to get their permission.

"You can only get legal aid in the courts if your health is in danger and, in the criminal field, legal aid is restricted to those who have not had a previous conviction."

MANY INJUSTICES

Wallace said this is one of many injustices that could be remedied by a Liberal, forward-looking government.

"Liberalism must be Peopleism—not just Capitalism or Socialism," he said.

At one of the discussion groups Saturday afternoon, an elderly man complained that, after six month training, a meatcutter earns $9,000 a year.

"I have two sons who are medical doctors," he said, "and they don't get $9,000 a year. This is absurd."

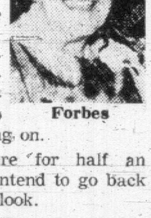
EXCITING VISIT

Famous Masterpiece Entices Second Look

By ELIZABETH FORBES

I'm not an art critic.

I know what I like and I know what I don't like. I don't become unduly excited at a viewing. And certainly when it comes to dots and crosses, splotches and splashes, I'm left completely cold.



Forbes

This time it's different. I dropped in at the Moss Street Art Gallery to see the Jordaens masterpiece "As the Old Sing, So the Young Twitter." With the idea in mind, I must confess, of staying a moment or so and then going on.

I was there for half an hour. And I intend to go back for a second look.

This great Flemish painting lives. It breathes. It's almost three dimensional.

The longer I looked at it the more certain I became that the people in it could make their voices heard and if they wished, could invite me to join them in song.

I know this is not the way an art critic would report on the amazing detail in the composition, the color quality and the sense of rollicking life so evident in this masterpiece.

It's in layman's language that I'm suggesting you should see this work of art recently acquired by our national gallery. It will be on view here all this week. Don't miss it.

★ ★ ★

How does a painting of this magnitude, created well over 300 years ago, continue in such perfect condition?

Olive Dickason, a national gallery staff member who preceded the masterpiece to Victoria, believes one reason is the care it has received over the centuries.

It hung in Gosford House, the ancestral home of Scotland's Earls of Wemyss and March, for many of those years.

"No doubt in the same room, on the same wall and under atmospheric conditions that varied very little," Mrs. Dickason said in explaining her theory.

"All this would help preserve it in its original beauty."

Atmospheric conditions must be "just right" in the preservation of paintings, this knowledgeable young woman said.

Then she told me of the struggle to maintain such conditions in the building that houses the national gallery.

★ ★ ★

It was under construction as a federal government office building when Alan Jarvis, then head of the gallery, "sweet-talked it away."

"As it was not intended for us," Mrs. Dickason explains, "it means that in keeping the proper temperatures and humidity needed throughout the building a certain amount of structural deterioration occurs."

It is her strong opinion that "we should have a national gallery built for our specialized needs."

Then she points to the new national archives and library, to the many new federal buildings in and around Ottawa and to the new Arts Centre "right across the street from us."

When Dr. Jean Boggs succeeded Jarvis, she was promised a new gallery within two years. That time is past "and we haven't even got a blueprint."

★ ★ ★

Now back to the Flemish masterpiece.

The artist used this particular subject (which is related to the celebrations of Twelfth Night) on a number of occasions. Earliest version, painted in 1638, is in Antwerp; the second, once owned by Louis XVI, is now in Valenciennes, another which Frederick the Great owned is in Berlin and still another in Wurzburg.

Jordaens painted the one we are seeing in 1640.

The ~~title is~~ a traditional Flemish saying that apparently means that the young imitate the follies of their elders.

Jester at the right in the painting is the artist himself. 'Tis said the woman at the left could be his wife Catharina. Dog, parrot, owl and cage of birds could also have been the artist's household pets.

Objects that make up the splendid still life in the painting probably came from the prosperous Jordaens home.

In this connection, when you view the painting, take a good look at the wine goblet in the hand of the woman at the left.

If you do not think she could easily offer it to you and that you could take it in your own hand, I'll miss my guess.

Recommended by so many . . . Victoria's highly-trusted funeral directors, serving families of all faiths for nearly 50 years.

HOME GARDEN

Keep a Bucket Handy

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

Plastic pails are light in weight and much less costly than the old galvanized pails. They won't last for 15 or 20 years either, but that is beside the present point.

Vegetables as they are gathered or pulled from the garden, in wet weather particularly, have soil adhering to roots and leaves. I have heard some say that this is the greatest reason why they don't want their husbands to grow vegetables — "Too much dirt on them. There might be earwigs or other bugs! They aren't clean like those I buy in the store."

The remedy is to have a pail (or small tub) outdoors near where the vegetables are grown, and near either the water tap or the end of the hose which we usually leave attached to the tap during summer.

A handful of root vegetables, radishes, green onions and young carrots, can quickly be swished in the pail of water to remove most of the soil before taking into the house.

Even lettuce, pulled up by the roots, can be partially cleaned in this way.

The water and the soil in the pail goes back around rhubarb or a nearby shrub.

This method saves water in the long season of garden produce, for two cleansings indoors will have everything clean enough to use or to put into plastic bags in the refrigerator for a later meal.

It is the amount of good soil on home-grown vegetables when they are first pulled that seems the big problem to some.

YOUR HEALTH

The Buzzer That Cures Bed Wetting

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Alvarez

Recently I read the statement of a great British pediatrician, saying that bedwetting is one of the three commonest diseases he is called upon to treat. One would expect, then, to find many articles on it in the medical literature. But one doesn't. Rarely I see an article in which a physician says that a bed-wetting child might be helped by a psychiatrist, or a urologist, or perhaps by treatment with a drug.

Some 10 years ago, a man came into my office to tell me about an electric apparatus so designed that a few drops of a child's urine, falling on a wire grid placed on the bed under him, would cause a bell or buzzer or siren to go off and wake him.

The man told me he was renting the apparatus to mothers, and some eight of 10 later reported that their child, after a few weeks or months, was cured. He wanted me to tell about the apparatus in this column, but as I said, I would not think of recommending it to my readers unless he would bring me copies of a number of articles in the medical literature written by able physicians who had had experience with the apparatus. Unfortunately, he knew of no such articles, and so I did nothing.

* * *

Later, another man who leases these "buzzers" (as the British call them) came to me; he told me about his successes, and he gave me copies of letters from many grateful mothers who had leased his apparatus. Unfortunately, he also was unable to give me all the references I wanted to medical articles on the use of the apparatus.

Then I went into a big medical library and spent two days searching the literature. I found some 50 interesting articles, almost all on the virtues of the buzzer. Curiously, almost all the writers were Britishers, Australians or Canadians. Fortunately, there was one excellent article in 1938 by an American, a fine Yale professor of psychiatry, Dr. Mowrer.

Actually a number of the 50 articles I read were written by psychiatrists who said that they had gotten fed up with their lack of results with psychiatry, and had then turned to the buzzer—and had had good results with it. One British pediatrician said that in his hospital they kept a supply of buzzers that they loaned to mothers.

After reading the papers I at last felt justified in telling my readers in this column about the buzzer, or a variation of the apparatus using a siren. I am still puzzled about why so few family doctors and pediatricians will ever write about it. Physicians ought not to distrust it, because it was invented in 1904 by the great German pediatrician, Professor Pfaundler.

* * *

I have heard that the apparatus can be bought cheaply from a chain store. The only difficulty with that is that all of the men I have met who rent them, and a few of the British and Australian physicians, have insisted that the apparatus is not so likely to work unless the mother is taught to use it, and is taught to go to her child when the siren or bell goes off.

She must then see to it that he learns to turn off the battery; he must go the toilet, where a light should be left burning, he must urinate, and then he must put in a new cloth and wire grid (or put on a new dry pair of the special panties that go with one version of the apparatus), then reset the apparatus, and go back to sleep. The "buzzer" trains the child in new sleeping and urinating habits.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Strange Invaders Dozed Off on Lawns

By BOB BOWMAN

Bowman

What might be called "the comic opera invasion of Canada" ended on June 2, 1866.

The Fenians were Irish revolutionaries financed by sympathizers in the U.S. Their objective was to capture Canada and trade it to Britain for Irish independence. Plans for the invasion were made during the winter of 1866 and included the assembling of a fleet of ships at San Francisco to attack British Columbia. The Fenians were prepared to raise a force of 30,000 men and had perhaps $15 million to do it.

Their great weakness was that, the soldiers, many of them hardened veterans of the U.S. Civil War, all wanted to be officers. There were too many generals and colonels. Nevertheless, they were feared, and it was necessary to call out the militia in the Maritimes and Canada. In 1871 Louis Riel helped to raise a force to defend Manitoba against the Fenians.

However, the Fenians first attempt to invade Canada took place on June 1, 1866. They crossed the Niagara river in rented tugboats and canal barges and entered Fort Erie when people were still asleep. So they began knocking on doors and announcing that they had come to liberate Canada from Britain.

The people were puzzled by the strange looking visitors waving their green flags and invited them to have breakfast. Then the day became hot and many of the invaders laid on the lawns and went to sleep.

"General" O'Neil got them together about 11 o'clock and they marched up the road about three miles before stopping for the night. So far it was a picnic.

However, on June 2 the Fenians learned that Canadian troops were on the way and began to realize there might be some shooting. This wasn't so good.

The actions that followed would take pages to describe. Both sides fought badly. Leadership was poor. The Fenians won the first round at Ridgeway, but O'Neil decided to withdraw his men to Fort Erie by evening.

He expected 10,000 Fenians from Buffalo to join him. They were having too good a time, drinking whisky and listening to speeches. Then O'Neil shaved off his whiskers so he would not be recognized and got back to the U.S. Most of the Fenians followed, aided by American ships, but some were drowned trying to swim across the river.

Those who remained in Canada spent a few days raiding farms and taking chickens, practically unmolested by the Canadian troops. Casualties were nine killed, 37 wounded.

Jill thought a moment. "Right," she said. "And a year ago you were two-thirds what I'll be five years from now."

What were their ages?

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Brian Grainger, age 11, of Toronto, Ont., for his question:

Is life on other planets impossible?

Our planet, of course, is surrounded by oceans of space and merely crossing to our little neighboring moon is an immense project. We know that the moon is uninhabited and this tends to make earthlings feel very lonely and isolated in the cosmic picture. So we wonder about the possibility of life on other worlds and perhaps hope that someday we may introduce ourselves to intelligent alien beings.

Think of a number, large or small, and ask someone to read your mind. If your friend sifts through enough numbers, large and small, sooner or later he is certain to find the right one. The cosmos is infinite and we just do not have enough numbers, large or small, to cope with its countless possibilities. There are merely nine planets in our Solar System. We have investigated one of them and found it to be teeming with assorted forms of life. So far we have not investigated to learn whether or not there is life on the sun's other eight planets.

Lately, astronomers have identified planetary systems in the heavens, and scientists have come to the conclusion that solar systems are not rare. It is possible, and even likely, that most of the 100 billion stars in our galaxy have their families of orbiting planets. The number of possible planets grows enormous and so does the likelihood that some of them enjoy the earth-type conditions needed to support earth-type life. Now add the billions of other galaxies strewn through the cosmos — and their zillions of planets. Certainly some of them are earth-type planets. And from plenteous experience here on earth, we know that life tends to spring up when and wherever conditions are suitable.

Vast Cosmos

So, when we multiply the number of planets almost to infinity, we can be quite certain that life does indeed exist on other planets. It may or may not be earth-type life, depending upon different conditions — air and minerals, light and warmth. But somewhere Out There, you can bet your boots that life exists. A few rare planets most likely have intelligent life forms, capable of conversing with the trustees of the planet Earth. Someday, who knows, we may meet them. And naturally we want to make the best possible impression.

When we view the scope of human history in a big way, we stress the stupendous achievements made in a few thousand years. We observe how mankind always sheds his worst attributes and advances to higher levels of civilization. When at last we overcome warfare and other natural belligerencies we shall want to share our inner rewards of happy contentment. Like civilized individuals of today, man's history pleasure will be lending a friendly hand to help those behind him. Then mankind will be ready to go star-trekking — and sooner or later he will find life on other worlds. And sooner or later he will find a rare planet inhabited by intelligent beings — but to be ready for this encounter he must be truly civilized.

The lunar landing is the greatest of all events in human history. But the moon is a mere step in the vast cosmos and human history is merely a blink in cosmic time. Mars, Venus and our planet brethren are mere specks in the vast, teeming cosmos. They may or may not support simple forms of life, but in our Solar System only our planet has the luxurious conditions necessary for earth-type life. However, among zillions of planets there must be many more that support earth-type or non-earth-type life — and some of them must be inhabited by beings as smart or smarter than we are.

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Lyle Phillips, age 12, of Mullen, Nebraska, for his question:

Why is ambergris so expensive?

Not so long ago, an ounce of ambergris was worth about $15. A 400-pound lump of the stuff was found washed up on a tidal beach and sold for $100,000. Nowadays, the price of ambergris is still high, but not so high as it was. We live in an age of miracles and our clever chemists have learned how to create the chemical characteristics of ambergris by using more plentiful substances. Real ambergris is rare because it forms in the intestines of the sperm whale — and this hunted monster of the deep is getting rarer every year.

When a substance is rare and much in demand, people pay high prices for it. Ambergris is used in the perfume business to make the fragrance of certain scents last longer. You would never guess this from handling a chunk of the valuable stuff. It is a streaky grey wad of waxy material with a most repulsive odor.

6 Squadrons Of Jets Cut By Canada

Defence Spending Frozen

Times News Service

OTTAWA—Defence Minister Leo Cadieux revealed today Canada intends to withdraw its six nuclear-armed squadrons of Starfighter jets based in Europe for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He told the Commons NATO reductions would help Canada to slap a ceiling on defence spending for the next three years.

He said defence expenditures will be held at their current level: about $1,800,000,000 annually.

Mr. Cadieux also said some CF-104 Starfighter bombers will be retained in Europe as an air element for an air-transportable combat group which will replace the present infantry brigade group.

A combat group in Canada numbers about 4,000 men. The present brigade in Europe comprises some 5,000 men.

Mr. Cadieux said a new defence posture will be worked out in the next three years.

Reporting on last week's meeting of NATO defence ministers in Brussels, Mr. Cadieux said he cannot state what the final posture in Europe will be because consultation with NATO will take some time to complete.

Canada will maintain a "significant military presence" in Europe, he said.

He confirmed by implication that the six-squadron nuclear-armed CF-104 air division stationed in West Germany will be dismantled. However, a few of the planes—he did not say how many—will be retained as part of the combat group.

Mr. Cadieux said Canada will have a modern, mobile but smaller land force in Europe. Canada would continue to meet its obligations fully.

CHANGES ARE POSSIBLE

Every NATO member had a right to change its military commitments but also the duty to follow consultation procedures.

The government would not consider its policy of reducing the number of Canadian forces in Europe. But it would follow fully the consultation procedure in letter and spirit.

RUSSIAN MOON SHOT ANTICIPATED IN DAYS

TOKYO (Reuters)—A Soviet cosmonaut was quoted here today as saying Russia plans to land a man or men on the moon by the end of this year or early next year, if all goes well.

A group of Japanese science reporters now visiting Moscow reported the remark was made by cosmonaut Alexei Leonov, who in 1965 was the first man to walk in space, in an interview with them Sunday night.

Details of his news conference were published here today by the Kyodo news agency.

Leonov indicated that unlike the U.S. Apollo project which sends spaceships directly from the earth to the moon, the Soviet moon project would launch a lunar probe from a space station assembled while in orbit around the earth, the news agency said.

PARIS (UPI)—The United States has learned within the last 24 hours that the Soviet Union plans a major space shot in the next few days, a U.S. official said at the Paris air show today.

The official, who declined to be identified, said that a moonshot might be involved. He could not say whether it might be a manned shot.

FIRST HOME IN SWIFTSURE

By JOHN SLINGER

Raced in fits and starts, the 1969 Swiftsure Classic ended with a thrilling twist that gave the Seattle yawl Diamond Head sweet revenge on her long-time rival, the Vancouver sloop Mary Bower.

Although John Long's Mary Bower collected first over-all, Diamond pulled a trick she learned the hard way from her rival three years earlier and scooted past the Ogden Point breakwater to take the first gun and the City of Victoria trophy at 10 p.m. Sunday.

With owner Henry Kotkins at the helm, the 73-foot Diamond Head was 45 minutes behind Mary Bower as she led the 103-yacht fleet through Race Passage, nine miles from the end of the 136-mile race.

The 49-foot sloop headed straight for the finish and sailed into one of the patches of light, fickle air that spotted the course.

Diamond Head followed the wind. She tacked all the way out to Clover Point before coming about on a broad reach, tucked around the breakwater and over the line three minutes ahead of the Vancouver boat.

REVERSE POSITION

In 1966 the situation was reversed and Mary Bower took the big yawl by a hair-raising one second.

The sloop, out of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, besides placing first over-all, was top in Division I. Other winners were: Division II, Moea, owned by W. C. Whipple, Corinthian (Seattle) Yacht Club; Division II, Hyak, owned by Bonar A. Davis, Royal Vancouver; Division IV, Swallow, owned by P.

Cong Resumes Saigon Attack

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong shelled Saigon early today for the first time in 2½ weeks, fought American paratroops and South Vietnamese militiamen just outside the city and killed a high-ranking American adviser in a rocket attack in the central highlands.

Four hours after two rockets fell inside the South Vietnamese capital, paratroops from the 82nd Airborne Division and militiamen on an offensive sweep ran into small groups of Viet Cong 11 miles northwest of Saigon.

The paratroops were sweeping through the same general area where a Viet Cong force took one of their ambush patrols by surprise last Friday, killing eight Americans.

Spokesmen said the fighting today was sporadic and lasted for about five hours, until the Viet Cong troops withdrew. At least six guerrillas were known dead and three were captured, U.S. headquarters said. One American was killed.

The U.S. command reported eight rocket and mortar attacks during the night that caused casualties but said over-all damage was light.

The American adviser was reported killed at the Dak To airfield, 200 miles northeast of Saigon. About 10 100-pound rockets hit the field at 5 p.m., and five South Vietnamese soldiers were reported wounded.

The two rockets crashed into Saigon before dawn. One landed in a densely populated section known as Rocket Alley because it has been shelled so many times. The rocket destroyed four houses and damaged seven. A child and a man were killed, U.S. headquarters said, and 15 children were among the wounded.

The second rocket fell harmlessly in rice paddies on the eastern fringe of the city.

New Budget Could Reflect Impending Major Reforms

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — If Finance Minister E. J. Benson pulls any surprises in his spring budget speech to Parliament Tuesday night, they'll be more significant than usual.

Mr. Benson set the tone of federal government fiscal affairs for the current fiscal year—which runs to March 31, 1970—as long ago as last Oct. 22 when he presented a major budget.

Since then he has said that government revenues and expenditures are running about as he expected. When he tabled his pre-budget white paper last week, in fact, he was able to report an unexpected improvement in the deficit position.

So confident was he of last October's budgeting that he spoke first of giving Parliament only an economic review this spring, not a full budget.

The national business organizations, such as the chambers of commerce, bankers, farmers, and labor associations, usually present briefs to the finance minister for him to consider while preparing his budget. This spring they were discouraged from doing so because this wasn't to be a full-blown budget.

SIX DAYS FOR DEBATE

But six days were set aside in the government's parliamentary timetable for a full-dress budget debate in case it was needed.

Then the word came that Mr. Benson planned a full budget. Whether there will be enough in it to require six full days of Commons debate remains to be seen.

But concurrently with preparing his budget, the finance minister has been preparing a white paper policy statement on wholesale tax reform, which he hopes to make public this summer. Parliament will have a chance to discuss it this fall, when formal legislation is introduced.

This is a general review of existing tax laws in their general application, not just concerned with the rates of specific taxes.

Likely to be included is a capital gains tax for the first time in Canada. Money a taxpayer obtains through the increased value of an asset, if he realizes it without making a business of buying and selling for capital gains, now is not counted as income for tax purposes.

MORE CHANGE POSSIBLE

Other features of new tax law recommended by the royal commission headed by the late Kenneth Carter, Toronto tax consultant and accountant, may find their way into the white paper and tax reform.

But the government has indicated it does not intend to go as far as Carter's sweeping plan for integration of personal income and corporation taxes.

Intrepid Voyagers Making Better Time

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Thor Heyerdahl's papyrus boat Ra was reported making good time through calmer waters south of the Canary Islands today after taking some damage Sunday from high seas and a strong north wind.

Navigator Norman Baker reported breaking seas again smashed the steering rudder and yardarm Sunday, knocking down the radio antenna, but the damage was repaired.

Pressure on the rudder came from hard steering to keep clear of the Moroccan coast. The Ra cleared Cape Juby at noon Saturday.

Baker, in a broadcast picked up by amateur radio operators here, called it an "extremely eventful weekend."

"The winds are still pretty high," he said, "but the seas are calmer and we are making better time. Thursday we made 48 miles, Friday 52, Saturday 62 and Sunday 65."

Oil Men Face Death Penalty

KWALE, Nigeria (AP) — The Biafrans sentenced 18 foreign oil workers to death as Nigerian forces recovered the bodies of 11 others Sunday.

The Biafran information services said the death penalty must be confirmed by Biafran leader Odumegwu Ojukwu, "but Gen. Ojukwu has not done so thus far." Biafran Information Minister Ifegwu Eke had told a news conference the foreigners had been fighting alongside the Nigerians.

A spokesman had said earlier that if the men were to be freed, their home governments must make "contact through the appropriate channel."

"It is a government-to-government affair, not a humanitarian affair," he added.

The sentenced oilmen—14 Italians, three Germans and one Lebanese—were among 29 workers who disappeared when Biafran and Nigerian troops battled near Okpai, in midwestern Nigeria May 7-10. The bodies of the other 11 men—10 Italians and a Jordanian—were found by Nigerian forces.

The men were employed by AGIP, the Nigerian oil exploration company which is a joint enterprise of the Italian state petroleum corporation and the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Okla. AGIP denied that the men had been fighting for the Nigerians.

BODIES WERE BURNED

Nigerian army officers who recovered the bodies of the 11 dead workers said the Biafrans burned them when they overran their camp in midwestern Nigeria 12 miles from the Niger River.

"When we advanced on the camp we found the remains," said Maj. S. Abacha, 23, who led a unit that captured the campsite four days ago. "One was buried in a toilet drainage ditch, a quite shallow grave. The rains washed up a sort of a skull. Then we found the rest."

Seven air-conditioned trailers where the men lived were riddled with bullet holes.

While Italian colleagues removed the bodies, occasional shots from Biafrans in the bush kept the Nigerian guards on alert.

Although federal headquarters said they had driven the Biafrans across the Niger River, one Nigerian officer said the secessionists still occupied land on the river's west bank.

There were conflicting claims about results of fighting in Aboh, which is located on the river. The Biafrans said Sunday they had checked an advance on the town and killed seven officers including a battalion commander. Saturday the Nigerians said they had taken Aboh. There was no comment from federal authorities on the Biafran report.

Reds Abstain; Pompidou Win Almost Certain

Times News Services

PARIS—The central committee of the powerful French Communist party today called on its followers to abstain in the June 15 run-off between Georges Pompidou and Alain Poher to succeed Charles de Gaulle as president of France.

The party's decision made the election of former premier Pompidou virtually certain.

Communist leader Jacques Duclos finished a strong third in the first round of the presidential race Sunday.

In the run-off between the two top-placed candidates, Poher would have needed a large share of the Communist vote to have a serious chance of victory.

In the first round Sunday, Pompidou showed formidable strength, missing the required 50 per cent of the vote needed for election by just a little more than six percentage points.

He got 43.95 per cent to Poher's 23.44 per cent and 21.53 per cent for the Communist leader Duclos.

The Communist decision was certain to increase the pressure on Poher to withdraw from the runoff.

This would leave Pompidou face to face with Duclos.

Pompidou would have no difficulty defeating the veteran Communist leader, while Poher's withdrawal would mark the first step toward a reconciliation between the Gaullists and the middle-of-the-road groups which engineered de Gaulle's downfall.

Some 6,000,000 registered voters—or about 22 per cent of the electorate—didn't vote in the seven-man race.

Duclos and the other four first-round candidates were eliminated since only the two leading vote-getters go into the runoff.

Pompidou, 57-year-old former Rothschild banker and President Charles de Gaulle's premier for six years, received 43.95 per cent of the vote in continental France. Opinion polls published last week gave him about 41 per cent, but he even topped the 43.71 per cent de Gaulle collected in the first round of the 1965 election.

Poher, the 60-year-old Centrist who advanced from president of the Senate to provisional president of the country when de Gaulle resigned April 28, ran second with 23.44 per cent. Opinion polls early in May indicated he might get as much as 38 per cest of the vote and beat Pompidou June 15. But Poher's strength faded, and his showing Sunday disappointed his backers.

COLLECTED 21.53 PER CENT

Duclos, the 72-year-old Communist party wheelhorse, collected 21.53 per cent of the votes. The polls had given him only about 12 per cent early in the campaign, but he steadily picked up strength with an extensive speaking tour.

The other 11 per cent of the votes was divided among four also-rans: Gaston Defferre, Socialist mayor of Marseille, 5.07 per cent; Michel Rocard, secretary-general of the Unified Socialist party, 3.68 per cent; Louis Ducatel, millionaire industrialist, 1.27 per cent, and Alain Krivine, a 27-year-old student extremist, 1.06 per cent.

Official results lacking only about 500,000 votes from some overseas areas, gave these totals: Pompidou, 9,858,824; Poher, 5,221,022; Duclos, 4,787,665; Defferre, 1,130,050; Rocard, 815,512; Ducatel, 285,736; and Krivine, 237,758.

From his position of strength, Pompidou suggested that Poher withdraw from the race in the

Up-Island Fares Hiked As Bus Service Resumes

Virtually full service was established by Vancouver Island Coach Lines today — and up-Island passengers were greeted with a 10 per cent fare increase.

The 23-day strike of the company's 100 drivers ended Saturday when they voted to accept a three-year contract which will push their wages from the current $3.48 hourly to $4.31 by March of 1971.

The fare increases apply immediately to the company's Saanich Peninsula and up-Island runs. The fare for the Vancouver runs via ferry remains the same—$4.25 one-way except on B.C. Ferries' bargain days (Tuesday to Thursday), when it is $3.25.

The company had made fare increase application to the Public Utilities Commission last year and the new rates were actually approved from May 10, two days after the strike started.

FIRST SINCE 1958

VICL general manager Robert Horner said today the company has not had fare hikes since 1958.

"With increases in labor and fuel costs we've got to survive."

The drivers voted 75-10 in favor of accepting the contract offer after a 3½-hour meeting in Nanaimo Saturday. Much of the company's service was restored Sunday, including the ferry runs. But Pacific Stage Lines, which handles half the ferry runs did not resume these until today. Pickets had stopped the PSL ferry service 10 days ago.

The drivers, members of Local 234 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, had originally asked for 54 cents an hour more over each of the next two years. They had lowered this to 38 and 25-cent annual increases but negotiations broke down when the company offered 38 and 10-cent increases.

Anti-Dump Duty Laced on Shoes

OTTAWA (CP) —Provisional anti-dumping duty has been slapped on boots and shoes imported from Romania and Poland pending formal hearing June 25 of a complaint from Canadian shoemakers.

Announcements in the Canada Gazette Saturday say the national revenue department issued a preliminary ruling May 21 that the Romanian and Polish footwear was being dumped—exported to Canada at a price below their "normal value" in Europe.

Foreign Ownership Defended by Pepin

TORONTO (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin says Canadians may be too sensitive about foreign ownership of their industry, overlooking the benefits.

Speaking to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association today, he said the international company spreads technical and management skills around the world and serves to shift industry-building resources to capital-deficient regions, improving the material well-being of all nations.

Observing that Canada receives heavy foreign investment, Mr. Pepin said that "psychologically, Canadians may have become too defensive on this subject."

INTERDEPENDENCE

"We must remember that foreign direct investment involves interdependence more than dependence. While foreign participation in Canadian industry exposes us to external decision-making, we should remember that such exposure does not apply in one direction only.

"The country and company investing in a foreign land also expose themselves to the possibility of unfavorable foreign actions."

Mr. Pepin said international investment often results in companies and nations working at cross purposes.

He urged establishment of international "norms of conduct" to guide both parent and subsidiary companies and investing and receiving countries. The subject is being discussed by the International Chamber of Commerce and in the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, he said.

MARKET SUMMARIES

N.Y. Decline Continues

The New York stock market decline entered its third straight week today in trading which was delayed 45 minutes because many exchange workers were late getting to work due to rain-flooded subways.

Western oils touched a record high but came back slightly as the Toronto market declined fractionally.

Industrials nearly touched an all-time record as Montreal generally firmed during early afternoon trading.

Mine and oil issues were up and industrials down in pre-noon trading at Vancouver.

AT NEW YORK the prolonged decline has been attributed by analysts to worry about the money situation getting even tighter and disenchantment with progress of the Vietnam peace talks.

The averages were near their lowest level at the final bell but price changes were mainly minor.

AT TORONTO final volume was 6,781,000 shares compared with 6,070,000 Friday.

In industrials, Ford Canada dropped 3 to 382, Bow Valley 2 to 35, Investors Overseas 1⅞ to 62, Cominco 1¾ to 37 and Rothmans 1¾ to 25¼.

Falconbridge was up 2½ to 139½, Royal Oak A 2½ to 13 and Pembina 1⅞ to 26⅛.

Sherritt lost 1½ to 13½ and Teck 50 cents to $9.75.

Franc Given Slight Boost

PARIS (Reuters) — The French fran improved slightly today as the unofficial exchange market between banks reacted to the strengthened electoral position of Gaullist candidate Georges Pompidou.

The franc moved off its dollar floor of 4.972000-97350 from 4.97375-974000 at Friday's official close.

Dealers said the changed presidential election situation was welcomed in financial circles.

The Bank of France, which was defending the franc most of last week, this morning was reported to have remained outside the market.

U.K. Banks Pressured To Cut Loans

LONDON (Reuters) — The government Saturday put further pressure on banks to reduce personal loans by halving the interest paid on money banks deposit with the state-controlled Bank of England.

The move, to take effect today, is expected to reduce by £700,000 (about $1,820,000) a month the interest the banks receive from the Bank of England deposits.

In this way the government hopes to reduce the amount of money private banks can make available for loans to customers.

GM CHAIRMAN WINS CADDY

DETROIT (UPI) — James Roche won a shiny new Cadillac as a door prize at a fund-raising dinner but he gave it back.

Roche is chairman of General Motors.

The Cadillac was the door prize at the dinner at the posh suburban Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. After 500 patrons had paid $100 a plate for a chance to win the car, Roche was the lucky one.

He already has a Cadillac, a white 1969 Coupe de Ville, and he's chauffeured around most of the time in another company-owned Cadillac. Roche sent a telegram saying he was returning the Cadillac to St. John Hospital, the institution for which the benefit was held, "to dispose of as it wishes."

Limit Imposed On Air Flights

NEW YORK (AP) — A new limit on flights went into effect Sunday at New York, Chicago and Washington airports and a Federal Aviation Authority official says "everything's working out real smoothly."

The quota on flights was applied at Chicago's O'Hare, Washington's National and the New York area's Kennedy, La Guardia and Newark airports, aimed at preventing a recurrence of delays of two to three hours on many flights last summer.

The new quota at Kennedy is 80 to 90 takeoffs or landings an hour, compared to a high of 115 last summer. At O'Hare the limit is 115 operations an hour. La Guardia is limited to 48 and Newark and National to 40 an hour.

GHOSTING behind a ground swell at the break of dawn Sunday as she approached turning point in the Swiftsure ocean yacht race is Henry Kotkins' Diamond Head, first to to finish the race. Canada Navy ship, Miramichi, was the marker out beyond the entrance of Juan de Fuca Strait, where the now retired Swiftsure lightship was once stationed to aid mariners. (All photos by James A. Gun Ended Agony Of Picnic Pace Race

By PAT DUFOUR

Sometimes it doesn't pay to move when you're racing.

One of the wisest things we did Saturday when we were making our fifth bid at the Juan de Fuca classic in the family Cal 20, Galenaia, was to decide to take time out and have a picnic.

We were off William Head when the easterly died and we knew there was no way to push through the six-knot tide barrier at Race Rocks.

Other Juan de Fuca racers ahead of us and several Swiftsure entries, including Frank Bush's Concubine, had already dropped the hook in the bay this side of the Race.

We had to settle for a picnic area offshore and 60 fathoms deep.

We felt pretty smug as we sat there sipping long cool drinks and munching sandwiches as yachts slithered past us, fighting with spinnakers in a vain attempt to beat the strong flood tide.

This was to be the calmest and most frustrating Juan de Fuca Galenaia had finished . . . and the most challenging.

THEY FOLLOWED

Taking a flyer when the wind began to freshen at about 4 p.m. we decided to up anchor and try to make our way through the Race. It worked, and it wasn't long before the flotilla along the coastline followed suit.

Soon the Race was filled with yachts beating across the tide.

Being the smallest boat in the race, we knew it wouldn't be long before the longer hulls and larger sails of our competitors would carry them into the lead.

We made our way slowly over the tide to the American shore and all day Saturday tacked our way up along the coastline.

On both shores could be seen strings of boats trying to play the favorable back eddies, waiting for the tide change.

MADDENING

Had we not been racing, Saturday night would have been like something out of a South Seas movie. A full golden moon and a far too calm sea proved beautiful . . . but maddening.

We played what little wind shifts there were and had that familiar feeling of apprehension. Would the yachts on the Canadian side find offshore breezes that we kept losing?

Sunrise in the Strait is the best sight for any sailor. Our spirits rose as the sky lightened and we could see that our competition on the Canadian side was still held back from crossing by the strong ebb tide.

A local wind pattern gave us enough speed to make the Clallam Bay mark in time to round with about 10 of our competitors.

You still had the impression you were on a picnic as the small armada of boats slowly inched around the RCMP's Victoria which was our turning mark.

THE FISHERMAN

As we jostled for position one of the Victoria's crew nonchalantly sat in the stern playing his fishing line.

Safely around, we all set our spinnakers and made for Race. The sail down the Strait was uneventful. The westerly was mild, pushing us along in restrained strength.

Race Rocks was kind, the tide was with us at 4:30 p.m. as we worked our way through.

By 5 p.m. we were between Albert Head and Victoria with about 15 minutes sailing time to the finish line if the wind held. There our luck ran out.

For 5½ hours we sat in sight of Victoria, spinnaker sagging and the tide pushing us back to Albert Head.

Finally the wind pattern that brought the first of the Swiftsure yachts home began to creep in, rippling the oily-smooth surface of the water.

We finally began to move.

You feel pretty small when you're sailing in company with yachting giants like Diamond Head and Mary Bower.

You feel even smaller when you waddle over a finish line with only the tide carrying you in . . . packed like the filling in a sandwich, with a Swiftsure yacht nuzzling your port and starboard sides.

GREAT SOUND

But any one out there will tell you that that finish gun sounds pretty good . . . no matter how you finally made it.

Gordie Hill of the West Vancouver Yacht Club must have felt like Hercules himself when he crossed the line.

His Ariki IV was the big winner, She sailed the 76-mile course to come in first over the line, winning the San Juan Trophy for the first boat home and the Royal Victoria Yacht Club Trophy for division one winner.

R. S. Marshall of the Corinthian Yacht Club in Seattle won the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association Trophy for division two, sailing his Seaquin to the winning spot.

In the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet race which sailed the same course the Anacortes Yacht Club Trophy for first place went to William Gardner's Lucy Alice of the Corinthian Yacht Club.

Co-skippered by D. F. Barr and J. Ford of the Corinthian Yacht Club, Holiday came second in division 1. Others placing were R. G. Foxall's Foxee, John Brandlmayr's Coho, R. C. McColl's Aprodite 111, Peter White's Upepo, R. K. Baker and F. J. Pine's Barca de Vela, Denny Coverdale's Melee, R. W. Hume's Khu, Dr. Roger Oldham's Te-Pah, Rick Todd's Kiwi, Jack Pinch's Le Cordon Bleu. A. Jurisson's Mutineer 11 failed to finish.

B.C. TEL FACES STRIKE VOTE

All three employee divisions of B.C. Telephone Co. today rejected the contract recommendations of a federal conciliation board.

The union representing the more than 6,000 telephone workers told the Times from Vancouver that a strike vote will now be conducted as soon as possible.

Bert Johns, general secretary of the plant division, Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C., said the 2,700 plant employees rejected the conciliation recommendations by a majority of 87 per cent.

Clerical workers voted 84 per cent no and the traffic division 81 per cent. Johns added that a majority of those eligible voted.

B.C. Telephone Co., which is controlled by the New York-based General Telephone & Electronics of America, had early said it would accept the conciliation board recommendations after first expressing "deep concern" over the $15 million the increases would add to the payroll over the next two years.

LAKE AREA SITE ASKED FOR SCHOOL

St. Margaret's School for Girls has applied to Saanich for rezoning of 10 acres near Blenkinsop Lake for a new school.

The site is on Lucas Avenue at the northerly end of Borden Avenue west of the lake.

The school, which has sold its present site on Fort Street, has been looking for a new place for nearly two years.

A month ago, a school official indicated a new location had been found near Blenkinsop Lake, but no site was given and no rezoning application had been submitted.

The school plans to spend $250,000 to build new premises and another $250,000 for a residence for boarders.

Captain to Pay Fine of $3,500

Fishing Infraction Called Inadvertent

The master of a Japanese fishing vessel who violated Canada's 12-mile fishing limit was fined $3,500 in central court today.

Capt. Yurio Minenaga pleaded guilty.

"Invasion of fishing rights in Canada is a serious business," said Magistrate William Ostler.

He referred to a similar case in Prince Rupert where a captain was fined $2,500.

"It certainly can't be said the Prince Rupert case is not generally known. It hasn't provided a deterrent."

"It's only because of the diligence of the patrol vessel so little fish was taken," he said.

Maximum fine for the offence is $5,000.

Capt. Walter Furlong of the fisheries vessel Laurier said he observed the Japanese boat Koyo Maru inside the 12-mile limit while he was on patrol Thursday off the northern end of Vancouver Island.

10 MILES OUT

He took radar bearings and raised the international code signal "you are under arrest" as he closed in on her. Radar bearings taken again when he was 200 yards away showed the Koyo Maru to be 10.1 miles from the coast.

A boarding party from the Laurier returned with the master and three officers from the Japanese vessel and were able to talk with the assistance of an interpreter from Port Hardy.

As the Laurier came alongside the Koyo Maru, Capt. Furlong said he could see fishing nets coming aboard over the stern. He said the tide was flooding causing the fish vessel to drift inshore.

The Koyo Maru, a 180-foot vessel weighing 2,500 tons, carried 39 tons of ocean perch and one ton of black cod. She also carried two radar sets, a depth sounder and navigation gear he said, although while under his observation the radar was not in operation.

RED LINE

He said Capt. Minenaga's charts indicated he knew of the 12-mile limit as they had a red line drawn along the coast.

He said Capt. Minenaga gave all assistance possible.

Three fisheries officers were in court, as were three of the 42-man crew of the Koyo Maru.

The proceedings were translated to the Japanese skipper by Victoria housewife Michiko Warkentyne. He was represented by Alan Patterson. Robert Hutchison acted for the Crown.

Capt. Minenaga, testifying in his own behalf, said when he first observed the fisheries vessel he believed he was beyond the 12-mile limit. He said a map was used and radar bearings taken which could have been inaccurate.

He suggested the sensitivity of the equipment may have been dulled and also the vessel was under pressure from wind and tide.

He said the boat left Japan March 22.

Another officer from the Japanese vessel, who took radar positions before and after the nets were put out, said both were outside the 12-mile limit.

NO FLIGHT

Patterson said there was no evidence of flight from the fisheries vessel and it was obvious they were aware of the limit but came through by inadvertence.

Hutchison said although it ing for forfeiture of the ship, its equipment or catch, and the magistrate directed they be released after the fine was paid.

Hutchieson said although it was a first offence for this captain, the Department of Fisheries looked at it as a second offence for Japan.

"We want to make it clear we strongly enforce the 12-mile limit," he said.

"Japan is not on trial," the magistrate replied.

HIGH-RISE

Bed Fire Victim 'Poor'

An 80-year-old retired teacher is fighting for his life today after suffering extensive burns in an early-morning bed fire caused by a defective heating pad.

Henry P. Pearson, 240 Douglas, an invalid, was reported in "poor" condition at noon by St. Joseph's Hospital officials.

He suffered burns to his arms, face and chest after a heating pad on his chest shorted and burned between 5 and 6 a.m.

His wife Margaret, 79, was not burned but was treated for shock at hospital and released.

HEARD FALL

His wife was in the next room and heard him fall from bed. The fire scorched the bed and the floor where he fell.

Mrs. Pearson dragged her husband to the bathroom and poured water over him to extinguish the flames.

A neighbor taking the morning air on the balcony above the Pearson apartment spotted smoke and called the apartment manager and the fire department.

Manager Lloyd Kearns found the Pearsons had chain-locked their apartment door so they entered from an adjoining balcony. He and a neighbor put out the blaze with fire extinguishers.

Firemen arrived moments later.

HAPPENED BEFORE

The chief said he is attempting to determine why a fuse had not been blown when the blanket shorted.

"We have had this type of fire before," he said.

"The insulation around the wiring within the electric blanket or pad wears away and these things become hazards."

Coates said people with electric blankets should watch for deterioration and replace them when they show signs of wear.

Mr. Pearson was to have entered hospital today for an operation.

JUST RETRIBUTION was had by the Navy ketch HMCS Oriole when she piled on miles between Port San Juan and Neah Bay, clocking nine knots, the fastest time of any yacht. At the start, the big Navy yacht was the last to get away, being carried by the tide almost to Trial Island before picking up enough wind to move forward.

TAKE A SUNDAY, ADD SUN AND SAND and presto, any beach is overrun with girl watchers. That's what happened at Thetis Lake Park, shown here, but it was a scene repeated around Greater Victoria. The Swiftsure Classic drew crowds of spectators to Beacon Hill Park too but the beach scenes proved an old truth once again—a blonde in a bikini beats a billowing spinnaker for drawing a crowd this or any other weekend. The sun appeared only off and on over the weekend but still produced a 70 Saturday, 7 degrees above the annual average. The weatherman predicts at least three more days of the same. Look closely and you'll see the only problem at Thetis Saturday—there were more watchers than girls. (William John photo.)

Canada Cuts Air Strength In Europe

Defence Spending Frozen

Times News Service

OTTAWA—Defence Minister Leo Cadieux revealed today Canada intends to cut back its six nuclear-armed squadrons of Starfighter jets based in Europe for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He told the Commons NATO reductions would help Canada to slap a ceiling on defence spending for the next three years.

He said defence expenditures will be held at their current level: about $1,800,000,000 annually.

Mr. Cadieux also said some CF-104 Starfighter bombers will be retained in Europe as an air element for an air-transportable combat group which will replace the present infantry brigade group.

A combat group in Canada numbers about 4,000 men. The present brigade in Europe comprises some 5,000 men.

Mr. Cadieux said a new defence posture will be worked out in the next three years.

Reporting on last week's meeting of NATO defence ministers in Brussels, Mr. Cadieux said he cannot state what the final posture in Europe will be because consultation with NATO will take some time to complete.

Canada will maintain a "significant military presence" in Europe, he said.

He confirmed by implication that the six-squadron nuclear-armed CF-104 air division stationed in West Germany will be dismantled. However, a few of the planes—he did not say how many—will be retained as part of the combat group.

Mr. Cadieux said Canada will have a modern, mobile but smaller land force in Europe. Canada would continue to meet its obligations fully.

CHANGES ARE POSSIBLE

Every NATO member had a right to change its military commitments but also the duty to follow consultation procedures.

The government would not consider its policy of reducing the number of Canadian forces in Europe. But it would follow fully the consultation procedure in letter and spirit.

RUSSIAN MOON SHOT ANTICIPATED IN DAYS

PARIS (UPI)—The United States has learned within the last 24 hours that the Soviet Union plans a major space shot in the next few days, a U.S. official said at the Paris air show today.

The official, who declined to be identified, said that a moonshot might be involved. He could not say whether it might be a manned shot.

TOKYO (Reuters)—A Soviet cosmonaut was quoted here today as saying Russia plans to land a man or men on the moon by the end of this year or early next year, if all goes well.

A group of Japanese science reporters now visiting Moscow reported the remark was made by cosmonaut Alexei Leonov, who in 1965 was the first man to walk in space, in an interview with them Sunday night.

Details of his news conference were published here today by the Kyodo news agency.

Leonov indicated that unlike the U.S. Apollo project which sends spaceships directly from the earth to the moon, the Soviet moon project would launch a lunar probe from a space station assembled while in orbit around the earth, the news agency said.

Reds Abstain; Pompidou Win Almost Certain

Times News Services

PARIS—The central committee of the powerful French Communist party today called on its followers to abstain in the June 15 run-off between Georges Pompidou and Alain Poher to succeed Charles de Gaulle as president of France.

The party's decision made the election of former premier Pompidou virtually certain.

Communist leader Jacques Duclos finished a strong third in the first round of the presidential race Sunday.

In the run-off between the two top-placed candidates, Poher would have needed a large share of the Communist vote to have a serious chance of victory.

In the first round Sunday, Pompidou showed formidable strength, missing the required 50 per cent of the vote needed for election by just a little more than six percentage points.

He got 43.95 per cent to Poher's 23.44 per cent and 21.53 per cent for the Communist leader Duclos.

The Communist decision was certain to increase the pressure on Poher to withdraw from the runoff.

This would leave Pompidou face to face with Duclos.

Pompidou would have no difficulty defeating the veteran Communist leader, while Poher's withdrawal would mark the first step toward a reconciliation between the Gaullists and the middle-of-the-road groups which engineered de Gaulle's downfall.

Some 6,000,000 registered voters—or about 22 per cent of the electorate—didn't vote in the seven-man race.

Duclos and the other four first-round candidates were eliminated since only the two leading vote-getters go into the runoff.

Pompidou, 57-year-old former Rothschild banker and President Charles de Gaulle's premier for six years, received 43.95 per cent of the vote in continental France. Opinion polls published last week gave him about 41 per cent, but he even topped the 43.71 per cent de Gaulle collected in the first round of the 1965 election.

Poher, the 60-year-old Centrist who advanced from president of the Senate to provisional president of the country when de Gaulle resigned April 28, ran second with 23.44 per cent. Opinion polls early in May indicated he might get as much as 38 per cest of the vote and beat Pompidou June 15. But Poher's strength faded, and his showing Sunday disappointed his backers.

COLLECTED 21.53 PER CENT

Duclos, the 72-year-old Communist party wheelhorse, collected 21.53 per cent of the votes. The polls had given him only about 12 per cent early in the campaign, but he steadily picked up strength with an extensive speaking tour.

The other 11 per cent of the votes was divided among four also-rans: Gaston Defferre, Socialist mayor of Marseille, 5.07 per cent; Michel Rocard, secretary-general of the Unified Socialist party, 3.68 per cent; Louis Ducatel, millionaire industrialist, 1.27 per cent, and Alain Krivine, a 27-year-old student extremist, 1.06 per cent.

Official results lacking only about 500,000 votes from some overseas areas, gave these totals: Pompidou, 9,858,824; Poher, 5,221,022; Duclos, 4,787,665; Defferre, 1,130,050; Rocard, 815,512; Ducatel, 285,736; and Krivine, 237,758.

From his position of strength, Pompidou suggested that Poher withdraw from the race in the

FIRST HOME IN SWIFTSURE

By JOHN SLINGER

Raced in fits and starts, the 1969 Swiftsure Classic ended with a thrilling twist that gave the Seattle yawl Diamond Head sweet revenge on her long-time rival, the Vancouver sloop Mary Bower.

Although John Long's Mary Bower collected first over-all, Diamond pulled a trick she learned the hard way from her rival three years earlier and scooted past the Ogden Point breakwater to take the first gun and the City of Victoria trophy at 10 p.m. Sunday.

With owner Henry Kotkins at the helm, the 73-foot Diamond Head was 45 minutes behind Mary Bower as she led the 103-yacht fleet through Race Passage, nine miles from the end of the 136-mile race.

The 49-foot sloop headed straight for the finish and sailed into one of the patches of light, fickle air that spotted the course.

Diamond Head followed the wind. She tacked all the way out to Clover Point before coming about on a broad reach, tucked around the breakwater and over the line three minutes ahead of the Vancouver boat.

REVERSE POSITION

In 1966 the situation was reversed and Mary Bower took the big yawl by a hair-raising one second.

The sloop, out of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, besides placing first over-all, was top in Division I. Other winners were: Division II, Moea, owned by W. C. Whipple, Corinthian (Seattle) Yacht Club; Division II, Hyak, owned by Bonar A. Davis, Royal Vancouver; Division IV, Swallow, owned by P.

Cong Resumes Saigon Attack

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong shelled Saigon early today for the first time in 2½ weeks, fought American paratroops and South Vietnamese militiamen just outside the city and killed a high-ranking American adviser in a rocket attack in the central highlands.

Four hours after two rockets fell inside the South Vietnamese capital, paratroops from the 82nd Airborne Division and militiamen on an offensive sweep ran into small groups of Viet Cong 11 miles northwest of Saigon.

The paratroops were sweeping through the same general area where a Viet Cong force took one of their ambush patrols by surprise last Friday, killing eight Americans.

Spokesmen said the fighting today was sporadic and lasted for about five hours, until the Viet Cong troops withdrew. At least six guerrillas were known dead and three were captured, U.S. headquarters said. One American was killed.

The U.S. command reported eight rocket and mortar attacks during the night that caused casualties but said over-all damage was light.

The American adviser was reported killed at the Dak To airfield, 200 miles northeast of Saigon. About 10 100-pound rockets hit the field at 5 p.m., and five South Vietnamese soldiers were reported wounded.

The two rockets crashed into Saigon before dawn. One landed in a densely populated section known as Rocket Alley because it has been shelled so many times. The rocket destroyed four houses and damaged seven. A child and a man were killed, U.S. headquarters said, and 15 children were among the wounded.

The second rocket fell harmlessly in rice paddies on the eastern fringe of the city.

Intrepid Voyagers Making Better Time

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Thor Heyerdahl's papyrus boat Ra was reported making good time through calmer waters south of the Canary Islands today after taking some damage Sunday from high seas and a strong north wind.

Navigator Norman Baker reported breaking seas again smashed the steering rudder and yardarm Sunday, knocking down the radio antenna, but the damage was repaired.

Pressure on the rudder came from hard steering to keep clear of the Moroccan coast. The Ra cleared Cape Juby at noon Saturday.

Baker, in a broadcast picked up by amateur radio operators here, called it an "extremely eventful weekend."

"The winds are still pretty high," he said, "but the seas are calmer and we are making better time. Thursday we made 48 miles, Friday 52, Saturday 62 and Sunday 65."

Oil Men Face Death Penalty

KWALE, Nigeria (AP) — The Biafrans sentenced 18 foreign oil workers to death as Nigerian forces recovered the bodies of 11 others Sunday.

The Biafran information services said the death penalty must be confirmed by Biafran leader Odumegwu Ojukwu, "but Gen. Ojukwu has not done so thus far." Biafran Information Minister Ifegwu Eke had told a news conference the foreigners had been fighting alongside the Nigerians.

A spokesman had said earlier that if the men were to be freed, their home governments must make "contact through the appropriate channel."

"It is a government-to-government affair, not a humanitarian affair," he added.

The sentenced oilmen—14 Italians, three Germans and one Lebanese—were among 29 workers who disappeared when Biafran and Nigerian troops battled near Okpai, in midwestern Nigeria May 7-10. The bodies of the other 11 men—10 Italians and a Jordanian—were found by Nigerian forces.

The men were employed by AGIP, the Nigerian oil exploration company which is a joint enterprise of the Italian state petroleum corporation and the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Okla. AGIP denied that the men had been fighting for the Nigerians.

BODIES WERE BURNED

Nigerian army officers who recovered the bodies of the 11 dead workers said the Biafrans burned them when they overran their camp in midwestern Nigeria 12 miles from the Niger River.

"When we advanced on the camp we found the remains," said Maj. S. Abacha, 23, who led a unit that captured the campsite four days ago. "One was buried in a toilet drainage ditch, a quite shallow grave. The rains washed up a sort of a skull. Then we found the rest."

Seven air-conditioned trailers where the men lived were riddled with bullet holes.

While Italian colleagues removed the bodies, occasional shots from Biafrans in the bush kept the Nigerian guards on alert.

Although federal headquarters said they had driven the Biafrans across the Niger River, one Nigerian officer said the secessionists still occupied land on the river's west bank.

There were conflicting claims about results of fighting in Aboh, which is located on the river. The Biafrans said Sunday they had checked an advance on the town and killed seven officers including a battalion commander. Saturday the Nigerians said they had taken Aboh. There was no comment from federal authorities on the Biafran report.

New Budget Could Reflect Impending Major Reforms

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — If Finance Minister E. J. Benson pulls any surprises in his spring budget speech to Parliament Tuesday night, they'll be more significant than usual.

Mr. Benson set the tone of federal government fiscal affairs for the current fiscal year—which runs to March 31, 1970—as long ago as last Oct. 22 when he presented a major budget.

Since then he has said that government revenues and expenditures are running about as he expected. When he tabled his pre-budget white paper last week, in fact, he was able to report an unexpected improvement in the deficit position.

So confident was he of last October's budgeting that he spoke first of giving Parliament only an economic review this spring, not a full budget.

The national business organizations, such as the chambers of commerce, bankers, farmers, and labor associations, usually present briefs to the finance minister for him to consider while preparing his budget. This spring they were discouraged from doing so because this wasn't to be a full-blown budget.

SIX DAYS FOR DEBATE

But six days were set aside in the government's parliamentary timetable for a full-dress budget debate in case it was needed.

Then the word came that Mr. Benson planned a full budget. Whether there will be enough in it to require six full days of Commons debate remains to be seen.

But concurrently with preparing his budget, the finance minister has been preparing a white paper policy statement on wholesale tax reform, which he hopes to make public this summer. Parliament will have a chance to discuss it this fall, when formal legislation is introduced.

This is a general review of existing tax laws in their general application, not just concerned with the rates of specific taxes.

Likely to be included is a capital gains tax for the first time in Canada. Money a taxpayer obtains through the increased value of an asset, if he realizes it without making a business of buying and selling for capital gains, now is not counted as income for tax purposes.

MORE CHANGE POSSIBLE

Other features of new tax law recommended by the royal commission headed by the late Kenneth Carter, Toronto tax consultant and accountant, may find their way into the white paper and tax reform.

But the government has indicated it does not intend to go as far as Carter's sweeping plan for integration of personal income and corporation taxes.

Up-Island Fares Hiked As Bus Service Resumes

Virtually full service was established by Vancouver Island Coach Lines today — and up-Island passengers were greeted with a 10 per cent fare increase.

The 23-day strike of the company's 100 drivers ended Saturday when they voted to accept a three-year contract which will push their wages from the current $3.48 hourly to $4.31 by March of 1971.

The fare increases apply immediately to the company's Saanich Peninsula and up-Island runs. The fare for the Vancouver runs via ferry remains the same—$4.25 one-way except on B.C. Ferries' bargain days (Tuesday to Thursday), when it is $3.25.

The company had made fare increase application to the Public Utilities Commission last year and the new rates were actually approved from May 10, two days after the strike started.

FIRST SINCE 1958

VICL general manager Robert Horner said today the company has not had fare hikes since 1958.

"With increases in labor and fuel costs we've got to survive."

The drivers voted 75-10 in favor of accepting the contract offer after a 3½-hour meeting in Nanaimo Saturday. Much of the company's service was restored Sunday, including the ferry runs. But Pacific Stage Lines, which handles half the ferry runs did not resume these until today. Pickets had stopped the PSL ferry service 10 days ago.

The drivers, members of Local 234 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, had originally asked for 54 cents an hour more over each of the next two years. They had lowered this to 38 and 25-cent annual increases but negotiations broke down when the company offered 38 and 10-cent increases.

Gas Association

Premier Harry Strom has congratulated the gas industry for being a model of efficiency in Alberta.

Speaking to the Canadian Natural Gas Processing Association he said: "The role of the industry in the continued development of the province cannot be underestimated."

Foreign Ownership Defended by Pepin

TORONTO (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin says Canadians may be too sensitive about foreign ownership of their industry, overlooking the benefits.

Speaking to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association today, he said the international company spreads technical and management skills around the world and serves to shift industry-building resources to capital-deficient regions, improving the material well-being of all nations.

Observing that Canada receives heavy foreign investment, Mr. Pepin said that "psychologically, Canadians may have become too defensive on this subject."

"We must remember that foreign direct investment involves interdependence more than dependence. While foreign participation in Canadian industry exposes us to external decision-making, we should remember that such exposure does not apply in one direction only.

"The country and company investing in a foreign land also expose themselves to the possibility of unfavorable foreign actions."

Mr. Pepin said international investment often results in companies and nations working at cross purposes.

He urged establishment of international "norms of conduct" to guide both parent and subsidiary companies and investing and receiving countries. The subject is being discussed by the International Chamber of Commerce and in the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, he said.

VSE PRICES NOT POSSIBLE

Due to the heavy volume of trading and inadequate communications facilities at the Vancouver Stock Exchange, it is no longer possible to obtain the closing price list for the "Blue Streak" edition of the Victoria Daily Times.

The Vancouver exchange expects that within a few months it will have a new, computerized system installed which will enable the Times to resume carrying the final stock list.

MARKET SUMMARIES

N.Y. Decline Continues

The New York stock market decline entered its third straight week today in trading which was delayed 45 minutes because many exchange workers were late getting to work due to rain-flooded subways.

Western oils touched a record high but came back slightly as the Toronto market declined fractionally.

Industrials nearly touched an all-time record as Montreal generally firmed during early afternoon trading.

Mine and oil issues were up and industrials down in pre-noon trading at Vancouver.

AT NEW YORK the prolonged decline has been attributed by analysts to worry about the money situation getting even tighter and disenchantment with progress of the Vietnam peace talks.

The averages were near their lowest level at the final bell but price changes were mainly minor.

AT TORONTO final volume was 6,781,000 shares compared with 6,070,000 Friday.

In industrials, Ford Canada dropped 3 to 382, Bow Valley 2 to 35, Investors Overseas 1⅞ to 62, Cominco 1¾ to 37 and Rothmans 1¾ to 25¼.

Falconbridge was up 2½ to 139½, Royal Oak A 2½ to 13 and Pembina 1⅞ to 26⅛.

Sherritt lost 1½ to 13½ and Teck 50 cents to $9.75.

Franc Given Slight Boost

PARIS (Reuters) — The French fran improved slightly today as the unofficial exchange market between banks reacted to the strengthened electoral position of Gaullist candidate Georges Pompidou.

The franc moved off its dollar floor of 4.972000-97350 from 4.97375-974000 at Friday's official close.

Dealers said the changed presidential election situation was welcomed in financial circles.

The Bank of France, which was defending the franc most of last week, this morning was reported to have remained outside the market.

U.K. Banks Pressured To Cut Loans

LONDON (Reuters) — The government Saturday put further pressure on banks to reduce personal loans by halving the interest paid on money banks deposit with the state-controlled Bank of England.

The move, to take effect today, is expected to reduce by £700,000 (about $1,820,000) a month the interest the banks receive from the Bank of England deposits.

In this way the government hopes to reduce the amount of money private banks can make available for loans to customers.

Anti-Dump Duty Laced on Shoes

OTTAWA (CP) —Provisional anti-dumping duty has been slapped on boots and shoes imported from Romania and Poland pending formal hearing June 25 of a complaint from Canadian shoemakers.

Announcements in the Canada Gazette Saturday say the national revenue department issued a preliminary ruling May 21 that the Romanian and Polish footwear was being dumped—exported to Canada at a price below their "normal value" in Europe.

Limit Imposed On Air Flights

NEW YORK (AP) — A new limit on flights went into effect Sunday at New York, Chicago and Washington airports and a Federal Aviation Authority official says "everything's working out real smoothly."

The quota on flights was applied at Chicago's O'Hare, Washington's National and the New York area's Kennedy, La Guardia and Newark airports, aimed at preventing a recurrence of delays of two to three hours on many flights last summer.

The new quota at Kennedy is 80 to 90 takeoffs or landings an hour, compared to a high of 115 last summer. At O'Hare the limit is 115 operations an hour. La Guardia is limited to 48 and Newark and National to 40 an hour.
